

A SCHOLARSHIP FOR SOME YOUNG LADY

One of the Liberal Offers Made Through The Tribune's Educational Contest.

THE WILKES-BARRE INSTITUTE DESCRIBED

Designed to Give to Girls and Young Women a Thorough Training in All the Essential Branches of Learning—Habits of Self-Control and Self-Respect Are Encouraged in Each Pupil—Centrally and Pleasantly Located—Easily Accessible for Students from Scranton and Vicinity—Class Rooms Well Ventilated and Lighted—Has Four Departments: Academic, Preparatory, Primary and Kindergarten—The Tribune Offers Free Tuition in the Institute for Three Years—A Scholarship Not Available for the Young Men—Yesterday Was a Great Day in the Contest—The Result in Detail.

AMONG the scholarships secured by The Tribune, and offered as special rewards in its Educational Contest, there is one which will appeal particularly to the young ladies. It is in the Wilkes-Barre Institute, at Wilkes-Barre, Pa., and covers the tuition charges for three years.

In selecting the scholarships to be offered in this, The Tribune's third Educational Contest, an endeavor was made to secure one in some institution that would be particularly attractive to young ladies, and which would be open only to them. It was particularly fortunate that an arrangement could be made with an institution of such high standing so near by, as Wilkes-Barre, so close to Scranton as to make the offer almost a local one, and the particular advantage of the Wilkes-Barre Institute are fully set forth in the article which follows.

WILKES-BARRE INSTITUTE

History of the School. Wilkes-Barre Institute was chartered in 1854 by the Presbytery of Luzerne and placed in charge of a Board of Trustees. The purpose of the institution was to offer to the girls and young women of Wilkes-Barre and vicinity good opportunities for the study of languages, ancient and modern; history, literature, art, science, and civiliation. The school was carried on without interruption until 1872, when it was temporarily closed.

In 1876 it was reopened and in the following year Miss Elizabeth H. Rockwell, a teacher of wide and successful experience, took charge of the school, retaining the principalship until the close of the academic year, June, 1889, through the devotion and wisdom of Mrs. Rockwell the school gained during the long administration a firm and strong foundation of scholarship and character.

Aim of the School.

The present aim of this school is to give to girls and young women a thorough training in all the essential branches of learning and in those subjects which cultivate the mind. In the belief that health—that is, normal physical development—underlies all successful intellectual and moral effort, a department of physical culture has been introduced into the school, and the utmost attention is paid to all matters appertaining to health. An earnest effort is made throughout the entire course of instruction to enable the pupil to use her mental powers independently and effectively.

The government of the school is so conducted as to encourage in each pupil habits of self-control and self-respect. Upon each one rests the responsibility of showing herself trustworthy in all her relations with teachers and fellow-pupils.

The ultimate aim, then, which is constantly kept in view, is, through physical, mental and moral training, to develop character.

Resident Pupils.

In order to make the privileges which this school offers accessible to students not residing at Wilkes-Barre or its immediate vicinity, suitable provision was made for a limited number of pupils.

The growth and development of each student will be a matter of constant interest and consideration on the part of the principal.

The home life is arranged with a view to making it pleasant, healthful and helpful, and only such restrictions are placed upon the pupils as are deemed necessary for the general welfare of the household.

The school has, during the past and previous years, received pupils from adjoining towns, many of whom are among its graduates, and have done honor to it and to themselves by good scholarship.

It is the aim of the managers to make the school desirable for day pupils, as well as for the residents of Wilkes-Barre. The electric cars and railroad trains afford easy and inexpensive access to the school. Hot lunches are furnished daily at recess. A house is provided for the storage of bicycles.

School Building—Its Location.

