What has Congressman Connell done for his constituents or his party that entitles him to the highest consideration at the hands of the voters?—Republican.

For one constituent he forgave the abuse of a lifetime and helped him to the office of county treasurer, a place which, as now run, by the withholding of city, borough and township license money, nets its incumbent upward of $20,000 a year. Evidently that has not entitled him to "the slightest consideration."

Nominate for an Election.

THE PURPOSE of a nomination should be an election.
To take unnecessary chances in the nomination of a candidate for an office which relates to national issues and duties would at this time be especially unwise.

It has been shown very clearly that William Connell as a vote winner in campaigns for congress is successful.
He has been elected three successive times. Before he entered the congressional field the custom had been for a Republican to be elected in presidential years and for the Democrats to win in the alternate campaigns. The nomination of Mr. Connell changed this custom. It established Lackawanna county as a safely Republican county. There is no reason to believe that Mr. Con-nell's nomination tomorrow would not be followed by his election in November. He would lead his ticket and help all the other candidates on the ticket.

The administration at Washington needs loyal and intelligent support in congress. For five years Mr. Connell has given it. He never missed a duty.
His reputation for loyalty and efficiency is established. The leaders know him and trust him. They want him returned.
The president expects him to be returned. The people of this district, we believe, share in these expectations.

Vote tomorrow to insure a continuation of efficient representation. Nominate for an election.

Not the least of William Connell's claims to another term in congress is the kind of terriers now barking at his heels.

The Regulation of Trusts.

ONE SIGNIFICANT note in the president's Fourth of July speech at Pittsburgh was his statement of belief that new legislation is needed to secure a just regulation of incorporated enterprises.
The president spoke tentatively as to details. Indeed, he gave no details; but from others sources it is learned that to Congressman Littlefield, of Maine, in conjunction with the federal department of justice, has been assigned the task of drafting such additional bills as may, upon careful consideration, appear desirable in order that the power inherent in the growth and concentration of great individual and corporate fortunes may be kept within bounds and made subservient to wise public ends.

From the tenor of the president's speech, as well as from his antecedents and character, it may safely be inferred that no mere juggling with the subject for demagogic effect is in contemplation. Theodore Roosevelt has none of the component elements of a demagogue. The fundamental quality in his make up is honesty—honesty of thought, honesty of speech, honesty of action. He believes in simple honesty between man and man. He disbelieves in trickery and fraud. His idea of legislation is that it should say what it means and be enforced on that basis.
He recognizes as both necessary and useful the large movements of federated capital and enterprise which characterize the economic life of the twentieth century; but he can see no reason in logic, law or expediency why the elemental requirements of good behavior should not be exacted of them within the same impartiality that constitutes the ideal of justice between individuals.

The only legislation now upon the federal statute books for the regulation of trusts, the Sherman anti-trust law, was enacted by a Republican congress, but it was a beginning and not a conclusion. Since it was enacted, great developments have taken place in our business life. Doubt has been cast upon the unqualified wisdom and advantage of unrestricted competition as a safe controller of business activity.
Instead, there has arisen the conception of unification of management and control of industry for economic purposes. It is not without grave dangers. One of these is that the centralized power which it involves may not be exercised wisely or equitably, but may become capricious, arbitrary and unjust. The problem is to safeguard it in the interest of the people. It is not an easy problem. Its solution cannot be accomplished hurriedly or in a spirit of class prejudice or passion. It cannot be worked out by brute force or by a matching of excess against excess.

Justice must be approached deliberately, carefully and firmly. The best judgment of conservative but honest and practical students of affairs will be needed to produce in legislation the safeguarding of what is useful and publicly advantageous in trusts and the outlawing of what is unwise, unfair and vicious.

In the light of experience, if this is to be done it must be done by the constructive statesmanship of the Republican party.

In the last minute of the dying session William Connell got the federal court bill through after each of his predecessors had failed. In similar manner he got through the resolution appropriating $90,000 for the enlargement of the Scranton government building. He is a congressman who works and one who accomplishes results.
Can the district afford to make a change?

Remedy Worse Than the Disease.

WE NOTICE that the Democratic newspapers throughout the country are gradually leading up to using the failure of the senate to enact Cuban reciprocity as an argument for the election of a Democratic congress. The fact illustrates the poverty of the Democracy in campaign material.

