TESTING FIRE HOSE. Superintendent Ferber is Pleased with the Result. Superintendent H. F. Ferber, of the bureau of fires, spent yesterday in testing all of the department's fire hose. The test was conducted in front of the house of Engine company No. 1, on Franklin avenue. Superintendent Ferber was assisted by the men of this company, and details from every company in the city.

They worked almost constantly from 8 o'clock in the morning until 6 o'clock in the evening, and made the most thorough test of hose in the history of the department. The 5,180 feet of new hose recently purchased by the department of public safety easily stood the very heavy pressure of 300 pounds to the square inch. At the end of the day's work, Superintendent Ferber said he was thoroughly satisfied now with the supply of hose. "In my opinion, the fire department is now in better condition to meet any situations which may arise, than it has ever been," said Mr. Ferber. "We have about 7,000 feet of first-class hose, as proved by today's tests, and something like three thousand feet of second-class hose. This new hose is to be distributed fairly and squarely among the companies. No favorites will be played, but all wants will be fully supplied, and the wants are an evident fact. I have been notified, of late, by some of the companies that they only had 350 or 400 feet of hose."

Sixteen hundred feet of hose, which could not stand the required pressure, yesterday, was turned over to the street department, to be used for flushing purposes. The old hose was subjected to a maximum pressure of 140 pounds to the square inch. A large quantity of it burst at a pressure of only forty pounds.

SCAFFOLD COLLAPSED.

One Man Killed and Three Others, Who Were Working with Him, Were Injured.

Charles Thomas, of Larch street, fell from a scaffolding, which suddenly collapsed, at the power plant of the Rapid Transit company, on the site of the old North mill, and was instantly killed, about 6 o'clock last evening. Three other men, who were working with him, also fell.

Two of them, Adolph Tworek, of 1013 John street, and Nicholas Phillips, were taken to the Lackawanna hospital. The fourth man escaped with a few slight bruises, and walked to his home.

Phillips sustained contusions of the shoulders and foot, and was able to leave the hospital immediately after his injuries were treated. His companion was, however, more seriously injured. His scalp was badly lacerated, his chin cut, his right shoulder sprained and right leg severely bruised. The four men were working on a scaffolding, about forty-five feet above ground, at the power house, which is situated on the site of the old rolling mill of the Lackawanna Iron and Steel company.

Suddenly at 6 o'clock there was a spitting sound, as the wood of the scaffolding snapped, and the four men were hurled to the ground. Thomas struck head first, and his neck was broken by the shock. The Lackawanna hospital was notified, and Dr. George Lindsay responded with the ambulance. Coroner J. F. Saltry was notified, and examined Thomas' remains. He will hold an autopsy today, and an inquest at the Lodge "Protestant" hall.

It is the opinion of the judge in charge, however, that the collapse of the scaffolding was caused by the weight of the scaffolding, which was about 30 years of age. A wife and children survive him.

Mr. Harlow was on the night shift, and an accident happened about 5 o'clock. After receiving the injury he walked from the works to the office of Dr. W. G. Lent, on Sanders avenue. Dr. Lent amputated one of the fingers and dressed the injured member. Miss Ethel Gordon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Gordon, of Sanderson avenue, who is visiting at Corning, N. Y., was accidentally shot through the hand one day this week. Miss Gordon had gone with some friends to the golf grounds at Corning, and a bullet from a revolver, carelessly discharged by some person in the woods nearby, pierced her hand, breaking one of the bones.

FIRST BLOOD FOR COMPANY.

DECISION RENDERED IN RAYMOND WASHERY CASE.

Judge Newcomb Discharges the Rule for a Preliminary Injunction. Rights of the Company to Be Determined at a Final Hearing. Washery Can Continue to Operate. Hearing in the Case of Guernsey Against Guernsey—Five Trespass Suits Are Instituted.

Judge E. C. Newcomb yesterday rendered an opinion in the case of the Borough of Archbald against the Elk Hill Coal and Iron company, discharging the rule for a preliminary injunction by which the borough authorities, most of whom are striking miners, attempted to shut down the washery. Judge Newcomb's decision is that the conditions as revealed by the preliminary hearing do not warrant the intervention of the "strong arm of the law" in the summary manner petitioned for by the plaintiff. The case thus goes over until it can come up in equity court. By the time the case is in equity court, the strike will likely be at an end, and with the ending of the strike will come the ending of the case. Appended is the opinion of Judge Newcomb:

The defendant company pumps water from the Lackawanna river to its washery on the hillside just west of Main street, in the borough of Archbald. The water is used in the separation of coal from a large clime pile of that point, and after being discharged from the plant finds its way by the natural surface drainage to a water course which emerges from the street and runs along a street now known as Bohemian street. The water course then follows a ditch along Bohemian street to Main street and thence to the Delaware Lackawanna and Western company's canal. Just beyond the eastern end of the culvert it empties into the river. The plaintiff seeks to restrain this use of the ditch on Bohemian street, and the motion now is for a preliminary injunction.

SPECIFIC ALLEGATION. The specific allegation of the bill as to the effect of this use of the ditch is that large quantities of dirt and refuse are deposited therein, causing it to become obstructed and to overflow and thus to become a nuisance. This allegation is not sustained by the evidence taken at the hearing. The plaintiff, however, contends that the defendant's washery, children playing and traveling upon the street near the ditch may fall into it, and by reason of the volume of water flowing from the defendant's washery, they would probably drown. In addition to this she further takes the broad ground that the mere presence of the water from that source on the street is a nuisance, and that the street is a public highway and the use of the ditch for anything other than natural surface drainage is unlawful, regardless of the question whether it affects the use of the street or the convenience of the traveling public and the inhabitants of the borough.

