PUNCHING BY ELECTRICITY. Novel Use of "Magic Touch" by Western Cowboys to Drive Cattle.

From the Philadelphia Press.

Cow punching by cowboys under the pictruesque conditions of wild western life will soon be a lost art. Electricity is taking the cowboy's place, and re ports of its success in this novel field credit the new agency with remarkable Rebekah, entertained the members of success. One of the largest packing firms in Kansas City employes electricity to drive cattle into the beef beds,

The electricity is applied by means of two insulated wires, connected with through a stick and connects with two brass points on the end. "Punchers" is the name given the sticks. DRUGS KILL MORE THAN DISEASE

The leading doctors say: "There are more deaths caused by drugs than disease; it every one would keep his or her system fortified with an invigorating stimulant and tonic and leave drugs alone the death rate would be lowered."

Statistics show that these doctors are right, and this is why all leading doctors prescribe Duffy's Pure Mait Whiskey exclusively for Consumption, Grip, Bronchitis, Asthma. Catarrh, Coughs, Dyspepsia, Maiaria and all low fevers, Nervous Prostration, Female Troubles, Sleeplessness and Weskness from whatever cause; all these diseases are caused by a run-down condition of the system.

Mr. and Mrs. Adam Livengood, of Elverson, Pa., who have been married 65 years, say Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey has prolonged their happy union many years beyond their silver wedding. Mr. Livengood is 81 years old and his wife is 84. They are both hale and hearty, and feel vigorous as a couple 50 years of ago.

Mrs. Matilda Watts, who is 63 years of ago, says Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey cured her of grip and has kept her strong and well.

"I suffered terribly with the grip, and tried every known remedy. Changes of weather always found me in bed, and I often felt as it life was not worth the living. Picking up a newspaper one day, I read of the great benefit derived from the use of Duffy's Malt Whiskey, and sent for a bottle. The beneficial effects were almost instantaneous. The terrible lassitude with which I had suffered so long disappeared. I was completely cure and have felt no bad after-affects, and today, at the age of 63, I feel as though I was only 30.

and twenty-five volts of electricity are turned on, enough to make a sharp, stinging sensation, without leaving a mark or bruise on the beef. The work of punching is done in one-half the time and with half the exertion. The effect of the magic touch on the steer is amusing to see. A steer touched on the left hip imme diately throws his hind quarters as far as he can to the right. Then he cocks one ear straight ahead and one straight back, switches his tail and starts straight ahead. He don't care for a second attack. The electricity speaks to him in a language he doesn't understand. There is a look of surprise in his eyes, and he seems to know that all the trouble lies in the end of that stick. He doesn't stop to get mad or howl. He has urgent business at the other end of the pen. That is exactly where the drivers and knockers wan him. The new method completely does away with all back rushes and dragging in with chains, for just as long as the puncher is behind the steer is just as far as he can get in front. The saving of time and bruised meat are also items to be considered. MARSH HUNTING.

A Rare Sport Which Is at Its Best in September. From Country Life in America.

Shooting in the greenwood is more or less difficult because of the foliage

but along the seacoast and on the oper marshes sport is at its best. Septem ber brings the great flight of wanderers, the yellow-legs and plover and their smaller cousins, the sand-pipers. Yesterday the marshes stretched flat and brown, a desolate waste over which a fish crow croaked dismally and a night-herron labored with heavy wing. This morning as you set your decoys and established yourself comfortably in your snug blind an hour before sunrise, out of the dusk north and east and west comes the clear piercing whistle of yellow-legs and the long-drawn, plaintive call of the black-breasted plover. Above the white sand dunes rises the red rim of the sun. Before its broad shafts the hosts of the night flee to the distant hills. The browns and greens of the marshes assert themselves. Hark! Those whistlers are in the creek-bed a mile away. You take out your little tin call and reply. Presently you know that the birds are a-wing. Call for call they answer. You can see them now, a dozen specks against the skyline far up the marsh. Nearer they come and louder and clearer becomes the whistling. In splendid flight, they are passing. Now for your art as a caller! Carefully the little tin whistle talks for you. The birds reply. A few coaxing notes bring doubtful inquiries. Then the birds see the decays and swing to them sharply. Now must the little tin whistle talk to them unceasingly. What does it say? Only the birds know. All the air is filled with their whistling as they wheel over the decoys. Now the long legs drop and the equally long wings meet above their heads as they alight among the decoys. It is the moment you have waited for. The good gun speaks, and speaks again. Then as sounding the alarm, the survivors take wing, the begins again. The birds hesitate, circle, then back they come. So the day passes. Now it is a flock or mayhay a single bird, a yellowlegs, a curiew, a black-breasted plover sweeps across the marshes, and as the sun breaks out again, behold each and paprika blade of grass tipped with a diamond. On one side low sand dunes shut out the sea. On the other side in the far is the level stretch of brown marshes and cut by winding creeks. These are the environments of a sport with
