TOLLES-DICKSON.

It is not everybody who can be wedded eneath a bending canopy of the fair blue place of Mr. and Mrs. James P. Dickson, cannot be perpetuated in the colors the brightest of all June days, with the grouping of three hundred and more guests on the great lawn, sloping gently Marion Hutchinson, both of Philadelphia, into the soft shadows of the towering were married at 5 o'clock last evening severgreens, and lifted above on the terrace the white clad troop of beautiful maidens and their cavaliers, encircling the young girl in her bridal robes—the bride-the bride-the properties of the contractyoung girl in her bridal robes—the bridegroom with his bride. No picture could do it justice, for the painter could not put in the brilliance of the sunshine, the infinite depth of the sky, the song of the birds, the radiance of the happy faces.

Under such superlatively gracious auspices were married Mr. and Mrs. Dickson's eldest daughter, Janet MacDonald, to Everatt W. Tolles. The surroundings were everything that the charms of clergyman, Rev. Thomas deGruchy, D.

country life can afford at this senson. The beautiful place with its acres of lawn The beautiful place with its acres of lawn thickly shaded, and gay with growing roses and peonies made a marvellous setting for the company of guests, the exquisite gowns, the fair faces, the effective grouping composing a picture as delicately lovely as a Boucher of the eighteenth century.

The wedding marches were executed by Prof. Llewellyn Jones. Both bride and her maid were attired in white and carried flowers. Mrs. De Wilde is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George W. Hutchinson, formerly of West Scranton and the groom was formerly a resident of the central city. They will reside in Philadelphia.

The orchestra played the wedding music and the bridal party appeared on the veranda. The ushers came first. They were M. B. Fuller, Dickson Torrey, Charles gers, of South Norwalk, and Ralph Williams. The bridesmalds came two by two, upon the platform erected out on the lawn from the plazza. There ey separated and with the ushers formed a half circle about the bride and groom, the maid of honor and the best man. They were Miss Mary Dickson and Mr. Frank D. Layton, of South Norwalk, The maids were: Miss Edith Miles, of Yonkers, N. Y.; Miss May Pennypacker. Miss Amy Jessup, Miss Eleanor Reynolds, Miss Elsbeth Winton, Miss Helen Matthows, Miss Helen Boies, Miss Elizabeth Dickson. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Dr. Odell, of the Second Presbyterian church. The bride wore a gown of white embroidered chiffon, with real lace yoke and elaborate lace trimmings. She carried bride roses. The maid of honor, the bride's lovely sister, wore white mousseline de sole trimmed with ralenciennes luce. The bridesmaids' frocks were exceedingly pretty. They were of white silk mousseine made with many fine tucks and lace. Their sashes were green. They were pic-ture hats and carried bouquets of field daises tied with green.

A delightfully informal reception followed when the bridal party received with Mr. and Mrs. Dickson and Mr. and Mrs. Tolles, of South Norwalk, Conn., parents of the groom. Mrs. Dickson ware white mousseline embroidered in black acc. Mrs. Tolles' gown was of black The house was elaborately adorned with forest maiden hair ferns, daisies

Refreshments were served on the lawn, on the verandas and in the spacious lower rooms. On the second floor two or hree apartments were given up to such a collection of gifts as are seldom seen. Many guests remained over for the barn dance at night which was a memorable event. The floor was waxed to perfection and the place was gally lighted with Japanese lanterns and decorated with laurel and wild flowers. Bauer furnished the music. Refreshments were served by Hochreiter, of Wilkes-Barre.

Mrs. Tolles is a young girl of many attractions and one much beloved in this city of her birth. Mr. Tolles is well mown in leading circles and is proprietor of an important business house young people will soon take up their residence on Pine street.

The guests from out of town were: Mr. and Mrs. T. F. Torrey, New York; Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Dickson and daughters, Morristown, N. J.; Mr. and Mrs. Starr. Orange, N. J.; Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Tolics, South Norwalk, Conn.; Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Tolles, and son. Bingham-hamton, N.
