ALBIN KORN'S PUPILS.

They Gave a Recital in Guernsey Hall Last Night.

A large and appreciative audience listened to recital given last evening by the piano pupils of Prof. G. Albin Korn in Guernsey hall. That Mr. Korn is an efficient and conscientious instructor is evidenced in the technique and understanding with which his pupils interpret.

Among the number notably well rendered were "Monastery Bells," by Miss Grace Reid; "The French Child's Song" and "The Old French Dance," by the little Misses Mary and Belle Post. Narcissus was played sweetly and in perfect time by Miss Laura Russell. An arrangement of two American songs was played by Master Willie Foote.

Among others most worthy of note were Miss Emma Schnell, who played "Sweet Sixteen" in a most charming manner; Miss Myra Smith, who interpreted the "Hallelujah of the Birds," and Miss Florence Rafter, whose rendering of the Second Mazurka by Godard was a surprise, she being so young an artist.

"The Song of Ukraine," a weird fantasia from the Russian, was most ably rendered by Kestitus Szilipas, who shows unmistakable talents which close application will certainly develop. Miss Kath Davis, Miss Frieda Wagner, Miss Marion Smith, Miss Adelheid Gallenkamp and Miss Adelina Salupas also rendered solos. Mrs. O. Galenkamp and Miss Zeidler ably assisted with vocal numbers.

DR. ALLEN ON THE SMALL-POXHE RECOMMENDS COMPULSORY VACCINATION.

Suggests That a Public Vaccinator Be Sent Into All Infected Districts Empowered to Vaccinate All Unprotected Persons—He Advises Local Physicians to Report All Cases of Eruptive Diseases if They Are Not Positive in Their Diagnosis of the Same.

Dr. W. E. Allen, superintendent of the bureau of health, in his report for the month of May, transmitted yesterday to Director of Public Safety Wormser, discusses the prevalence of small-pox in this city and advises physicians to be careful to report all cases of eruptive disease not clearly defined. He also recommends that compulsory vaccination be carried out in all infected districts. The full text of the report follows:

Scranton, Pa., June 18, 1902.
F. L. Wormser, Director of Public Safety.
Dear Sir: I have the honor to present the report of the secretary of the bureau of health for the month of May, 1902. It is gratifying to note the small number of contagious diseases reported—32 in all—but with four deaths—two from whooping-cough and two from pneumonia, for which there hardly lie classes with contagious diseases. There is still small-pox in the city of so mild a form that in many instances cases are not reported until the disease has nearly run its course and the whole neighborhood has been infected. It is not strange that physicians have not yet acknowledged the disease should be uncertain, as it would be better at this time, when mild small-pox is so prevalent all over this country, that all eruptive diseases not clearly defined should be reported and the opinion of an expert obtained at once.

It is not sufficient to say that because there is one case of small-pox there are no deaths. It cannot be small-pox and must be a "new disease." It would be just as reasonable to say that scarlet fever, which formerly was the most dreaded of all the exanthematic diseases, on account of the great mortality, and which now is one of the most benign, is not contagious. The same argument could be used to show that small-pox cannot take on such violent action. Our only way of escaping a continuance of the disease is by a rigid avoidance of vaccination. Of all the cases reported, only four have been vaccinated at all and they not within fifteen years.

This disease should be stopped right now, if possible. We have had free vaccination, but there are so many people who object to it and for various reasons who have not had it, that the community is not protected. I think all sections of the city where the disease exists should be visited by a public vaccinator with power to insist upon or compel rather, the vaccination of all unprotected people. This, I think, would wind it up in short order and save the city great expense.

Very respectfully,
W. E. Allen, M.D.
Superintendent Bureau of Health.

Director of Public Safety Wormser said yesterday afternoon that he has not decided whether or not to follow out the doctor's suggestion regarding compulsory vaccination. A resolution is pending in council providing for a continuance of free vaccination and until this comes before the director it is unlikely that he will arrive at a definite decision.

A serious doubt as to whether compulsory vaccination can be enforced exists in the minds of some of those who have given the matter consideration.

THE MOORISH PALACE.A Wonderful Realm of Mystifying Illusions That Are Startling.

The weird spectacle of a marble statue, gradually turning into a live woman of rare beauty right before one's very eyes, the marvelous scene of a woman's decapitated head retaining its life, indefinitely and talking in apparent ease and comfort to its horrified audience, the wondrous idea of a handsome young woman all clad in flimsy white floating about in thin air like some departed spirit truly the queen of the atmosphere are sights which would seem to belong to supernatural and unreal of other worlds than ours, but strange as they are to be possible as they seem, they are to be seen together with hundreds of others equally as strange and apparently impossible in the wonderful Moorish Palace of the great Bostock-Ferrari Mighty Midway Aggregation.

In the great-turreted castle-like palace rising grim and stolid from the center of the midway, attended by real Moors in native costume the wonders are shown in such masterful manner as to make one forget they are all only illusions and that he has not been suddenly transported to some far-distant and less practical sphere than that on which we live. The greatest illusionists of this country and Europe have combined their skill and cunning to make the Moorish Palace the most wonderful exhibit of its kind extant. It will be seen here on the midway during the Elks' Carnival week, commencing June 29.
