FATHER JORDAN'S FIRST MASS.

It was celebrated in St. Paul's Church, Green Ridge. Rev. Richard B. Jordan, son of Mr. and Mrs. T. H. Jordan, of 1094 Capouse avenue, celebrated his first mass yesterday morning at 10:30 o'clock, at St. Paul's church, Green Ridge.

There was a congregation present which thronged the church, many being from Parsons, the native place of the new priest, and others coming from Lombard, Archbald, New York and Philadelphia. A solemn high mass was celebrated. The assistant priest was Rev. P. J. McManus, pastor of St. Paul's; Rev. M. E. Loftus, of St. Paul's, was deacon; Rev. Stephen O'Boyle, of Sayre, sub-deacon, and Rev. John O'Donnell, of Olyphant, master of ceremonies.

The new priest's mother and then his father and other relatives, were the first to receive communion from his hands. At the conclusion of the mass, the most of the congregation went to the altar railing to receive his blessing, individually. Rev. Father Jordan was ordained in Rome, May 24, by Cardinal Roseighi, after completing a course of study at the American college in Rome, took his course in classics at St. Michael's college, Toronto, Canada, and his seminary course at St. Mary's, Baltimore. He went to Rome in 1898, after having been a divinity student for seven years.

STRIKER SHOT AT MAYFIELD

JOSEPH QUINN RECEIVES A BULLET IN THE LEG.

Gang of Workmen and Crowd of Strikers Come in Conflict Near the Glenwood Breaker, and a Bullet Fired by One of the Former Strikes Quinn—Wounded Man, It Is Claimed, Was Not in the Crowd. Workmen Are Arrested by Sheriff Schadt and Held for Court.

In a conflict between Erie company workmen and a crowd of strikers at Mayfield, late Saturday night, Joseph Quinn, aged 21, was shot through the calf of the left leg by one of the workmen.

The fracas occurred near the Glenwood breaker at 11 o'clock. The shift was being changed and as five workmen who were about to go on duty were approaching the breaker they encountered a crowd of young men.

The strikers say they whistled at the workmen and that the latter began firing at them. The workmen say they were attacked with stones and only fired when their assailants were closing in on them. After Quinn was shot the workmen got to the breaker without further molestation. The chief of police went after them, but Superintendent Gallagher refused to let him have entrance to the breaker, fearing if he took the most out he would be liable to protect them from violence. Sheriff Schadt was sent for and went to the scene, before daybreak. The five men whom the strikers allege comprised the 'shift' who did the shooting were turned over to the sheriff and taken to this city.

Yesterday they were taken back to Mayfield for a hearing before Judge McGovern. Joseph O'Brien and John C. P. O'Malley appeared for the defendants, and Hon. P. E. Timlin for the prosecution. General Manager W. A. May, of the Erie's coal department, and Superintendent W. W. Inglis, of the Hillside Coal and Iron company, were also present.

Eight witnesses for the prosecution were heard and all agreed that the only provocation for the shooting was some whistling on the part of a few young men who passed the workmen out, as they, the young men, were on their way home. The defendants were required to give bail in the sum of $500 each for their appearance at court. General Manager May became their bondsman.

Quinn, according to all the stories, was not in the crowd which the workmen encountered, but was shot just after leaving Langan's barber shop, which is on Main street, across from where the conflict occurred. Quinn is at the Emergency hospital, Carbondale. The doctors say his wound is not serious. Unless blood poisoning sets in, he will be able to be around in a week or so.

The point at which the shooting occurred is midway between the breaker and the pump house. The two are connected by a narrow-gauge railroad which crosses Main street. The workmen were going along this railroad, a short distance beyond the street, when the trouble occurred. On several occasions recently the rails of this road have been torn up during the night.

DYNAMITE USED.

Late Friday night, dynamite was exploded within the stockade of the William A. Colliery, at Lackawanna. The explosion occurred close to the building in which the coal and iron poles and imported workmen are housed, but did no damage. The company officials are of the belief that the dynamite was thrown over the stockade by strikers, with the intention of blowing up the building. The strikers say the coal and iron police exploded the dynamite themselves, for the purpose of causing the company to continue them in their easy employment.

The frequent arrests of strikers for various violations of the law has led the district executive board of the United Mine Workers to appropriate money for the hiring of lawyers to look after the defendants. The washery connected with the Hillman colliery, at Wilkes-Barre, recently purchased by Kearney & Co., of this city, has been started up.

The Engineering and Mining Journal of Saturday, in its review of the anthracite coal trade, says: The strike drags the slow length along, but indications multiply that its end, near. The optimistic reports sent out by Mr. Mitchell are to be taken with allowances for the necessities of his position. The operators are keeping such mines from flooding as are most important to them, employees are daily going to the mine superintendents and intimating that they would like to return to work, and a few washeries in the Lackawanna region are in operation. There can be no doubt but just as soon as a company feels that there are enough men ready to return to any mine to insure its working that mine will start. The trade union sentiment is strong in the anthracite fields, the fear of the stigma put upon non-union workers is not so strong, but gradually the rank and file among the mine workers are realizing that the labor leaders who precipitated the strike made promises that have not been fulfilled, and another week's idleness will have a powerful effect. Mr. Mitchell's plea for public sympathy ignores the demands put forward by the Shamokin and Hazleton conventions. Besides, these apparently come too late to have much effect.

