LARGEST VOLCANO IN WORLD.

It Will Be Described by J. S. Mac Murray Tonight.

One of the largest volcanoes in the world is found in the island of Hawaii, and is called "Kilauea." J. S. Mac Murray, now a resident of this city, spent two years in the island taking views and collecting information. Two weeks of this time was spent in exploring "Kilauea." At one point he and his guide reached a boiling lake of fire, but were soon driven away by the gases emanating from it. After a few hours, returning to the same spot they found, instead of the lake of fire, jagged black rocks occupying the place. His life was once saved by his native guide, who rescued him when he had been overcome by gas.

As a result of the trip, he has 125 fine views, many of them colored, and a fund of reliable information. Under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A. Workers' band, to-night "The Village Blacksmith" while the scenes illustrating it are thrown upon the screen, and the singing of a double quartette of male voices.

Mr. Macmurray has a fine baritone voice, and possesses a fine diction, and a present from Queen "Liloukalanui" as a token of her pleasure at his singing.

The Y. M. C. A. Workers' band deserve and should receive hearty support in this their first effort of the kind.

REVENUE COLLECTIONS.

Reductions and Repeals Cause a Heavy Decrease.

Internal Revenue Collector T. F. Penman reports collections for May as follows:

Table with 2 columns: Item and Amount. Includes On Hats ($1,580.82), Beer ($20,920.29), Spirit ($4,259.89), Cigar ($2,847.62), Tobacco ($6,501.29), Special ($51.11), Documentary ($1,232.95), Proprietary ($18.24). Total: $45,501.21.

In May, 1901, the total collections were $168,507.98. The decrease is accounted for by the reductions and repeals of war taxes. The strike also had the effect of reducing the revenue from beer, tobacco and cigars.

SAW COSGROVE FIRE SHOTS

THREE WITNESSES GAVE DIRECT TESTIMONY.

While McAuliffe was from Twenty-five to Thirty Feet Away from Cosgrove the Shooting Was Done—On Cross-Examination One of the Witnesses Testified That Cosgrove Was Hatless and Was Walking Backward When He Fired—McAuliffe Was Approaching Him.

The Superior court room was crowded yesterday with spectators who evinced great interest in the trial of Sylvester F. Cosgrove for causing the death of Daniel McAuliffe. One of the very interested spectators is Mr. Drummond of New York, head of the detective agency by whom Cosgrove was employed and sent to this city. Daniel Davis, one of the commonwealth's witnesses, failed to appear yesterday and an attachment was issued for him.

Dr. J. Z. Roberts was the first witness called yesterday. He examined the leg after it was amputated and gave it as his opinion that it had been properly treated. Dr. Claude W. Walker, senior house surgeon at the Lackawanna hospital, last December, testified to the condition of McAuliffe when he came there and the treatment he received. His testimony was largely the same as that of Drs. Willson and Connel.

John Dunleavy, who was shot in the wrist during the trouble outside of Moran's on December 3, testified that he was in Moran's saloon when Cosgrove came in. He was accompanied by Frank Kofczenski and Frank Kinsley. The one of the two men came in at 1 o'clock, and in the room were about thirty persons. The officers walked up to the stove and began to warm themselves, at the same time scrutinizing the features of those about them. Dunleavy said that Kofczenski grabbed up William Magrhan, dragged him by the coat collar and dragged him to the door. The witness then went out on the porch and Magrhan by this time was standing alone on the sidewalk and the three officers were conversing on the corner.

CROWD SCATTERED.

When they got outside the crowd began to scatter. The witness was pushed off the porch by those behind him, and went around to the sixteenth street side of the building when he saw Kinsley pointing a pistol at him. He put up his hand, and as he did so, Kinsley fired. The ball struck him on the back of the wrist of the right hand. He turned around and saw Cosgrove firing at McAuliffe who was on the opposite side of the street from the hotel. His back was turned to Cosgrove who was in the roadway and he was moving away from him. Cosgrove fired he heard McAuliffe shout, "He was shot." He denied that he attacked the officers or saw anybody else do so. The only shots fired he said were by the officers.

Martin Carroll, of Twenty-second street, was in Moran's hotel when Cosgrove and his two companions entered. They walked up to the stove and stood there for a few minutes and then went to the corner of the bar where William Magrhan and several other men were standing. Kofczenski grabbed up Magrhan and most of the crowd rushed out of the building after them and a moment later he heard shots fired. He had been sitting at a table up to that time, but when he heard the shots he went to the door and tried to get out on account of the crowd in the doorway and he returned and went back to the table he had left and again sat down. Altogether he heard about eight shots fired in the space of a minute. He remained sitting at the table for ten or fifteen minutes and then went to Richard Tudor and Richard Jones gave similar testimony.

MORAN'S TESTIMONY.

