The cause of the affair was John Camoskey, who was following people and making things generally disagreeable for them. Patrolman James Thomas was notified and went back to arrest the man. Upon being placed under arrest, the man drew an ugly looking knife and attempted to stab the officer. He would probably have succeeded, but for a timely rap on the head with the Patrolman Thomas started for the police station with the prisoner, but was soon surrounded by a large crowd, of which a woman and a man were the most active in their efforts to compel him to release his prisoner. The officer held on to the prisoner, the woman held on to the officer, and the man held on to all three of them. At this critical period, Michael Grant came to the officer's assistance and helped him to bring the prisoner in. In the meantime, someone had telephoned the police station for help, and Patrolmen John Thomas and Harry Bradshaw responded, but arrived too late to render aid. The fellow was finally brought to the police station and locked up.

Caught Between the Gates.

About 8 o'clock Saturday evening, the horse and wagon which carry the mail from the West Scranton postoffice to the central city was caught between the gates on Lackawanna avenue, and a bad mix-up resulted. When the wagon reached the Lackawanna tracks the gates were down, but after a few minutes wait they were raised and the mail wagon started to cross.

Almost immediately, the gates were put down again, holding the wagon on the tracks. The driver, supposing a train was coming down the main track, hall, Saturday evening. A large num-ber of Crusaders were present, and attempted to turn around, but as he did so, a train of cars backed into the quite a number of new ones enrolled switch at Luther Keller's yard. The horse became frightened, turned, tipped Jenkins, Lottle Jones and Louise Evans over the wagon and threw out the driver and two gentlemen who were ated. with him. The gates were raised in the meantime and the horse started Margaret Friend received high comdown the avenue, but was captured about a block away.