Republicans cannot defend those senators who bolted their party and knocked out, temporarily, an administration measure. But how is the name of common sense would it mend matters to elect a Democratic congress? The Democrats gave no help to the Roosevelt administration when it was trying to secure from the senate a recognition of the nation's moral duty to Cuba.
The Democrats talked big but not one of them would vote with the administration senators to pass the Cuban bill over the heads of the 19 Republican kickers. Had the Democratic membership of the senate been broad enough to put country above party, it could easily have made Cuban reciprocity a fact and spared the inhabitants of the queen of the Antilles the dire consequences which the Democratic press is now magnifying with a view to injuring the Republican party.

The plain fact is that the Democratic party as now led in congress is not worthy of the public's trust. It has no policies except making faces at the administration, its appointees, its policies and its achievements. A party of opposition is necessary to successful government, but it should have some plans and guiding principles. At present the Democracy in congress has neither. Its only purpose in life is to harry the heels of those in power, regardless of fairness, justice or decency. So long as this shall be its idea of the functions of a minority party it will not gain the confidence of a majority of the voters.

Nominate at the primaries the candidate whose record shows that he can win at the polls.

Much Ado About Nothing.

THE CHARGE of a discharged employee of Sir Thomas Lytton, that that genial sportsman raced for the America's cup solely to advertise his teas, has been widely exploited; but for the life of us, we cannot see that it amounts to anything. Of course Sir Thomas had an eye to business. If he hadn't he never would have worked up from poverty and obscurity to the rank and wealth which he now possesses. So long as he remains in business he will be foolish not to utilize every honorable expedient at his command to widen the publicity of his wares and increase the volume of their sales.
The cockney notion that it is undig-nified to advertise does not go in this country. We are happy to say. The Americans admire shrewd advertising.
They look upon it as a token of character and ability. Advertising on this side of the water is growing every year, both in volume and in ingenuity and effectiveness. The best intellects are being drafted into the advertising business—a business which has almost become a learned profession. And if Sir Thomas wants to combine a little advertising with his sport, what are the odds?

The only just criticism that could be brought against him would be in the event that he should neglect to advertise. That would clearly be censurable in the highest degree.

Don't forget that the primaries for the nomination of a congressman will be held tomorrow afternoon, at the regular polling places, between the hours of 4 and 7 o'clock. Be sure to vote.

The Republican party in Lackawanna county cannot afford to take any chances of losing this congressional district this fall. Until William Connell was sent to congress the Democrats had regularly elected their candidate every alternate term. Mr. Connell is the only representative the district has ever had who has won three consecutive elections. Nominate him tomorrow and he will be elected in November.

Every one of the prominent opponents of Mr. Connell has at some time or other been in debt to him for political favors. The American people have no use for ingratitude.

This district needs at Washington a congressman who can do things. William Connell is that kind of a man.
What he starts after he gets it if it is gettable.

A new step has been taken by Harper's Weekly. Its form has been changed to a more compact and convenient size; the number of pages has been increased and there has been a noticeable improvement in both quantity and quality of its letter press. Expansion is the order of the day.

Not counting the money voted for an athletic canal, the appropriations of the recent session of congress were only $20,000,000 more than those of last year, a difference fully accounted for by the fact that last year no river and harbor bill was passed. The record of the Fifty-seventh congress invites inspection and challenges attack.

Roll call of a few of the men William Connell has helped: John R. Farr, Joseph A. Scranton, John H. Fellows, and practically the whole Farr outfit.
You can't get the American people to warm up to ingratitude.

It is predicted that when the Democrats and Union party reformers complete their dickerer the combined ticket will be: Pattison, Guthrie and Coray. As well that as any other. They will lay out beautifully.

It will not take long to cast a ballot tomorrow afternoon, between 4 and 7 o'clock, for a competent member of congress, and those who want competency should not fail to attend the primaries.

Courage, common sense and a healthy belief in the underlying honesty and fairness of the American people were revealed in the president's speech at Pittsburgh. These are qualities that seldom fail.

The report is that Aguinaldo purposes visiting the United States. The freem market is slow now. This is certainly his chance.

The fact that Bourke Cockran is vehemently opposed to the Roosevelt administration will tend to increase its strength.

BETTER NOT EXPERIMENT.

