RELIGION THAT IS PRACTICAL

DR. J. C. BATESON MADE IT TOPIC OF SERMON.

Filled the Pulpit of Rev. James Hughes in the Adams Avenue Chapel Yesterday Morning-Mission of Life Is Not Simply to Make a Living Here but to Secure a Welcome in the Great Hereafter Through Strictest Obedience to God's Law.

Dr. J. C. Bateson filled the pulpit of the Adams avenue chapel yesterday morning in the absence of the pastor, Rev. James Hughes. Dr. Bateson's topic was "Practical Religion, or Essentials to a Successful Life," spoke as follows:

Life is real, and its benefits are ex-tended to all who comply with certain requirements. It is natural for mankind to provide as far as possible the necessartes of life, in harmony with the law of demand and supply. Northing is created by God in vain. Every need or desire may be gratified. We recognize the boun-tiful provision made to satisfy our sense of seeing, hearing, smelling, tasting and feeling; and when th efunction of either of these senses is destroyed, an important feeling; and when the function of either away. And we have almost conclusive evidence to prove that the same is true in regard to the future state of man, for he instinctively believes there is an im-mortal life, but if he refuses or neglects to secure a right or claim to this im-mortal bliss he is of all creatures become the most miserable. The little birds are made aware of the fact that there is a bright and sunny land to which they may go, on the approach of winter. Man also knows through the teaching of Holy Scripture, that there is a more lasting abode prepared for the righteous be-yond the grave; if it is not so, why this longing after immortality? The mission of life is not simply to make a living here ,but to secure a welcome in the great hereafter through obed-lence to God's law. We know that here we have no continuing city but we seek one to come; and in order to gain an entrance to that celestial city, we must be prepared to overcome the obstacles in the way; hopeful enough to scout, rout, and unnihilate discouragements.

HEALTH.

To be well and happy while passing along the journey of life, history and ob-servation indicate that we must comply with physical as well as spiritual laws The law of health is one of the great es-sentials to be observed in a successful life; for a sound body and mind is a fit-ting foundation for all that is high and noble in human achievement.

The care of health in youth is the best assurance of a long life, as early attention to religion is the true basis of a immortal existence. "How shall we es cape if we neglect so great salvation?" An existence begun under the wisdom and benign influences of the Christian religion "has the promise of the life that now is, and of that which is to come practical knowledge of our being leads to large results, and we know that these cannot be realized without proper health. Good nature and health are generally associated, as shown in the example of a father who came home from Wall street ruined man; the family were in tears, for everything they had was to be taken from them; but said a boy of ten, "Why, mother, they can't take away the nice times we've had." "What shall separate us from the love of God?"

That which promotes health or prevents disease should not be considered trivial; for in sickness we are worthless to our elves, a care and burden to others; our time is lost as well as that of those in atendance; and in such condition, life how-precious is waste Fine houses, bright homes, admiring friends, and millions of money, cannot mitigate a single pain, cool a burning fever or procure restful sleep. "The way To be always well is an attainable bless ing—the uniform result of self-denial, temperance, and an industrious life. A good laugh is anti-dyspeptic, but a dependent the one on the other, hence TRAINING THE YOUNG.

This life is but a school in which to learn how to live and prepare for the existence beyond the grave. "Train up a child in the way he should go, and when he is old he will not depart from it." The education of youth should commence with the grandmother, for it takes about two generations to eliminate the plebelan, common or vulgar, from the constitution of the person.

The power of mind has more controlling influence over the bodliy temperaments than is generally supposed. Theferore it is evident that parents and teachers of the youth should not only be Christians and scholars, but gentle in their bearing, kindly disposed and pure in sentiment. And there is not better, safer, easier, or surer way of saving children from the debasing influences, corrupting associa-tions, victous and hurtful practices, than to make home attractive. A kind and cheerful disposition is the sunshine of the home, as well as of the soul. Children should be taught to remember their Creator in the days of their youth; and if they are to be kept well and happy, they must have a good example set before them BIBLE TRUTH.