Dominick Moran, the proprietor of the hotel inside of which the shooting occurred, said that on Dec. 3 about 12.30 or 12.45 p. m. there was a big crowd in the place and himself and his wife were behind the bar waiting upon them. Cosgrove and his two companions came in and stood with their backs to the stove. At the end of the bar stood William Magrhan, John McDonough and John Ducey shaking dice. Kinsley pointed to Magrhan and Kofczenski went up to him, snatched a paper and then grabbed him and started to pull him toward the door. One of the three men held the door open and the three men almost at the same time, Cosgrove surged out after them and the witness, seeing them go, went to the door and told his wife to take a club from behind the bar and keep the crowd out. She told him afterwards that some one took it away from her. Some three shots were fired before he got out and he saw McAuliffe going west toward Seventeenth street when Cosgrove pointed his revolver and shot. He saw one of McAuliffe's legs give way and heard him cry that he was shot. McAuliffe then turned and started up toward Fifteenth street, and his married sister lives. Altogether he thought about fifteen shots were fired.

WHAT DAVIS SAW.

Henry Davis was in Moran's saloon on that day. He was standing at the bar with Egan Evans and James McNichols when the three officers came in and stood around the stove. He saw Kofczenski read a paper to men at the end of the bar and then saw Kofczenski take a man by the back of his coat and start for the door. They had a clear road, there being nobody between the men at the end of the bar and the door. After the officers and the man at the end of the bar got outside the crowd in the bar room rushed after them. It seemed to him to be ten minutes after the crowd went out before the first shot was fired.

Evans went into an inside room when the trouble began. He heard from 20 to 25 shots fired.

David Holvey was standing at the bar in Moran's place when the officers came in and heard Kofczenski read something with the name John Doe in it to William Magrhan. The latter said my name is William Magrhan, not John Doe and Kofczenski said, well, I want

WHERE DOCTORS FAIL

four months, when my husband became impatient because I grew worse instead of better, and in speaking to the doctor he advised me to get Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Sanative Wash. How I wish I had taken that at first; it would have saved me weeks of suffering. It took three long months to restore me, but it is a happy relief, and we are both most grateful to you. Your Compound has brought joy to our home and health to me."—MRS. PAULINE JUDSON, 47 Hoyt Street, Brooklyn, N. Y.—47 Hoyt Street, Brooklyn, N. Y.

you and grabbing him started for the door with him. Then he heard some shots fired and when he crowded to the door saw Cosgrove near the center of the street. He fired two shots at McAuliffe who was on the opposite side of the street from Moran's hotel. McAuliffe was about 25 to 30 feet from Cosgrove at this time. He then saw Kinsley draw a revolver and calling to those about him to look out for the wound on the back of the skull. He stepped into the barroom and did not go out again until the trouble was all over. He did not see any one tear Kofczenski's collar or shirt or make an assault on any of the other men who were with him. His examination he admitted that when Cosgrove fired he was backing up the street hatless and McAuliffe was on the sidewalk walking toward Fifteenth street and in the direction of Cosgrove.

Other Criminal Cases.

After court opened yesterday morning the jury before whom William Bushinsky was tried yesterday on a charge of purchasing stolen goods returned a verdict of not guilty.

James Hotchkins, a boy who lives on West Washington avenue, was tried on a charge of malicious mischief and assault and battery. D. W. Richards was the prosecutor. The testimony was to the effect that Hotchkins and two other boys set upon and beat Robert Richards, the prosecutor's son, and that latter being the Richards home they threw stones at the house and smashed panels in the door. The defendant denied both the assault and the stone throwing. The verdict was one of guilty and Hotchkins was recommended to the mercy of the court.

John Newcomb, an old man whose home is in Dunmore was returned not guilty of a charge of attempting to criminally assault a child on the ground that he is insane. The court ordered committing him to the Hillside Home.

Thomas Gilboy was charged by former Constable Jonas Gardner, of the Ninth ward, with selling liquor without a license. Gardner's son told that he bought beer at Gilboy's place on Birch street, South Scranton, on two occasions. Gilboy's wife went on the stand and denied that any intoxicants were ever sold there. She conducts a little grocery store but no liquor is sold there. Judge Kelly rendered a verdict of not guilty.

A case of John Flaherty, charged with assault and battery, the defendant, Thomas Grogan not appearing, was taken up by Judge Kelly. When Court adjourned F. H. Unton, formerly manager of the Imperial Paint, Stain and Filler company was on trial before Judge Kelly in Court room No. 2. The charge was embezzling $2,000 of the funds of the company, George D. Brown, the president, is the prosecutor. The amount that it is alleged he embezzled was charged up in the form of expenses. The defense has not been developed at the hour of adjourning.