On the 4th of January, this year, when the defendant company was ready to begin operations, the borough, by ordinance duly enacted, granted to the defendant, its successors and assigns, "the right to enter upon the main street at a point south of the Wayne avenue bridge crossing the Lackawanna river, and cross the same with a pipe and one-fourth inch steam pipe; the same to be laid under the street in such manner as not to impede the passage of persons and property thereon, with right to renew, relay and repair said pipes, or either of them, for such time as may be necessary in connection with the operation of the Raymond washery of said company." This grant imposed no conditions as to the discharge of the water after it passed through the water course.

THE DISTINCTION.

In the case so clear that we ought to issue the writ prayed for? It is to be remembered that there is a marked distinction between a preliminary injunction and an injunction. The former should only issue where the right of the plaintiff is clear and undoubted, and the danger of injury to person or property is imminent. Upon final hearing, when the defendant's answer is in, and the issue between the parties exactly defined, their respective rights can be determined with certainty.

The defendant's washery was erected and equipped at an expense of $50,000 at the foot of a culvert which discharges into ten million tons of merchant coal. This process of reclaiming and winning valuable coal has come into use in this region with the advent of the coal-belt, and has become an important industry. The defendant's venture is one of considerable magnitude which might be paralyzed by the granting of this special writ at the inception of the case.

But to guard against the possibility of accident to children by falling into the ditch we can issue an interlocutory order restraining the main question to be determined when the pleadings are all in and upon a full hearing. It is, therefore, ordered that within five days from the filing of this order the defendant adequately and securely cover the ditch heretofore constructed by it along Bohemian street, in the borough of Archbald, and the rule for a preliminary injunction is to be discharged.

GUERNSEY AGAINST GUERNSEY.

The hearing in the Guernsey injunction case was begun yesterday in court room No. 2, before Judge F. W. Wheaton, of Luzerne, who was called to specially preside, because of the local judges being busily engaged in preparing the opinions and orders to be handed down next Monday at the midsummer day session. The plaintiff is represented by Major Everett Warren, Joseph O'Brien and John F. Scragg. The attorneys for the defendant are ex-Judge J. W. Carpenter and R. H. Holgate.

Nearly all the testimony of the plaintiff was presented before adjourning time. The defendant's side will be heard today. The story of the case was told at length at the institution of the proceedings, last week. In brief, the complaint is this:

J. W. Guernsey, the veteran music dealer, proprietor of Guernsey hall, complains that M. W. Guernsey, who also conducts a music store, is putting out a piano which he labels "Guernsey," and in various ways endeavors to make capital out of the reputation of his namesake, the Guernsey hall man, who has made by seventeen years of advertising. In the injunction prayer, the plaintiff asks that the defendant be restrained from using the name "Guernsey" on his pianos, and compelled to make an accounting for the profits that have come to him from pianos sold on the strength of the name of "Guernsey."

A Prominent Educator's Opinion of the Science of Osteopathy.

A prominent educator and president of one of our eastern colleges recently said, in discussing the triumph of osteopathy and its future in America, "Yes, osteopathy is coming and coming very quickly. Osteopathy belongs to the higher civilization; it belongs to America and was discovered by a Missourian—'westward the course of science takes its way.'" No one can appreciate the future of osteopathy better than the prominent educators of the country—they recognize in it an important science which is destined to have a great future in the art of healing. If you are suffering from any chronic disease or deformity you should investigate osteopathy at once. DR. HERBERT I. MINERS WILL SOLICIT.

Committees Appointed to Make a House-to-House Canvass for Financial Assistance.

Financial aid for the striking miners is to be solicited personally from business men and all who sympathize with the strikers in this city and Dunmore. It was decided upon at a meeting of the district board, held yesterday. The soliciting is to be done by a committee of nine selected from the sub-district boards, as follows: West Scranton—Theophilus Phillips, M. S. Lavelle, George Watkins. Providence—R. E. Brink, P. J. Regan, John Indian. Dunmore—William Fitzsimmons, John Fitzsimmons, Peter Sawyer.

District President T. D. Nichols and Secretary-Treasurer John T. Dempsey will sign and put the district seal on each canvasser's book, as a means of forestalling possible fraudulent collectors. Each contributor is requested to examine the credentials of the collector and to personally see that name of the contributor and amount of the contribution is entered on the book.

This plan of a house-to-house canvass for aid is to be followed in all the cities and large towns of the region. It was said in New York dispatches after the meeting of coal presidents in New York, Tuesday, that Vice-President E. E. Loomis, of the Delaware Lackawanna and Western company, who is in charge of the mining department, was to be sent here to size up the feasibility of breaking up the strike by starting up a few collieries here and there.

Mr. Loomis was here yesterday, and had conferences with various superintendents of his own and other companies. A good part of the afternoon he was elected with General Manager S. B. Thomas, of the Temple Iron company, of which President George F. Baer, of the Reading, is president. Mr. Loomis returned to New York last evening without discovering himself to reporters.

Honors were even, yesterday, between the operators and strikers. The Hancock washery of the Ontario and Western company, at Throop, got under full swing, and the Nay Aug washery, at Dunmore, by reason of defect was compelled to shut down. The Oxford, Cayuga and Dickson collieries continued to work, yesterday, without interruption. Teamsters are reaping a harvest selling the Oxford output to local consumers.

The Delaware Lackawanna and Western company abandoned the Halstead mine at Duryea. The pumps have been removed and the water is rapidly filling it up. Superintendent Tobey said, yesterday, the chances are that the abandonment is permanent. Nearly all the coal has been taken out of the tract which the Halstead taps. The Bellevue washery is to be immediately rebuilt. General Superintendent Phillips was on the scene yesterday, directing the work of clearing up the debris of the fire. He declared that coal would be turned out from the rebuilt washery inside of sixty days.