Without the Bible the world would be n spiritual darkness. Truly it is a lamp to our feet and a light to our pathway. Bible truth is a balm in every human weakness, if its principles are kept canstantly in view; for with a firm religious faith, the sorrows of life, its disappointments and tears, lose their bitterness and become forgotten in the contemplation, that "God is love."

CHRISTIAN LIBERTY.

Our Maker, whose distinctive appella-tion is "love," cannot have intended that man's condition on earth should be slavery; therefore the man who makes himself a slave to business, or money getseria slave to business, or money get-ting, so as to have no enjoyment, worth speaking of in anything else, is not an-swering the end of creation. #### NEW TEMPLE IS ALMOST COMPLETE

New Temple on Madison Avenue.

It is expected that the new temple [ woodwork is in red oak, and the this city will be formally dedicated ither September 16 or 18, and arrangements are now being made to bring to the city eminent Hebrew divines of national reputation, who will speak at he services

Rev. Dr. Hirsch, of Chicago, is expected, as well as Rev. Dr. Leonard Levy, of Pittsburg, and a number of other leading ministers. The temple tself is now practically complete, and by the first of next month will be ready for furnishing. The building, a cut of which accompanies this article, is one of the nandsomest, although not argest, synagogues in the state.

It is situated on Madison avenue, near Vine street, and the lot has a sixty-foot frontage. The building itself is eighty-five feet deep by forty-five wide. A Moorish style of construction was adopted in its structure, and the its general outlines, of an Oriental nosque, this effect being considerably chanced by the turreted superstructure, and the large copper dome.

The sub-structure of the building is of heavy gray stone, and the general superstructure of Baltimore pressed brick. The front portion of the temple is, however, finished in striking ouff-colored stone work. The porch is inished in white enameled brick, with a handsome white tiling to correspond. Three polished granite shafts support the coping of the porch.

From the porch, one enters into the vestibule and thence into the temple proper. This room is eighty-three feet long by forty-one wide, and is over twenty-five feet high. The internal decorations, which have not yet been completed, will give an effect of simple splendor, white and gold blending harnoniously.

At the rear of the auditorium, a balony has been built, which, combined with the main room, will give the apartment a seating capacity of about five hundred. The greater part of the of the reformed Jewish congregation of carved beams along the white walls are to be gilded. The chancel is in the fore part of the auditorium. Two flights of stairs lead up to it from the rooms below. The holy ark is stationed at the rear of the chancel, and is constructed of white poplar, finished in gold. The altar is yet to be installed here. On either side of the temple is one large and several smaller memorial windows, which have been purchased by members of the congregation who will erect memorial representations of loved ones.

These will take the form of stainedglass allegorical figures, suitably inscribed. Another window is to be placed above the ark, and a very large of the building, cut in the form of a star, enclosed in a circle.

The iceture room, which may also be used on occasions as a dining room, is fortyone fect wide by fifty long. A ladies' parlor, twenty-one feet wide by fourteen long, adjoins this, and a hall, five eet wide by fourteen long, separates the parlor from the kitchen and serving room, which is fourteen feet wide by eighteen long. A check and storage room has also been provided, nineteen feet wide by nine feet long. Five class rooms adjoin the lecture room, ach thirteen feet square, and all provided with accordion doors.

The building was built from plans drawn by Architect George W. Kramer, of New York, Contractor Conrac echroeder, of this city, was in charge of the construction of the building, and Cleary Brothers are attending to the lumbing, gas fixtures and steam heatng. Smith & Co., of Philadelphia furnish the stained glass for the windows. W. C. Conwell, of this city, has supervised the work since it was begun last September.

who makes business a pleasure and the ing, elevating and blessing those about HAPPINESS.

WORK IS ESSENTIAL TO LIFE. Man was made to work, and it is his dignity, just in proportion as it is a means to an end of a useful, honorable, and re-"The world owes me a living," is a common saying with certain people.

