Attractions Today.

LYCEUM—Tim Murphy in "Old Innocence." Night. STAR—"The Vagabonds." Afternoon and night.

"The Climbers."

The fifth play from the pen of the prolific Clyde Fitch to be seen in this city this year was presented at the Lyceum theater Saturday afternoon and night. It is unquestionably the best of the five. It cannot be compared with "The Jinks," because that was cheap trash at bottom; nor with "Lovers Lane" or "Nathan Hale," because in these plays Mr. Fitch was scouring strange muses. The only play of his that can be compared with it is "The Way of the World" and it is infinitely superior as a picture of modern society life to that piece.

The first act from the moment the curtain rises on the unexpected death of a little masterpiece. Mr. Fitch's daring originality was evidenced as soon as the audience got a view of the Hunter drawing-room. The funeral of the late Mr. Hunter has just taken place and the servants are removing the two scores and more chairs. Carriages drive up and Mrs. Hunter and her three grown-up daughters enter all dressed in black and all wearing bonnets and veils.

Then began a series of incidents in which Mr. Fitch pictures with wonderful skill the grotesque pretense and sordid selfishness which underlie certain phases of metropolitan social life.

The main story of the play around which the dramatic incidents of the story were woven concerned the Platonic affection (Mr. Fitch's long suit) existing between a married woman and her husband's best friend.

The striking instance is in the second act where the husband is placed in a position where he is forced to make a confession of his infidelity to his wife, his friend and two others. He says he'll tell it only in the dark whereupon every light on the stage and in the house is put out and he tells the story. This was unconventional with a vengeance but it seemed as if in striving to do something out of the ordinary Mr. Fitch had wandered from nature.

The dramatic scenes in the third act were worked out with no degree of cleverness or ingenuity. The famous Mozart band, whose superior dance music is recognized by all lovers of the fantastic, will furnish a delightful programme in the mammoth balcony encircled pavilion, with its smooth and highly-polished floor.

On account of the National Convention of the Protective Association of America, Portland, Ore., June 1st to 7th; the Supreme Lodge A. O. U. W., Portland, Ore., June 10th to 20th, 1902, the Lackawanna railroad will issue First Class round trip tickets for $70.30 on sale good going May 28th to June 7th, and for return passage to reach original starting point not later than 60 days from original date of sale.

Closing Attraction at Lyceum.

Tim Murphy, whom the theatrical world loves and prizes, will doubtless be welcomed back to this city by a full house when he makes his appearance in "Old Innocence" at the Lyceum tonight. Mr. Murphy delineates the character of one "Jacob Green," who by thrift has accumulated sufficient means to live comfortably, who has an abiding faith in human nature, and is actuated by the noble thought that there is a universal brotherhood of man.

Mr. Murphy brings with him an excellent supporting company headed by Miss Dorothy Sherrod, who is well remembered for her charming work in "The Carpet Hanger," "A Bachelor's Romance" and "A Capital Comedy." The forthcoming presentation of "Old Innocence" is attracting no little amount of interest among the more discriminating of our theater-goers and promises to be one of the treats of the theatrical season in this city.

Charlotte Walker has signed a three years' contract with James K. Hackett as the leading lady.

Richard Mansfield will play "Brutus" next season when he will be on the elaborate production of "Julius Caesar."

John Drew will probably not have a new play next season, as "The Second Command" was a success last season.

Sol Smith Russell's life was insured for over $100,000, and in addition he had nearly $700,000 in government bonds.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Walcott have Mr. Belasco's companies next season.

Augustus Thomas' "The Love of a Millionaire" has been secured by Kirke La Shout and will be used by one of his stars, which one has not been stated.

Edna May will not open her season in this country until the first of January, but she will appear in "The Three Little Maids" in London.
