At Weirs, Where a Grand Army Re-Union Is Held, a Crush Nearly Ends in Disaster-Police Unable to Control the People Anxious to Get a Glimpse of the President. Speeches of the Day Are Received with Great Favor.

By Exclusive Wire from The Associated Press. Newbury, N. H., Aug. 28.-President Roo welt tonight is the guest of Secretary of State Hay, whose summer home is situated a few miles from here along the shores of Lake Sunapee. The secretary and his daughter met the president upon his arrival and joined with the assemblage in extending him a hearty welcome.

The president delivered a brief address to the townspeople, in which he thanked them for their greeting. He then entered Secretary Hay's launch, Nomad and steamed to the Fells,

The day was replete with the miscarriage of arrangements. At the Weirs, where the grand army reunion was held, the people, in the excess of their desire to accord the president a fitting reception came near causing a crush which might have resulted disastrously. As it was, the president was for a time in the midst of a howling, surging mass, and was all but carried off his feet. So inadequate was the police arrangements that the crowd had entire control of the situation and much relief was expressed when the president, after reviewing the veterans was escorted into the hotel veterans was escorted into the hotel for lunheon. Arriving at the stage from which he was to speak, the president received the geratest ovation of the day. The president said:

Mr. Mayor. Men and Women of the State of New Hampshire: It is a great pleasure to me to be able before you this afternoon and to thank you and to thank the others in your beautiful state who have greeted me cordially today. As the mayor pointed out, you of New Hampshire have made out, you of New Hampshire have made your state—you and your forefathers—what it is, because you have not shrunk from effort and from toil.

Now, it is just the same with a nation as it is with an individual. The nation that seeks only for ease, is a nation which leave but a slight mark in the record of the great events of mankind.

The heroic times in this nation's career The heroic times in this nation's career were when it had great work to do, and, instead of flinching from the work, did it; and it did that heroic work in part because at the hour of need it showed it possessed heroic virtues, the heroic virtues that a great and generous nation must show and win show in the crisis of its history; and also because in addition to the heroic virtues which can be used but once in a generation, it had those commonplace, hunfidrum, every-day virtues which save us year in and year out. Here in this state the forefaiters of

Here in this state the forefathers of your people, as the mayor has si came to a region where only the strongest and bravest could have wrought success out of a griping need, where only those iron of heart and steel of brain could have wrested this country from the wilderness and from the savage. Since then, you who have built so well upon the founda-tion laid deep by your forefathers—you have done it by hard work. It is, in the long run, the man who counts. Just exactly as in war, though you have got to have the best weapons, yet they are useless if the men behind them don't handle them well; so in peace, the best constitution, the best legislation, the greatest natural advantages will avail greatest natural advantages, will avail nothing if you have not the right type of citizenship to take advantage of them. Something can be done—by legislation, by constitutional or ordinary legislative bodies, and

If any man tells you that he can advance a specific by which all the evils of the body specific will be made to disap-pear, distrust him, for if he is honest, he knows not what he says. Mankind has moved slowly up through the ages, stumbling, haiting, rarely by leaps and hounds generally by a low and pointing bounds, generally by a slow and painful progression. The millenium is a good way off yet, and we are going to succeed now, if, as I believe, we shall succeed by showing eactly the qualities which our fathers showed when in great crises they

There is not any more possibility of remedying all of the ills, social, economic, political, of the body politic by some pat-ent device now than there was such pos-sibility in 1776 or in 1861. The men who won in the Revolution and made this country take its place among the nations fall, as well we deserve to fall, if we approach them in a spirit of envy and ran-cor and malice toward our fellows, we will not only fail, but we will drag them and us in a common ruin. Face the prob-lem; realize its gravity and then approach it in a spirit, not merely of determination to solve it, but of hearty desire to solve it with justice to all, with malice to none; to solve it in a spirit of broad kind-liness and charity; in a spirit that will keep us ever in mind that if we are to succeed at all, it must be by each doing to the best of his capacity his own business, and yet by each remembering that in a sense he is also his brother's keeper. At the conclusion of his remarks, the president at once re-entered his carriage and drove to the station, where