But they need only ask themselves,
What have we given, or what have we done for the world, to entitle us to such support? An equal fallacy is recognized in a lazy fellow's complaint, that he could not find bread for his family. "Nor I, either, "said his industrious neighbor, "I have to work for it." Bread that is won by the sweat of the face is sweeter to the toiler, than is the bread of idleness to the rich.

A friendly recognition by word or deed is a heart-felt comfort to the sad and weary laborer; then let kind words be spoken and hearty hand-shakes given to all honest tollers; for labor is manly, and merits the respect of every true citizen. Such is the Almighty beneficence, that blessing was mingled with the original curse. "In the sweat of thy face shalt thou eat bread," for work is made an interest and pleasure for what it brings, and they are glorious things; health, strength, sleep, the enjoyment of eating and drinking, the comforts of a happy home, and leisure to prepare for another

GOOD SOCIETY.

The stimulus of agreeable society is immeasurably better than the stimulus of strong drink or tobacco; the stimulus of a Christian home than the stimulus of a ciub or ball room.

The sait of the sea preserves it from corruption; the sait of the human body prevents decay; and it is the moral sait—the preservative influences of the Christian religion—which upholds social existant religion rel ence, sustains all civilized governments, and prevents the extinction of nationali-ties; for we read that five righteous men could have saved a city.

And the principles of the moral government of the Almighty are the same through the ages. "Righteousness exalt-eth a nation, but sin is a reproach to any people." The enemies of Bible religion are dangerous to good society; their influence tends to poison, corrupt, and destroy; and wherever they habitate to-gether, they live more and more in unre-straint, until anarchy and crime in their mbst degrading and horrid forms reign rampant; without religion society has no guarantee, decency no protection, law no power, and virtue no safeguard.

Although perfect happiness is not general, yet there are those who live from year to year under circumstances of very

"Since I have known the Gospel, I have been happy as an angel," said Lady Hastings to the Countess of Huntingdon. This was not a happiness of continuous ecstacy, but of that quiet, abiding kind, which so materially adds to the length of temperal life. "The Lord will bless his people with peace." It is fret and worry, mpatience and spasmodic fits of passion which bring gray hairs and hasten the wrinkles of old age. The outwardly prosperous are not always the inwardly seene; while the unfortunate may have hat "peace which passeth all understanding," when their trust is in God.
That person is the greatest who love God and does the most good to humanity

Whatever of an undesirable disposition a man has today without money, he will have tomorrow, however rich, unless his heart is changed; hence the Scriptural injunction, that all our ambitions should begin with this; "Seek first the kingdom of God and His righteousness."

SATISFACTION IN DOING RIGHT. It must be an incalculable solace in old age and in the last hours on earth, to be able to think of kind words spoken and benevolent deeds done. This being true, the more good a person does the greater the consolation. To live well is a glory, to die well is bliss. In the final hours of mortality it is doubtful if there is any real enjoyment, except in the consolation of the Christian religion; therefore we should think of these things. As Prince Albert of England, who was accomplish-ed, cultivated, refined, and illustrious, approached the dark river, he said to one at his side, "I have had wealth, rank and power, but if these were all I had how wretched should I be now"; and then ex-

ARCHIE ADAMS ESCAPES FROM COUNTY JAIL.

Was Employed as Assistant Cook and Took Advantage of His Access to the Store Room to Cut an Opening Through Heavily Barred Window Through Which He Took French Leave Last Night-Was Serving Nine Months' Sentence for Larceny Imposed June 9.

Archie Adams, a prisoner serving ine months' sentence at the county all for larceny, escaped last night, between 8.30 and 9 o'clock, after having sawed his way to liberty through two three-quarter inch iron bars.

