PUBLIC DAY AT ORAL SCHOOL. GLIMPSE AT THE GREAT WORK BEING DONE THERE. There Are No Graduates This Year and Public Day Was Substituted for the Regular Graduation Exercises.

There were no graduates at the Pennsylvania Oral school this year. The reason may not be entirely understood by the general public that is accustomed to seeing students turned out by the hundreds as "finished" on the June commencement day.

The fact is that at another oral school, much larger than this, there were but five graduates last year from 500 pupils.

It should be remembered that the regular course requires ten years and may consume twelve years, but when it is realized that the children are received under the ages of six—indeed one was taken at three and a half—the average length of time employed is no more than in the public schools.

A significant fact in the case of deaf children is that they are chiefly from the homes of parents who possess a good deal of property.

LEAVE SCHOOL EARLY. With the very poor this is unfortunately not the case. Hence the state oral-schools contain a majority of pupils from homes of poverty.

Yesterday was class day at the Pennsylvania oral school. The beautiful grounds were gay with roses and laurel. Within the bright rooms and the teachers with their gracious manner and attractive faces revealed the secret of the happiness which seems to prevail even among those to whom the world must ever be a silent place.

One has to be especially lovely in character as well as in feature to teach little deaf children. From inner fountains of unexhaustible sweetness one must draw infinite supplies of patience and gentleness.

REQUIRES PATIENCE. But oh, the patience—the patience! It fairly gave the visitor a headache to see the proofs of it on every side—the delicate sympathy of the teacher with her exquisite patience, the patience of the little child in his own right.

In the other grades the valuable foundation laid thus carefully, thus tenderly, was evident. You cannot leave a lesson half taught to a little deaf child. You must take all the time there is; no need of worry about passing examinations and tests; no nervous prostrations for fear the marks will not be high enough.

NINE-YEAR-OLD BOY IN CHAINS. Little Eddie Crumple Had Been Tied Up Like a Dog by His Father Since Last Sunday.

Mrs. W. B. Duggan, agent of the Associated Charities, and mounted officer Perry, found 9 year old little Eddie Crumple chained in the barn in the rear of his father's house on the East mountain yesterday afternoon.

The case in all its aspects reveals almost barbaric cruelty. Mrs. Duggan was notified early yesterday afternoon that the boy had been chained up since Sunday by his father for stealing twenty-five cents from a neighbor and was suffering acutely.

"The boy is a bad one," she said, "and his father had to chain him up. I'm glad you've come to take him off our hands because he's caused us all kinds of trouble."
