

WEST SCRANTON

Marriage of Thomas A. Harris and Miss Margaret Gray—Funeral of the Late Robert Evans—Other Notes and Personals.

Thomas A. Harris, of Filmore avenue, was united in marriage to Mrs. Margaret Gray, of Keyser avenue, at the home of Rev. Edward Howell, on North Lincoln avenue, Saturday at noon.

The ceremony was a very quiet affair, the couple being unattended. The bride was charmingly attired in a gown of steel gray. Immediately after the ceremony the contracting parties were driven to the home of the bride's parents, where a reception was held. Mr. and Mrs. Harris, on their return from their wedding trip, will reside in West Scranton.

Burglars Failed to Appear.

The sisters at St. Lucie's Italian Catholic church, on Chestnut street, sent a telephone message to the West Side police station on Friday night requesting that an officer be sent to the church immediately. Almost the entire West Side force were down on Scranton street raiding the Cooper block, so Acting Lieutenant Kluh Peters went to the church.

After much work he succeeded in opening the church door and inside the church found the sisters very much frightened. One of them assured the lieutenant that she had been warned that thieves would break into the church that night and so she wanted the protection of a police. A member of the police force remained all night, but no thieves appeared.

At the Churches.

At the evening service of the Tabernacle church last night the pastor, Rev. D. P. Jones, preached an English sermon on "Sympathizing with the Sufferings of Christ." Mrs. D. Lewis, of North Scranton, rendered a beautiful solo at the conclusion of the service.

Hearing," respectively at the Sabbath services of his church.

Rev. James Benninger, pastor of the Embury M. E. church, delivered an eloquent and thoughtful sermon on the text, "The Harvest of Our Own Sowing," last evening. Rev. Benninger handled his subject in a most pleasing manner.

Rev. E. B. Singer, assistant pastor of Elm Park church, preached the morning sermon at the Simpson M. E. church. In the evening the pastor, Rev. Hugh C. McDermott, preached as usual.

Rev. S. F. Mathews occupied the pulpit of the First Baptist church as usual yesterday. At the close of the evening service the Lord's supper was celebrated, this being the last at which Rev. Mathews will officiate as pastor. The Sunday school attendance is very large and many men members have been added to the Baptist Young People's union.

Rev. D. F. Edwards, of Taylor, preached two excellent sermons at the Sabbath services of the First Welsh Baptist church. Next Sabbath Rev. Abel Parry, D. D., of South Wales, will occupy the pulpit. Rev. Parry is one of the most noted divines in Wales.

Three Funerals.

The funeral of the late Robert Evans, a well-known resident of this side, who died Thursday morning at the family home, 333 North Summer avenue, was held Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Rev. Hugh C. McDermott, of the Simpson Methodist Episcopal church, officiated and spoke in eulogizing terms of the life of the deceased. The floral tributes were many, and several appropriate sacred hymns were sweetly rendered by Miss Hower and Mrs. Shoemaker. Interment was made in Forest Hill cemetery.

The funeral of the late John Wilkins, of 905 Luzerne street, who died on Thursday evening from a complication of diseases, was held at 2:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon. The home was crowded with the many friends, who came to pay the last tribute to the memory of the departed husband and father. Rev. D. P. Jones, of the Tabernacle church, had charge of the services, and told of the Christian life and exemplary character of the deceased. The casket was buried beneath a wealth of beautiful flowers. A quartette from the Plymouth church sweetly sang several selections. The funeral cortege moved to the Washburn street cemetery, where the remains were laid at rest.

The funeral of the late Miss Anna Hogan, the 16-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Hogan, of Jackson street, who passed away Thursday at the Scranton private hospital, after a three weeks' illness, was held at St. Patrick's church at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon. After the friends had taken the last farewell at the home, the cortege moved to the church, where services were held.

Services were conducted by Rev. Father Dunn. Interment was in the Cathedral cemetery.

DUNMORE.

Many queries are heard as to why it is necessary that all the windows in the postoffice should be closed during the distribution of the several mails. A person wishing to buy a stamp under the present plan is sometimes compelled to wait a half hour before the distribution is completed and the window opened.

The running of Drinker street cars through the corners at the speed at which most of them now go is going to some day be fraught with serious consequences. In their eagerness to get the lights at the corner of Drinker and Blakely streets the men forget the safety of their passengers or that of pedestrians. Should a car coming down Drinker street ever meet on the curve at what is now ordinary speed, it would certainly result in loss of life and be a great monetary loss to the company.

COMPLEX RELATIONSHIP.

The Tangle Made by Two Families Straightened Out by a Lawyer.

From the Nashville Banner.

Nashville has a lawyer, who besides being a good lawyer, has a penchant for hunting up and solving intricate problems of genealogy. He said today that he had read most of those problems which annually make the rounds of the press, but some months ago he accidentally ran upon one of the most difficult cases of this class right here in Nashville, in the Valentine and Stinnett families.

After many hours of hard work the lawyer solved, to his own satisfaction, the family relationship, and he furnished a reporter with the solution, as follows:

"Henry Valentine married Martha Noble. They had five children, one of whom, Cora, married James Stinnett, and they had seven children. Henry Valentine's first wife died a number of years ago, and he soon thereafter married her sister, Fannie Noble, and they had six children born to them.

"About three years ago Henry Valentine died, leaving his second wife and two sets of children. About one year ago Cora Stinnett, wife of James Stinnett, died leaving her husband and seven children. Just one month thereafter James Stinnett married Fannie Valentine. James Stinnett and his wife still live together with his seven children, her six children by Valentine, and her five stepchildren of Valentine's.

"They live in Marks street and he works at the E. & N. Manufacturing company. Now, what relation is James Stinnett to his wife's children? What relation is Mrs. Stinnett to her husband's children? What relation is James Stinnett to his wife's stepchildren? What relation is his children to her children and to her stepchildren?

"Stinnett is the stepfather of his wife's children; he is also brother-in-law to them because they were half brothers and sisters of his wife; he is also a cousin of theirs by marriage because their mother and his wife's mother were sisters; Mrs. Stinnett is the stepmother of his children; also a great-aunt, as she was a sister to their grandmother. His children are brothers and sisters to her children, because their parents are husband and wife.

His children are stepchildren of hers; they are also grandchildren because she was the wife of their grandfather. She is likewise their great aunt because the sister of their grandmother. He is the wife's husband; her step-son-in-law, because he was the son-in-law of her husband. She is his aunt by marriage, because she was the sister of his wife's mother. He is his father-in-law's brother-in-law because his present wife is the sister of his father-in-law's first wife. He is his own step-son-in-law because he is the husband of his step-mother-in-law, and for the