Adams was sentenced on June 9 last to nine months' imprisonment, having been convicted of stealing various articles from the barn of Dr. R. H. Gibbons, on Wyoming avenue. He had been serving as assistant cook at the jall since he was brought to that institution, and this employment gave the conceptuality to effect his esthree-quarter inch iron bars. him the opportunity to effect his es-

Adjoining the kitchen is a store-room, from which open two windows onto the Washington avenue front, about ten feet south of the main entrance. These windows are four feet high and about nine feet from the floor, and, like all basement windows, they are half below the surface of the ground and half above.

When the round-up was made, Adams was found to be missing, and a search by Keepers Weisman and Graves failed to reveal his whereabouts.

When it became known that he was missing, Mrs. Kelly, the matron, suggested examining the store-room windows. She had seen Adams looking out of one of them on Saturday night, and when she asked him what he was doing there he said he was merely looking out on the street.

An investigation showed that two

An investigation showed that two perpendicular bars had been filed in two at the bottom and partly filed at the top and then broken off, leaving an opening about 12x14 inches. The wire netting outside the window had been broken from its fastenings and pushed aside.

Sheriff Schadt, who had come over rom Lake Ariel at 8.15, was notified and went at once to the jail. A search was made of Adams' cell, but no trace of any tools could be found. A chest which he kept in the store-room was broken open, however, and a fine file, one has been placed in the front part twelve inches long, was found. This was the tool used by Adams in cutting his way out, as long nails were run The basement will contain a large through holes at each end, affording beture room, meeting rooms, Sabbath him an opportunity to get a firm pur-

DOLAN BADLY HURT.

Fell Backward Into a Cellar Entrance at Henry's Hotel in North Scranton.

James Dolan, a resident of Oak street, met with a serious mishap while sitting on the porch in front of Henry's hotel, on Brick avenue, last evening, Dolan, accompanied by John Loftus, were sitting on a railing which proects the entrance to the cellar, when Dolan, thinking that their was something back of him that he could rest against, leaned back and fell into the cellarway.

He dropped about ten feet onto a oile of old glass and other debris, rendering him unconscious. Dr. John J. Stanton was called, and upon examination found that Dolan was suffering rom an injured spine. The doctor adised that the patient be removed to the Lackawanna hospital.

At 10 o'clock last night is was stated by the hospital authorities that Dolan was resting comfortable.

OUR PETS" ROUGHLY HANDED. Scranton Team Showed Them the Way Game Is Played.

The biggest crowd which has assembled at Athletic park in years to watch an amateur base ball game, gathered Saturday afternoon and saw the Scranton Amateurs defeat the Carbondale Crescents, in a game too one-sided to oe interesting.

Between two and three hundred enthusiasts accompanied the Crescents down from Carbondale, and attempted to cheer them on to victory. But it wasn't a day upon which victory was to perch upon the standards, of "Our Pets," as the team is known in Carbondate.

They played a brand of ball which was to say the least, not gilt-edged. "Our Owney" McAndrew, who Carbondale cranks claim could be easily elected mayor of the city, for his base ball prowess alone, essayed to pitch for the pets. The Scranton sluggers found him for thirteen hits, for a total of twenty-one bases, and sorrow and gloom pervaded the countenances of he men from the little city of churches. "And they call them 'Our Pets'!" one Scranton rooter cruelly gibed, as local ascrunners were filing across plate in an apparently never-ending

Frantz, who was the star of the game, from a Scranton standpoint, executed one of the prettiest plays ever seen on the local diamond, in the ninth nning. Loftus was on first, one man was out, and McAndrew at bat. The pitcher who wanted some revenge on Fox, who was pitching splendid ball for Scranton, swung viciously at one of the first balls served to him. A terrific line drive resulted, and the ball shot towards third like a flash.

It was over Frantz's head, but the third baseman sprang high in the air, and pulled the drive down with his un-gloved hand. He quickly recovered his balance, and sent the leather over the diamond, in time to nip Loftus at first and close the game. was: Scranton, 12; Carbondale, 3.
