Important Work He Does in the Census Bureau. The census bureau has just issued bulletin on the manufacture of agricultural implements which was prepared under the direction of Joseph D. Lewis valued of the employes in the bureau It is a very valuable and interesting presentation of facts concerning this important branch of industry.

In a recent article in the Chicago Record-Herald William E. Curtis had short sketches of some of the leading men in this bureau. Of Mr. Lewis he said: "Joseph D. Lewis was born May 31, 1862, in Wales. He was employed during the entire period of the eleventh census in the division of manufactures, principally in editing schedules and reports on certain special in He has been employed in the twelfth census, division of manufactures, from July 21, 1899, and had charge of the work of preparing the catalogue of estimates and editing the schedules. FOR MINE INSPECTOR, EVAN C. DAVIES.

Evan C. Davies, the subject of this sketch, is the son of Thomas C. and Elizabeth Davies, of Taylor. He was born in Pomeroy, Ohio, on the second day of June, 1866, and when but seven rears of age his parents came to Pennsylvania and located at Taylor, where hey have resided ever since. Mr. Davies received his educational training in the private school of the late J. B. Hawker and in the public schools of the borough. By dint of industry, perseverance and diligence he prepared himself for the profession of teaching, studying unceasingly at night and working in the mines during the day. In 1885 he passed a successful examination for a teacher's certificate under the supervision of N. S. Davis, the then superintendent of common schools of Lackawanna county. In that same year he was appointed to the position of teacher and taught for several terms, also teaching one term in Colo-

In 1888 he assumed control of the editorial and business management of the Taylorport Journal, a weekly newspaper published in the borough and having a wide suburban circulation. Under his careful supervision and shrewd business tact the circulation was materially increased and the paper established upon a firm and substantial basis. In 1890 he entered upon the duties of civil engineer for the Connell Coal company, and in 1897 he was promoted by being transferred to the William A. colliery in Old Forge borough, where he assumed full control of the surveying and engineering departments, S. T. Jones being superintendent, and upon the merging of the interests of the Connell Coal company into the Lehigh Valley Railroad company, he was further promoted to the responsible position of superintendent of ventilation, which station he now holds. Mr. Davies' natural aptitude is for mines and mining, including surveying and engineering and as a mathematician he has few equals in Northeastern Pennsylvania. He has been eminently successful in solving problems published by the Colliery Engineer, having won first prize in many contests.

Mr. Davies is unmarried. His father, Thomas C. Davies, is fireboss at the Taylor colliery. His brother, the late David C. Davies, was for many years the civil engineer of the Seneca Coal company. His sister, Mary, is the wife of Attorney J. E. Watkins, the present efficient secretary of the Republican county committee. At the recent examination of candidates for the position of mine inspector, Mr. Davies was eminently successful and is now a candidate for that office before the Republican voters of the county at the primaries to be held on Tuesday, July 8,

Mr. Davies is a student in every sense that that term implies, and by his industry, faithfulness and character, he dence of his employers and his fellowworkmen. He has an unusually clear and penetrating mind; he is an ambitious man and a hard worker. He is energetic, diligent and forceful, and possesses a rare and attractive personality. Furthermore he is well endowed with one of the rarest and best of qualities-good sense. Republicans will make no mistake by voting for Mr. Davies, for he will bring and rare business and executive judg-

Programme of Interesting Exercises Presented in a Manner Most Complimentary to the School's Cultured Teachers, the Sisters of the Immaculate Heart of Mary-Class, Numbering Seventeen, Receives Diplomas from the Hands of Rev. P. J. McManus.

The tenth annual commencement of St. Paul's school, Green Ridge, took place last night, in the parish hall, in the presence of an assemblage that occupled not only all the seats, but all the available standing room.

