Doctors are not infallible and there are Doctors are not infallible and there are many instances where they have decided a case was hopeless and then the patients astonished everyone by getting well and the sole cause of their cure was Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy. A case in point is that of James Lettuce of Cana-joharie, N. Y., who writes: was dearer to him than the apple of joharie, N. Y., who writes: "Some years ago I was attacked with pains in my back and side that were fearful in the extreme. I could not control my kidneys at all and whatcame from them was mucous and blood. I was in a terrible state and suffered intensely. A prominent physician of Albany, N. Y., decided that an operation was all that would save me. I dreaded that and com-menced to take Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy. I felt better almost instantly. When I had taken about two bottles, the flow from the bladder was much cleaner, the pain stop-ped, and I was saved from the surgeon's knife and am now well."

Dr. W. H. Morse, the famous physi-cian of Westfield, N. J., has this to say of this great medicine:

"I have known it to cure chronic inflam-mation of the kidneys, where the attending physician pronounced the case incurable." No form of kidney, liver, bladder or blood disease, or the distressing sicknesses so common to women, can long withstand the great curative power of this famous specific. Its record of cures has made it famous in medical circles everywhere.

his eye."

First Presbyterian. Dr. McLeod's topic was "Behave as "itizens," and he took for his text the words found in Phil. 1:27, as follows: "Behave as citizens worthily." His remarks were as follows:

This exhortation is appropriate on this memorial occasion. It is just one year ago today that our nation was called to mourn over the death of our beloved president, William McKinley. As a citizen, he behaved himself worthily. He practiced this apostolle precept during his public life, as well as on his bed of death

This exhortation of St. Paul embodies both patriotism and picty. He believed that Christians occupy a position that invests them with the responsibility and the privileges of a dual citizenship. Our citizenship is in heaven, as well as on carth. William McKinley was profoundly convinced of the truth of this doctrine, and he acted accordingly. He believed that he owed a duty to the state as well as to the church, and to the church as well as to the state.

He did not plead his heavenly citizen hip as a reason for neglocting his earthly duties. He was a true patriot, as well as a true Christian. He did not believe as a true Christian. He did not reflects that the time which Christian citizens give to civic duties is wasted. He be-lleved in the elective franchise, and he did not neglect the "primaries." He be-lleved that the best way to prevent bad elections is to prevent bad mominations. lections is to prevent bad nominations. He believed that if we have it in our power to prevent bad nominations, we have no right to complain if bad nominces are elected. He believed, with one of England's greatest statesmen, that "we ought to cultivate our minds and bring the dispositions that are lovely in private life into the service and conduct so be patriots as not to forget that we should so be patriots as not to forget that we are Christian gentlemen." He believed that high public office is a place of power and responsibility, and that he who sleeps upon his watch deserves to be censured, as truly as the traitor who goes over to the enemy. Believing these things he behaved himself worthily as a citizen, and he took a deep interest in politics, and in statesmanship, and in education, and in commerce, and in everything that bore upon our country's happiness and prosperity. William McKinley was a law-abiding citizen. He had no sympathy with law-lessness. He believed in giving to every citizen the largest degree of liberty con-sistent with rightcons law. He would use, if necessary, the whole power of the state and nation to guard and defend the lib erty of every American citizen. He would not permit a pack of idlers to insult, and browbeat, and terrorize a band of will-ing workers. It was his wish that all classes should behave as citizens worthily, and no man is worthy of the name of an American citizen who will revile his neighbor or interfere with him in the discharge of his duties.

This is a point that some persons in this region would do well to consider, for they are not behaving as American citland the behave. Like William E. Gladstone, our William McKinley was a man of tireless energy and of lofty pur-pose. Like Mr. Gladstone, also, he knew how to adapt himself to times and seasons and circumstances. If he changed his mind in repeal of some political quesions, it was because of changed ch