TRADE IS LIGHT. Trade all over the country is very light. The producing companies have very little coal to sell, and this is still doled out in small quantities to such of their regular customers as are in greatest need. A considerable number of hands in cities of jobbers, retailers and speculators. Some of this is changing hands at $4 above the prices paid for it; some is held by conservative concerns who refuse to take advantage of the market, and are supplying regular customers at about regular prices. At the head of the lakes docks are about empty, only a few bargains remaining. In Chicago territory trade is dull. There are said to be over 250,000 tons in the hands of shippers and large dealers in Chicago and suburbs. The large companies have not advanced prices, and are not trying to sell coal. The public is not ordering, perhaps because it believes prices are high.

Along the lower lakes and in all-rail trade the dealers in the small towns and villages, who have not yet learned the importance of ordering coal early in April, are in greater need than in cities. Fortunately, wood is largely used for fuel in villages and country districts during summer, and the discomfort caused by short supplies of anthracite is not nearly as great as it might be. In Canadian territory the supplies of anthracite are very scant. The strike will doubtless lead to later shipments of soft coal from Nova Scotia to Quebec and Eastern Ontario, and permanently injure the Canadian market for American anthracite. Along the Atlantic seaboard the situation shows little change from last week. New York harbor is the speculative center, and owing to the exigencies of the elevated railroad and of other concerns having suits for violations of the smoke ordinance on hand, some coal has changed hands at fancy prices. Over $6 has been paid for pea coal, and a sale of a small lot of broken to the elevated railroad is reported at $9 per ton. The regular retail price for egg, stove and chestnut is still nominally $7.50. Undoubtedly the tonnage held by dealers and others in and about New York is larger than has been reported, but the supply in first hands is small. At least one large burner, however, is still supplying some of its old customers with coal at the regular June price, $4.25 f. o. b. New York harbor shipping ports for egg, stove and chestnut are still open, and the situation at Boston and other cities beyond Cape Cod the bituminous situation is of chief importance.

The supplies of anthracite for domestic purposes are large enough to last some time. At Philadelphia, likewise, the supply of bituminous is a more pressing matter than the lack of anthracite.

ACCUSED OF BURGLARY.

Firemen Arrest Charles Kuhlman in Abington Dairy Company's Office—Leaps from Window.

Charles Kuhlman, of this city, was arraigned before Magistrate W. S. Millar yesterday morning and held in $1,000 bail on the charge of burglary, preferred by Superintendent of Police L. B. Day. Kuhlman was arrested in the most out of the building on the Linden street, early yesterday morning by several members of the Crystal Hose company, and it is believed that he was attempting to rifle the cash register. The arrest was made early yesterday morning. The company had just returned from attending the fire at Volstead's barber shop, and were told by a man they met that there was someone in the dairy. The place was darkened, and on listening the firemen heard footsteps. Captain Charles Tropp, Carl Gunster, Fred Hay and others surrounded the place, and on improvised weapons, and broke in the door. They found the register moved to the back of the room, and a man crouching in one corner. When he saw the firemen enter, he made a sudden rush for the window leading into the court behind the building, and dove out of it, taking a section of the window sash with him. Clark was only to encounter a fireman, armed with a pitchfork on the other side, however. Kuhlman plead drunkenness in police court yesterday, and declared that the door being open, he had dropped into the store to sleep there during the night.

IN ORPHANS' COURT.

Matters Considered by Judge Vosburg on Saturday. Judge A. A. Vosburg on Saturday heard the audits in the estate of Patrick E. Cusick, minor child of Owen Cusick, deceased, and in the estate of Frances A. French. Attorneys John B. Jordan appeared for the former, and Attorney H. C. Reynolds in the latter case.

Opinion was also handed down in the estate of A. D. Dean, deceased, in which the petition to compel the executors to file an account was dismissed. Arguments were heard in the estate of Bridget Ryan, deceased, by Attorneys C. R. Pitcher, M. P. Cawley, W. H. Jessup, Jr., and T. P. Duffy. Judge Vosburg reserved his decision.

In the estate of W. W. Smith, deceased, the return of mortgage was presented by A. D. Dean, esq., counsel for the executor. In the estate of Mary Keegan, deceased, the final account of Michael J. Clark was filed, accompanied by a release of the part of the petition in interest, and on motion of O'Brien & Martin it was confirmed finally and the executor discharged.

The citation upon the executors in the estate of Matilda Swingle, deceased, was answered by the executors and argued by L. B. Wedeman, esq., and J. Elliot Ross, esq., for the petitioners, and W. H. Roe, esq., for the respondents. Decision reserved.

A large number of orders were made in other estates. Court adjourned until August 4, midsummer motion day.

Five of the leaders made returns in The Tribune's Educational Contest on Saturday. They were the Messrs. Charles Burns, of Vandling; A. J. Kellerman, of Scranton; William T. S. Rodriguez, of Scranton, and L. E. Stanton, of Scranton, and Miss Beatrice Harpur, of Thompson. The latter was the only one whose position was affected by the day's work. She advanced from eighteenth place to fourteenth, where she is tied with William Cooper.

Grant Decker and Frank B. McCreary, both of Hallstead, and Lee C. Wilson, of Springville, all dropped back in consequence of Miss Harpur's gain. Today is the last chance for the contestants to win the prizes of $10 and $5 in gold, offered for the best work done during June. All points must be in the hands of the Contest Editor by 5 o'clock tonight, or they will not be counted in the June competition. This ruling will apply to every contestant.

The following is the standing of the contestants whose names do not appear in the main table: 34. Emanuel Bucci, Hyde Park, 7. 35. Elmer Williams, Elmhurst, 7. 36. Charles O'Boyle, Scranton, 5. 37.
