RULE GRANTED YESTERDAY.

In the Case of John Jenkins vs. Rushbrook Coal Company.

A rule calling on the plaintiff, John Jenkins, to show cause why a re-arrest should not be held in the case of Jenkins vs. The Rushbrook Coal Company was granted by Judge Edwards yesterday. The rule is made returnable September 15. The petition for the rule and the argument on it were made Monday afternoon. The defendant, the Rushbrook Coal Company, and Attorney Hannah for Mr. Jenkins. The rule cannot be decided except in open court, on account of the fact that to keep the record accurate the decision of the court must be handed down in open court. There will be no court sitting until that date, when the September term of common pleas will open. The rule satisfies the defendant company, but it acts as a stay to prevent Jenkins from issuing an execution to recover his judgment for $10,000, which the court awarded him. In case the rule to hold a rehearing is discharged, the case will be appealed to the Supreme court.

THEY WANTED TO PUT THE WOMAN IN JAIL

Mrs. McHale Says It's All Due to the Fact That Her Husband Works at a Washery.

Mrs. Annie McHale, of Priceburg, was arrested yesterday and taken before Justice of the Peace Sliniski, where she was held in jail to answer a charge of perjury and two of surjury of the peace. The prosecutor in the perjury case, is Adama Sovinski, and in the surjury cases, Mary Ann Lewis and John Meuhol. Mrs. McHale was also fined for alleged violation of a borough ordinance against drunkenness and profane talk, and in default of the fine and bail was committed to jail.

Mrs. McHale says that her husband is working at the Raymond washery of the New York, Ontario and Western company, and because of that she has suffered all manner of indignities at the hands of her neighbors, who, when every form of oppression known to them had been exhausted, turned their attention to putting her in jail. The charges enumerated above were for the purpose of bringing this about.

When General Manager Bryden, of the company, heard of the case, he requested the company's attorneys, J. E. Burr and Joseph O'Brien, to have her brought before one of the judges, where he became security for her appearance at court. An appeal was also taken from the summary conviction before the magistrate, in the matter of violation of the borough ordinance.

PRIMARY WAS VERY LIVELY

TIMLIN AND HENDRICKS CLAIM THE DELEGATES.

Both Say They Have Enough of Delegates to Be Nominated at Olyphant on Thursday—Democratic County Meeting Has Fixed September 16 as the Time for Holding the County Committee—Primaries on September 13—Senatorial and Legislative Convention to Be Held.

There was a red hot battle for delegates at the Democratic primary in the Fourth legislative district yesterday afternoon. The fight was, of course, between the Hon. P. E. Timlin and T. E. Hendricks, and few preliminary fights have been more bitter. Jermy, the home of both candidates, was the storm center, and there the friends of the candidates fought with stubborn zeal.

Last night, Timlin claimed a total of fifty out of sixty-five delegates, and said he would be a certainty at the Olyphant convention Thursday. Hendricks made almost similar claims. He says that Carbonate city and township and Pell township is, to a large extent, solid for him, and that in the other parts of the district he will also make a big showing.

ANOTHER BILL OF THE LONG AGO APPEARS

It Is a Claim for Four Hundred Dollars and Is Made by Constable J. C. Moran.

Among the batch of bills which were received yesterday by Controller P. W. Costello, from the auditing committee which met Monday night, was one for some $400 by Constable John C. Moran.

The committee refused to give the bill any consideration, as its members assert that the claim is now a matter of ancient history, and was settled long since. It was contradicted by the controller, when E. J. Robinson was city controller. A number of constables' bills were then held up by the latter, who regarded them as exorbitant.

A compromise was finally arrived at by which the controller signed warrants for amounts which he thought the services rendered were worth, and received from the constables receipts in full. Moran's bill was for about $1,200, for serving papers in the Twelfth ward.

His receipt was received with those of the others, but all these important bills of papers have disappeared, as was announced some time ago, when Constable Ryan brought action against the city to recover the balance he claimed was due him. Attorney McGinley, who was then city solicitor, had been investigating the matter, the vouchers had been removed, which he filed and the whereabouts of the receipts was and remains a mystery.

Ryan's claim was finally allowed, the auditing committee sanctioning it and the controller signing the warrant. Chairman D. W. Vaughan of the auditing committee has stated that Moran's bill would not, under any circumstances, be allowed.

"There was some excuse for paying Ryan's bills," he said, yesterday. "The latter claimed he had signed his receipt in full, under protest, but this argument cannot be advanced in the Moran case. The committee has simply refused to consider the bill."