Mackey McDonough, John J. Walsh, Patrick Finnigan and Michael Judge were arraigned charged with the theft of iron and brass from the Delaware Lackawanna and Western company which was sold to W. Waszkewsky, a junk dealer who lives on the flats. McDonough and Walsh entered pleas of guilty and Finnigan and Judge went to trial. Judge says he was not present and had nothing to do with the theft or sale. Finnigan declares that he did not meet McDonough or Judge until after the theft. They were on trial when court adjourned.

KILLED BY TEN YEAR OLD BOY

THE FATAL END OF A CHILDREN'S QUARREL.

Eleven Year Old Mamie Cubellis, of Winton, Struck with an Iron Rivet Thrown by Ten Year Old Stephen Cheyon and Died Within a Few Minutes—She Had Been Abusing the Little Fellow's Sister and Refused to Stop When He Told Her To.

Mamie Cubellis, an 11 year old girl, was killed yesterday afternoon in Winton by Stephen Cheyon, a little lad only ten years old.

Both children lived in a double house on River street, Winton. Their parents are poor, and the life of the street had been theirs. Yesterday afternoon they were both playing near their home together with a number of other children, among whom was the Cheyon boy's little sister, who is about 6 years old.

According to the story told by the boy and several of the eye-witnesses of the affair, the Cubellis girl was teasing and annoying the Cheyon boy's little sister, pulling her hair and scratching her face.

"You stop that," said little Stephen, who seems to be a manly little chap. "You stop that and let my little sister alone. Take some one your own size."

It is said that the girl paid little heed to what Stephen told her and that in a minute or two more she was abusing his little sister again till the latter cried out in pain and discomfort. Little Stephen came over near her again.

"You stop," he yelled and when she didn't he reached down and picked up an iron rivet which happened to be lying on the street. He threw it with great force at the Cubellis girl. It struck her full behind the left ear. She gave a pained cry, started forward a step or two and then fell headlong on the street in an unconscious condition. She was carried to her house and Dr. Thomas Monies, of Archbald, summoned. He came in a hurry but when he arrived the girl was dead. He made only a cursory examination of the wound but seems convinced that there is a fracture at the base of the skull.

Stephen Cheyon manfully stood his ground and didn't attempt to run away when he learned that the girl was dead. Perhaps this was due partly to the fact that he isn't quite old enough to realize fully the gravity of the situation. He was arrested by the authorities, but after Dr. Monies had communicated with Coroner Saltry by telephone it was decided to release him until this morning in the custody of his parents.

When asked to explain just how the affair occurred he said as the tears came into his eyes: "That girl always used to like to tease my little sister. She was pulling her hair and scratchin' her face today and I told her to stop. She said she didn't have to mind me and when she wouldn't stop I picked somethin' up off the road and threw it at her. I didn't mean to hurt her bad. Only wanted to scare her. Lots of boys throw stones and things at each other. I didn't mean to kill her and I don't think they'll put me in jail, do you?" and the little fellow burst into tears.

Coroner J. F. Saltry will go to Winton this morning to investigate the case.

WANT ORDINANCE AMENDED.

Grocers Find the License Ordinance Is Too Sweeping.

The license tax ordinance recently passed by council is causing all kinds of worryment. The butchers are protesting, and now the grocers themselves, the men who caused the ordinance to be introduced and who lobbied for its passage, are kicking. A committee from the Retail Grocers' association waited upon Recorder Connel yesterday and explained to him a new phase of the situation. The grocers have discovered that in their zeal to make the ordinance cover all kinds of hucksters they unwittingly included many of themselves under its provisions.

It frequently happens that when a grocer has an extra large supply of strawberries or some other article on hand and feels that he can't get rid of them at his store before they spoil, he sends one of his men out selling them from a wagon. Under the only interpretation of the ordinance possible, grocers doing this would be obliged to pay a regular license fee.

The members of the committee which waited on the recorder yesterday explained that they thought it unfair to tax a merchant who pays a mercantile tax. They admitted that the ordinance as drawn up is a little bit too sweeping in order to remedy the defect complained of it would be necessary to pass an ordinance amending the original measure, so as to exonerate all merchants paying a mercantile tax. It is probable that such an ordinance will be introduced shortly.

APPLICANTS ARE NUMEROUS.

Director of Public Works Has to Rearrange Office Hours.

Director of Public Works Roche is so constantly engaged with the innumerable details of the work of his department that he has been obliged to make some changes in the handling of it. Heretofore he has seen all callers whenever they called. The applications for employment have become so numerous that to give all a hearing throughout the day interfered very seriously with the transaction of business. In order to enable him to attend to his duties he has decided to receive all applicants for employment hereafter between the hours of 4 and 5 o'clock in the afternoon, (Saturdays excepted.) His bureaus are full handed at present but he is ready to hear any working man who calls within the hours named, and when vacancies occur in his department, the only qualifications citizens of Scranton, able and willing to work. Applicants at present average about 125 a day.