It takes votes to nominate a congressman. See that yours is polled tomorrow.

From the Elmhurst Signal.
When the nomination of William Connell to congress was first made, he came before the convention and made a brief statement of his position, outlining his hopes and aims for the Republican party.
In concluding he promised to be "the servant of the people" in all things concerning their growth and material prosperity. He pledged his efforts for the people, and was ready to serve them with faithfulness and in all fairness.

How well Mr. Connell has kept his promise all know. In the five years of his service there never has been a time when he did not have uppermost in his mind the duty of doing his best for this congress district. Unlike new men who go to congress, Mr. Connell was at once recognized as a man to be given attention, and to be deferred to when he had a request to make for the advancement of the interests of the people of his district. Hence it is not to be wondered at that the district has been marked by a steady growth and a wide sweep. No action touching the interests of our people has been made in the past that has not had his individual force and careful watchfulness behind it.

This is a good record. Well has this man been called a "servant of the people." The right to be called "servant of the people."
And now the time has come for the people to say at the primaries whether this record of usefulness is to be continued. Surely "there is no uncertainty about the quality of representation which William Connell if returned to congress will give at Washington. In the past, it will be creditable and efficient. Mr.
Connell has served the district well enough to earn its confidence and retention. We believe that the people of this district of Lackawanna county is that they had better not experiment."

THE WORK OF CONGRESS.

Washington Correspondence Philadelphia Ledger.

Aside from the more important measures enacted at the last session of congress, and exclusive of the appropriation bills, a large number of laws were placed on the statute book of public interest and concern. The annexed list embraces the more important public measures enacted, exclusive of general appropriations:

and privates who had horses, side-arms and baggage taken from them by federal troops at and after the surrender at Appomattox.

Establishing a permanent census office.
Temporarily providing revenue for the Philippine islands.

Dividing the state of Texas into four United States judicial districts.

Amending the patent laws, so that all patents shall be issued in the name of the United States, under the seal of the patent office, and with the signature of the commissioner of patents.

Repealing war revenue taxation.

Promoting the efficiency of the revenue cutter service.

For the relief of bona fide settlers in forest reserves.

Providing an additional circuit judge for the Second judicial circuit.

shall apply as a defense for actions for the recovery of lands patented in severalty to any title of Indians.

To regulate the introduction of the eggs of game birds for propagation.

Allowing the Grand Army to occupy the new government printing office at Washington during the national encampment.

Protecting game in Alaska.

Dividing Alaska into three judicial divisions.

Regulating the issuance of passports.

Providing for the sale and disposal of public lands in certain states and terriories for the construction of irrigation works and the reclamation of arid lands.

Giving consent that the government of the Dominion of Canada may construct a dam across the St. Lawrence river from Adams Island to Les Gallopes Island, to improve the channel of the river.

To prohibit the passage of local laws in territories to limit indebtedness.
To fix the fees of jurors in United States courts.

To regulate commutation for good conduct of United States prisoners.
To refund taxes paid on legacies and bequests for the uses of institutions of a religious, charitable or educational character.

To secure plans and designs for a monument to Abraham Lincoln.
To amend the internal revenue laws in regard to storekeepers and gaugers.

Preventing consular officers of the United States accepting appointment from any foreign state as administrator or guardian, or to any office of trust, without first executing a bond to be approved by the secretary of state.

Increasing the efficiency and changing the name of the United States Marine hospital service.

To prevent the false marking or branding of food and dairy products.

To provide temporarily for the administration of the affairs of the civil government of the Philippine islands.

INAPPROPRIATE.

From Towanda comes the story of a very vivid meeting in a Quaker Methodist church. Worship there was primitive and simple; the emotions were given unrestrained expression. An old back-slider had been moving uneasily under the exhortation of the various lustylunged speakers, groaned once or twice as though in soul agony, and finally arose and addressed the assembly, thus:
"Brothers! Sisters! Do something for me!
I feel that I am going straight to hell!"
"Glory! Glory!" came from all over the church. "Help me, brothers and sisters!" went on the repentant one. "I know I am on the road to damnation!" The congregation seemed to feel that song was the one thing needful, and spiritedly joined in, when a sturdy backwoods basso tunefully roared out the opening lines of the stirring old hymn:
"If you get before I do, Just tell them that I'm coming too!"