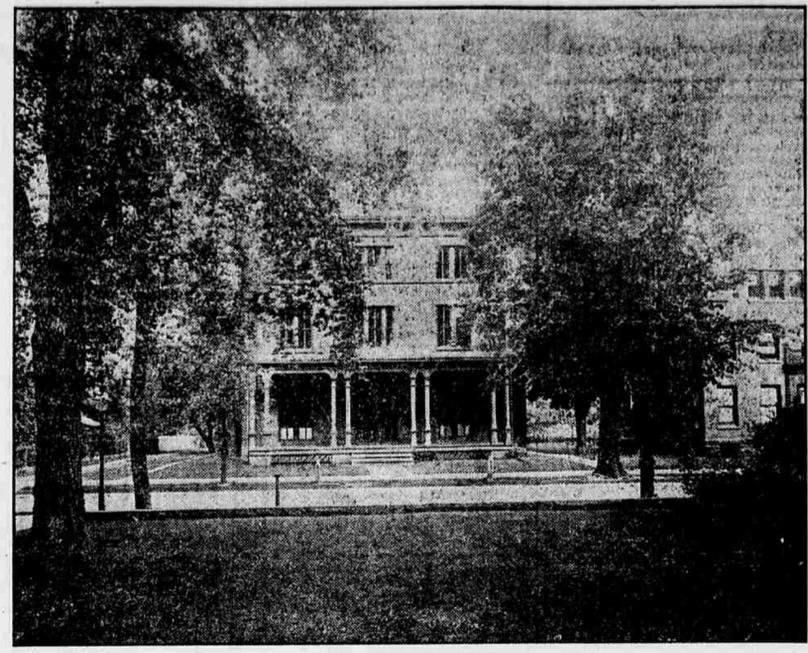

The school building is centrally and pleasantly located on South Franklin street, Wilkes-Barre. Directly opposite is the Osterhout Free Library, with its beautiful and spacious reading room and its constantly increasing supply of carefully selected books. The students of the school may enjoy its privileges to the fullest extent.

The class rooms are well ventilated and lighted, and are provided with slate blackboards.

For the younger classes of the intermediate department Chandler adjustable chairs and desks have been furnished.

The school possesses a fine compound microscope, charts for the study of physiology and botany, a magic lantern with slides for the illustration of lessons in art, history and geography. Recently a complete set of geographical maps, one hundred stereoscopic views and a large number of photographs and plaster casts for the department of art have been added to the school equipment.

The nucleus of a school library has been furnished by the gift of the Alumnae Association of the school.

Four Departments.

The school has four departments: The Academic, the Preparatory, the Primary and the Kindergarten.

The Academic Department provides a broad and thorough education for two classes of young women: (1) those who prepare for college; (2) those who intend to complete their studies in this school. To both these classes of students the school aims to give the best advantages that a well-ordered plan of study and a carefully chosen faculty can furnish.

The courses in the Academic Department are partly required and partly elective. The required courses include those which are regarded as of greatest importance in laying a strong foundation for further intellectual work.

The elective courses give opportunity to the individual student to shape her work with a view to the furtherance of future plans. Those who intend to prepare for college must elect the courses needed to meet the college entrance requirements. Those who do not intend to go to college may elect any courses which the curriculum offers, but their choices must be submitted to the principal for approval.

Special attention is paid to preparation for Barnard, Bryn Mawr, and Radcliffe examinations. The certificate of the school is accepted at Mount Holyoke, Smith, Vassar and Wellesley.

School and College Certificate.

Four four-hour courses per year, or their equivalent, are required for graduation from the Academic Department. Students who complete four years of attendance in the Academic Department, but who do not accomplish the entire amount of work required for the diploma, may receive a certificate stating the amount of work satisfactorily done in each subject.

Students intending to enter college from this school must give notice of such intention at least two years before graduation. The principal reserves the right in all cases of determining whether the certificate of admission to college shall be given. The school diploma does not carry with it the college entrance certificate.

Intermediate Department.

The Intermediate Department gives thorough training in the fundamental subjects of education. The needs of individual pupils are constantly considered and are met as far as possible. French and German are elective throughout this course, but it is recommended that if only one modern language be taken during the years of the intermediate course, that French rather than German be chosen. Latin is begun in the fourth year.

Primary Department.

The Primary Department receives pupils at the earliest school age. The branches taught in this department are geography with sand-table work; nature studies, with constant illustrations by means of pictures and objects; reading, by the rational method, and with supplementary reading at home; music; drawing; and physical culture.

The Kindergarten receives both boys and girls. The older Kindergarten pupils are taught the beginning of reading and writing, in addition to the regular Kindergarten subjects.

Rooms in the school building have been fitted up as a gymnasium, and the work has been placed in charge of Miss Maude Van Horn, a graduate of the Sargent School of Gymnastics, Cambridge, Mass.

Application for Admission.

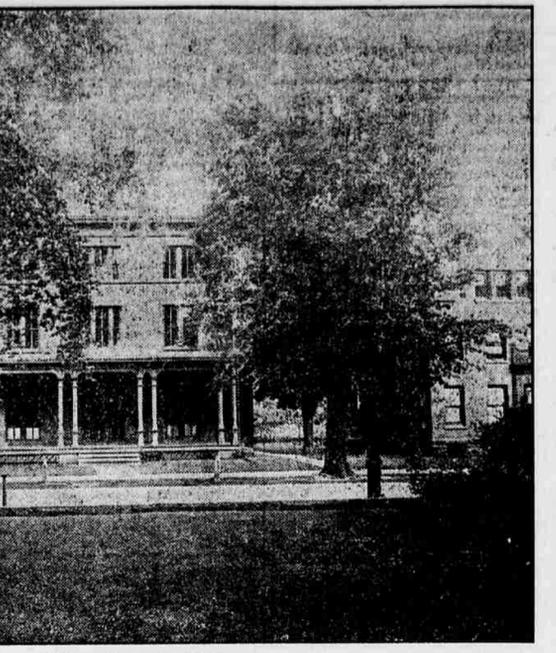

Application for admission to any of the departments of the school should be made to the Principal. Parents are urged to co-operate with the Principal in the endeavor to promote habits of regular attendance—without which satisfactory results are impossible—and to secure faithful preparation of lessons and a proper subordination of other employments and interests to the work of the school.