By Exclusive Wire from The Associated Press, Berlin, Aug. 28.-The entry of King Victor Emmanuel into the city today and his drive through the Unter den he took the train for Newbury, at Linden was advanced purposely half an hour before the published time, as a precaution against possible disorder. 'onsequently, the great crowds which were packed into place an hour before by the police at the Brandenburg gate were astonished by the arrival at a brisk trot of a gorgeous cavalcade surrounding a six-horse carriage, in which sat Emperor William and a small man, in a dark uniform, pulling at a blonde moustache. The carriage stopped, and the crowds ceased cheering in order to see what would happen. The chief burgomaster, Herr Kirschner, advanced and read an address of welcome from a parchment scroll.

Behind the burgomaster stood, bareheaded, a hundred representatives of the city in evening dress. The reading war over in less than a minute. The young ladies advanced on the other side of the carriage and gave the Italian king a bunch of roses. He smiled, bowed, buried his face in the blossoms, handed the bouquet to a lackey, and the cavalcade and carriage swept Linden to the castle, three-quarters of a nile away. The cheers of the people were spontaneous and cordial. They seemed so to Generals Corbin and Young and their party, who had a row of good windows. This target consists of three platforms supported on casks, about 75 feet long in all, outside of which, one at each end, are two yellow flags, representing the two tur-fets of the 500 foot battleship. Outside of these again are two red flags, representing the ends of the same ships. Steaming bows on for the float, when 1.000 yards away, the secretary presses

Each boat fired two torpedoes simultaneously from her port broadside, as her tubes here, firing while close to the De-catur. Of the twelve torpedoes fired by them, one from the Stockton hung by the tail from the tube, with head in the ter, and finally wrenched the tail off, but not before it had been secured. THE COAL OUTPUT IS INCREASING DAILY

A Council of War Is Held at Headquarters at Which the Advisability of Sending the Balance of the Twelfth Regiment to the Panther Creek Region-Ninth to Succeed the Twelfth.

By Exclusive Wire from The Associated Press.

Wilkes-Barre, Pa., Aug. 28.-The officlais at miners' strike headquarters here have settled down to the belief that there is no immediate prospect of an early settlement of the strike. While President Mitchell would not say anything himself, some of his subordinates were of the opinion all along that the return of J. Pierpont Morgan to this country would bring about a change in the situation favorable to the miners. But the developments of the last few days have entirely dispelled this optimistic view and now all that is heard is:

"It is a fight to the finish." At the offices of the local coal companies the information is given out that the output of coal in the Wyoming region is increasing daily. This is stoutly denied at strike headquarters, and the minutes of a meeting of the employes of the Avondale mine, held yesterday, on file at President Mitchell's headquarters, show that none of the hands formerly employed at the colliery have returned to work.

Council of War. Shenandoah, Pa., Aug. 28.-A council of war, which was participated in by Colonel Clement and the brigade staff, was held at headquarters tonight, at which the advisability of sending the other battalion of the Twelfth regiment to the Panther Creek region was considered. After receiving the report of Major Gearhart to the effect that the disturbance had subsided, it was decided that the battalion should remain here for the present.

If it becomes necessary later on to take the balance of the Twelfth regiment away, it is understood that the Ninth regiment will succeed it here Panther Creek Quiet.

Tamaqua, Pa., Aug. 28.-After a day of intense excitement the situation in the Panther Creek valley has quited down and tonight the troops are enjoying a well earned rest. This evening Company K, of the Twelfth regiment under the command of Captain Heim escorted the non-union men to their homes in Lansford, Summit Hill and Coaldale upon their return from work. While large crowds of strikers gathered on the streets there was no hostile demonstration. Tonight the officers of the Twelfth regiment stated that the Second battalion of that command, now stationed at Shenandoah will be ordered here tomorrow unless the situation is great-

Clement, in temporary command of the detatchment of the National guard in the field issued an order to the troops on duty in the Panther Creek valley calling attention to a recent act of the legislature providing a penalty for the calling of obscene names. He directed that the officers in command rigidly enforce the provisions of the act. John King, Timothy King, John Kelly and James Martenns, four of the men captured by the troops this morning were released this morning.
