Wil-liams, one of the deacons of the church, who was very nositive that Mr. During who was very positive that Mr. Davies had not apologized. Excerpts from the evidence of Mr. Williams follow:

Q. Do you remember a conversation between him (Davies) and B. Hughes?

What did B. Hughes say? A. He Q. wanted him to make an apology, so he could have some report to take to the business meeting. Q. He asked him to make an apology

Q. You tried to get him to be peni-tent and say he was sorry? A. That is what we did; called him there and talked to him a long time there, and Mr. Hughes said to him, "Just say you are sorry and we will take that to the business meeting." and he (Hughes) said, "I think that will cover it." Q. He had already said that in the let-ter he wrote, had he not? A. No. Q. Didn't you always go at him with the proposition that all you would take from him was the declaration that he was sorry? A. No. we even would take that; we were willing to take anything. "That The Tribune did not mistake the facts is shown by the above.-Editor