Studies in Academic Department.

The following are the studies in the Academic Department, which is the course selected by The Tribune in offering its scholarship to the young ladies in connection with the Educational Contest:

First Year—English Themes, English Literature, Latin, History of Greece, Algebra, Drawing and Painting, Elective—French, German, Greek. Second Year—English Themes, English Literature, Latin, History of Rome, Geometry, Drawing and Painting, Elective—French, German, Greek. Third Year—English Themes, English Literature, Latin, Modern History, Botany, Elective—Advanced Mathematics, History of Art, French, German, Drawing and Painting. Fourth Year—English Themes, English Literature, Elective—Latin Science, Constitutional History, with Civil Government and Current History, being made among the leaders in the main table. The most important advance was made by Miss Jane Mathewson, of Factoryville, who brought in twenty-five points and went up from twenty-first to sixteenth place, where she is but one point behind Miss Beatrice Harpur, of Thompson, the highest young lady in the list. William Sherwood, of Harford, did almost as well as Miss Mathewson, scoring twenty-four points, which put him in tenth place, only a few points behind ninth, and it also gives him a good hold on second place among the leaders for August.

Logic, French, German, Drawing and Painting.

Preparing for College.

Students intending to go to college should decide as early as possible which college they are to enter, in order that the most advantageous arrangement of studies may be made for them.

In the Academic Department no course will be regarded as completed until a satisfactory examination of the work undertaken has been passed.

The Faculty.

The following are the members of the faculty: Helen L. Webster, Ph.D. (Zurich University), Principal—Greek, Latin. Amy Gerecke, B. S. (Cornell University)—Mathematics, Science. Marian E. Lance, B. A. (Wellesley)—Literature, History.

Anna M. Olett (Hollins Institute, Virginia)—Arithmetic, Geography. Ernestine Martin—French, German. Sadie Brown-Albright—English Literature, Art. J. Willis Conant—Singing. Katharine Stocks (Oswego Training School, Advanced Course)—Primary Department.

Helen Santee (Scranton Kindergarten Training School)—Kindergarten. Maude H. Van Horn (Sargent School of Gymnastics)—Physical Culture.

The Tribune offers a scholarship in the Wilkes-Barre Institute for three years, with tuition charges paid, to the young woman who, by her success in this Educational Contest, is entitled to a choice of the scholarship.

EXCLUSIVE OFFER TO YOUNG WOMEN

A Scholarship Which the Young Lady, Who is Highest in the List of Contestants at the Close, is Sure of Winning.

No young man in The Tribune's Educational Contest can select the scholarship in the Wilkes-Barre Institute as a special reward, as only young ladies are admitted to that institution. This makes it absolutely certain that some young lady among the list of contestants will secure this valuable reward, no matter how many young men finish ahead of her. Of course there are other scholarships which are open to both young men and young women, but this is exclusively for the latter, and it is well worth securing. It does not include board and room, but this is hardly necessary as the student can reside at home and easily go to and from school daily.

Twenty-eight of the thirty-three scholarships offered are available to the young ladies in the contest, among them being those in Syracuse university, Williamsport Dickinson Seminary, Dickinson Collegiate-Preparatory School, Keystone Academy, School of the Lackawanna, and the Cotuit Cottages. There is a great opportunity for some of the young ladies here, and parents and friends of those who are now in the contest, or who may enter later, should do all that they can to encourage them in their efforts to secure an advanced education.

Early in the contest the ladies did not take a very active interest, but they are beginning to realize what is within their reach. Last year it was a young lady who was at the very top when the contest ended, and it is quite possible for the same result to be accomplished this year before the contest closes on October 25. Twelve weeks before the close the young lady who won last year had not scored a point, and the present contest has still eleven weeks to run. There may be some wonderful changes before these eleven weeks are passed.

This would indicate that there is still time to enter, and the best means for making a canvass are still ahead.

FOUR CONTESTANTS MAKE GREAT GAINS

There Are Many Changes Among the Leaders in Both Tables—Two Young Ladies Advance.

Yesterday the contestants in The Tribune's Educational Contest did some great work, several important changes being made among the leaders in the main table. The most important advance was made by Miss Jane Mathewson, of Factoryville, who brought in twenty-five points and went up from twenty-first to sixteenth place, where she is but one point behind Miss Beatrice Harpur, of Thompson, the highest young lady in the list. William Sherwood, of Harford, did almost as well as Miss Mathewson, scoring twenty-four points, which put him in tenth place, only a few points behind ninth, and it also gives him a good hold on second place among the leaders for August.

