ILLITERATE VOTERS. Comprise 11 Per Cent. of the Total Number in the United States. From the New York Sun.

There are 21,300,000 inhabitants of the United States of voting age and 2,300,000 of them, or about 11 per cent, were returned on the last census as illiterate—a very large proportion for a country in which the opportunities for education are universal.

An examination of the figures shows that contrary to the general belief, it is not the foreign-born voters who cause this percentage to be so high. The proportion of illiterates among the foreign-born voters in the United States is 11.5 per cent., whereas among the native-born inhabitants the proportion is 10.5 per cent.—not a very important difference.

The part of the United States in which there is least illiteracy is the group of states which made up the middle west and northwest. Iowa and Nebraska have less than 3 per cent., Kansas less than 4 and Ohio, Illinois and Minnesota less than 5 per cent. of illiterate inhabitants over the age of 21.

In Utah and Washington, in the Pacific group of states, the percentage of illiterates is less than 4 per cent.; in Colorado, Oregon and Wyoming less than 5.

In New England and among the native-born inhabitants the percentage is still lower, 1 per cent. in Massachusetts, 1.5 in Connecticut, 2 per cent. in New Hampshire and 2.5 in Rhode Island.

In the South the rate of illiteracy among native-born white inhabitants is highest in Louisiana, being 20 per cent. In North Carolina it is 19 per cent., Kentucky 15, Tennessee and Alabama 14, South Carolina, Virginia and Georgia 12, West Virginia 11, and Arkansas 10.

The high rate of illiteracy in the United States is due largely to the colored inhabitants. There are 2,300,000 of them over 21 years of age and of these 1,075,000 are illiterate—46 per cent.

Wherever colored inhabitants are numerous the rate of illiteracy is high; where they are few in number it is low; and leaving out the colored inhabitants the rate of illiteracy in the United States is not high and is being reduced steadily.

LAKES OF INK AND GLUE.

Idea of Amounts of Stationery Supplies Used in Washington. From the Washington Star.

In the war department there are used annually about 5,500 gross of pens, or $2,408 gross, 26,500 pencils, 1,527 quarts of manila and 4,624 quarts of red ink and 2,167 bottles of red ink. The war department alone uses 650 great gross and 7,000 gross of rubber bands. The postoffice department uses so many rubber bands that it buys them by the thousands of pounds in a bunch, and it consumes about 8,550 pounds of these useful little elastic strips in a year.

In evidence of the big quantities of supplies Uncle Sam has to buy for his postal branch, 200,000,000 printed facing slips for general use in the department and in postoffices were asked for