Rev. P. J. McManus, pastor of St. Paul's, and all the people of the congregation are proud of and enthusiastic about their school and they have good cause to be. Last night's commencement exercises proved it to be an institution to evoke the pride and enthusiasm of any community. The manner in which the pupils acquitted themselves was certainly most creditable to their cultured and devoted teachers, the Sisters of the Immaculate Heart of

The members of the graduating class, numbering seventeen, presented the leading numbers of the programme, but the juniors, especially the infant classes, gave some very interesting exercises. The programme opened with an entrance march, participated in by all the members of the school, the music being rendered by the school orchestra, composed of Ethel Kennedy, Florence Tollman, Mary Dwyer, Bertha Harvey, Eugene Blake, Joseph McTague, Francis Lutz and Anthony Murray, violins Genevieve O'Donnell, Nellie McDonnell ind Anna Cadden, mandolins; Francis Costello, piano. Some pretty and difficult movements were executed, after which the pupils joined in a greeting chorus to the pastor, teachers, parents and friends. The most pretentious number was the operetta, "Florinda, or, the Rose and the Pearl," which was most admirably presented by pupils from the different classes. Katie Murray; Fortuna, the fairy queen, Marguerite Kelly; Vala, queen of the witches, Alice Kennedy: Yoringal, brother of Florinda, Joseph McTigue, Miss Margaret Jordan was planist. The singing, costuming and staging were all of a really artistic character.

"CUSTER'S LAST CHARGE.

Edmund Boyle recited "Custer's ast Charge," the junior boys accompanying in Delsartean poses, and then giving a picturesque and cleverly executed flag drill. Beatrice Hayden presided at the plane.

An exceedingly pretty number was a series of Delsartean poses and tableaux by twenty junior girls, illustrative of the sentiments of the songs, "The Palms" and "The Holy City," which were sung in excellent voice by John Lee, accompanied on the plane by Gen-

The senior and junior boys and girls presented an original patriotic sketch entitled, "St. Paul's Club," which opened with an exposition of the boy's familiarity with parliamentary procedure and ability to carry on discussions, and closed with a flag presentation at which the following programme was observed.

These marvelous people have brought from India by A. Koun and Academic Course-Margaret Mary Jor-lan. Christine Marie Doherty, Paul Zell tion at the Buffalo Pan-American and Charleston exhabition, and are appearing here in conjunction with the Elks' carnival.

Their specialty for which they alone excel comprises Hindoo magic, wonderful feats of juggling, Ceylon stick dances, and many other features too numerous to mention, but the fact that their exhibition alone has drawn crowds at every performance is the best proof of the excellence of their performance. The bright pleasant weather drew great crowds to the carnival yesterday afternoon. Last night the attendance was larger than had been anticipated. Everything was in perfect order vesterplano accompaniment, and a chorus, day and those who attended the carnival were highly pleased.

A Well Qualified Candidate for Additional Mine Inspector.

The reason why we need additional mine inspectors is because those of us who work underground need additional care and protection in our work. Are we then going to elect any one to that important and responsible position who is not well qualified for the position both in theory and experience? Is it not the most sober, diligent, careful, and experienced man we should have? The very best man that I know of for by Aloysius Grewer, while James Lof- the position is Mr. James M. Thomas of the North End, who is now the head foreman of the Storrs shaft. He has been in the employ of the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western for the las thirty-three years. He understands the work thoroughly at every step having passed through every characters sustained by Christine Doh- from a door tender and slate picker to the position which he now holds, having been mine foreman in the employ of that company for about seventeen years, at Bellevue, Taylor and Providence. He is a man of high intelligence sober, careful, of sound mind and thoroughly trustworthy, such a man as everybody would be perfectly satisfied to trust his life in his hands, so that every man and child may have their rights and fair play. Thus far he has given thorough satisfaction both to the company by which he is employed as well as the men who are employed under him. By looking over the list of the mine inspectors' examination held latey he came out the second, having reached over 97 marks. If this man is not worthy of the position and your vote I do not know who is. Any one who has an eye to his own welfare in the mines ought to vote for him. W. H. Williams, North End.