Rodriguez, Herbert Thompson, Maxwell Shepherd, Chas. W. Dorsey, Wm. Sherwood, L. E. Stanton, J. A. Havenstite, Frank B. McCreary, Miss Beatrice Harpur, Homer Kregg, Miss Jane Mathewson, Harry Madden, Hendrick Adams, William Cooper, Lee Culver, Grant M. Decker, Fred Kibler, Walter Hallstead, Harry Danvers, Louis McCusker, Hugh Johnston, Miss Edna Coleman, Miss Mary Yeager, Eddie Morris, C. J. Clark, Louis Gere, John Mackie, and Grant Williams.

Miss Edna Coleman made another advance, going up two more places, where she occupies twenty-seventh position, and is tied with two others for twenty-fifth.

Herbert Thompson, of Carbondale, added thirteen points to his score, but did not advance in the main table, although he is rapidly closing up the gap between him and sixth place.

Other contestants who brought in points were Charles Burns, of Vandling; J. Newton Hawley, of Green Ridge; L. E. Stanton, of Scranton, 2, and Albert Freedman, of Bellevue, 1.

Among the August leaders, the two contestants at the top of the list and Mr. Burns were the only ones who retained their positions. Miss Mathewson made her first appearance in the table, going to fourth place, while Mr. McCreary took seventh. Herbert Thompson went from fifth to third, while the others were obliged to fall back, the two nearest the bottom being crowded out.

LEADERS FOR AUGUST.

THE FIRST AMERICAN REVOLUTION. TEXT OF LAFRENIERE'S DECLARATION OF REPUBLICAN PRINCIPLES. A REMARKABLE DOCUMENT WHICH PRECEDED BY EIGHT YEARS THE DECLARATION OF INDEPENDENCE WRITTEN BY JEFFERSON. IN SIX CHAPTERS—CHAPTER VI—CONCLUSION.

IN VIEW of the closely succeeding events in American history, the declaration of republican principles by Lafreniere constitute a most interesting and remarkable document. This declaration was issued at New Orleans, Oct. 29, 1788. It is the preamble to the statement of grievances made by Lafreniere, as attorney general and senior member of the Superior Council of the colony of Louisiana, at a session of the council on the date above given. Following is the text of the declaration: Without population there can be no commerce, and without commerce no population. In proportion to the extent of both is the solidity of thrones. Both are fed by liberty and competition which are the nursing mothers of the state, of which the spirit of monopoly is the tyrant and stepmother. Without liberty there are but few virtues. Despotism breeds pavidity and deepens the abyss of vices. Man is considered as sinning before God only because he retains his free will. Where is the liberty of our planters, of our merchants, of all our inhabitants? Protection and benevolence have given way to despotism. A single authority seeks to absorb and annihilate everything. Without running the risk of being taxed with guilt, no man of any class can longer do anything but tremble, bow his neck to the yoke and kiss the ground. The Superior Council, bulwark of the tranquility of virtuous citizens, has supported itself only by the combined forces of the probity and disinterestedness of its members and of the confidence of the people in that tribunal. Without taking possession of the colony, without registering as was necessary, in the Superior Council his titles and patents according to the laws, forms and customs of the colony, and without presentation of the act of cession, Senor de Ulloa has caused a president, three counselors and a secretary nominated for that purpose, to take cognizance of facts which belonged to the jurisdiction of the Superior Council, and in which French citizens were concerned. Often did discontents and fiercest animosities seem to force you to resign your places, but you have always considered it as a duty of your station of counselors to the Most Christian King to alleviate and calm the murmurs of the oppressed citizens. The love of your country and the sense of the justice due to every citizen who applies for it have sustained your zeal. It has always been rendered with the same exactness, although you have never thought proper to make representations of the infractions of the act of cession. You have always feared to give encouragement to a mass of discontented people, threatened with the most formidable calamities; but now the whole body of the planters, merchants and other inhabitants of Louisiana apply to you for justice. Let us now proceed to an accurate and scrupulous examination of the grievances, complaints and imputations contained in the representations of the planters, merchants and other inhabitants. What sad and mournful pictures do these statements call up before you? The scourge of the last year, a suspension to this day of the payment of seven millions of the King's paper money, issued to supply the calls of the service and received with confidence by the inhabitants of the colony had obstructed the ease and convenience of the currency, but the activity and industry of the planter and of the French merchant had almost overcome all difficulties. The most remote corners of the territories held by the savages had been discovered; the fur trade had been carried to its highest development; the new culture of cotton joined to that of indigo and tobacco, secured
