Have the strain removed, the sooner, the easier. Properly adjusted glasses will do it. Eye-strain prevents children from study. Eye-strain stunts the intellect. If your child is backward in studies, suspect eye-strain. I can give you reliable information. In the public schools of Baltimore the eyes of 53,067 pupils were examined by the tests ordinarily used, and the results are interesting and suggestive: 9,051 pupils were found to have such defective eyesight as to make school work unsafe; 53 per cent of the children were found not to be in the enjoyment of normal vision. Your child's eyes may be all right and may not. Why run chances when you can know definitely by consulting me? And how about your own eyes? licants must be graduates of "reputable regular medical colleges." Husband and Wife Arrested. Mr. and Mrs. Edward Rock, of North Scranton, were held under bail yesterday by Alderman Ruddy on a charge of larceny preferred by Ida Gelsner, who alleges that they took certain household goods from a house which she rented to them. Wanted in Wilkes-Barre. A colored woman wanted in Wilkes-Barre for the larceny of a sum of money from a man was arrested just before midnight by Patrolman D. J. Davis, as she was alighting from a Delaware and Hudson train. She will be taken to Wilkes-Barre today. Newbaby Held for Larceny. Marie Reisman, a young newbaby, was held under $500 bail yesterday by Magistrate Howe on a charge of larceny preferred by J. A. Curtis, manager of the Lackawanna News company, who alleges that the boy stole 91 cents from the cash register some months ago. Wills Admitted to Probate. The will of William O. Wilson, late of Scranton, was admitted to probate yesterday and letters testamentary granted to Anna Wilson. The will of Dr. Lewis S. Barnes, late of Scranton, was also admitted to probate yesterday, and letters testamentary granted to Eva C. Barnes.

HELD IN $1,000 BAIL. Thomas Downs Released by Judge Newcomb on Surety Being Furnished—Woman Under Bail. Thomas Downs, of Irving avenue, who came to near meeting death at the hands of Mrs. Declan Keenely in Alderman Ruddy's office, on Tuesday afternoon, was given a hearing yesterday morning before the alderman on the charge of criminally assaulting Mrs. Keenely's daughter, Johanna. Attorney John P. Quinn represented Downs, and Attorney Joseph O'Brien appeared for Mr. and Mrs. Keenely. The Keenely girl, who is somewhat weak-minded, testified that on Monday last, as she was walking near the edge of the woods on the East mountain in search of empty tin cans for use as flower pots, she met Downs, who walked along with her. When they reached a clump of laurel bushes, she said, Downs knocked her down and assaulted her, despite her resistance. Attorney Quinn asked that Downs be admitted to bail on the charge of attempted criminal assault, but the alderman refused to do so and committed him to the county jail without bail. He was brought before Judge Newcomb in the afternoon and released on $1,000 bail, furnished by C. G. Boland. Mrs. Keenely was held under bail for shooting with intent to kill, and her husband was also obliged to enter bail on the charge of threatening to kill Downs.

BOYCOTT IS RAISED. Statement Issued by the Carpenters' Union Last Night Concerning the Dixie Theater. The boycott placed on the Dixie theater by the carpenters' union has been raised and a special committee of the union, consisting of J. H. McNulty, J. H. Jacobs and George Phillips, last night issued a statement concerning the matter, of which the following is a part: "After hearing the frank and manly statement made by Mr. Dixie, and the treatment he has received at the hands of those who he believed were friendly to his interests, and as it is not the purpose of union men to oppress others, while we ask only justice for ourselves, we are willing to extend the same measure of justice to others. We in justice to Mr. Dixie, feel that we can afford to be brought before a friendly jury made his venture in this city so unprofitable. Let it be remembered that our action on the Dixie theater only applies to the house during the time that Mr. Dixie is the actual lessee of the same. We therefore recommend all union men of Scranton and vicinity to attend to the business of their good fellowship, which was refused by those who were responsible for the condition which has made so unprofitable that moment to unfair carpenter work on the Dixie theater." A HOME WEDDING. Marriage of William Washburn and Miss Sara J. Evans. William Washburn and Miss Sara J. Evans, daughter of Mrs. Elizabeth Davis, of 142 Washington street, were united in marriage yesterday afternoon in the presence of a few intimate friends at the home of the bride. The ceremony was performed by Rev. E. J. McHenry, rector of St. David's Episcopal church. A reception followed the wedding ceremony and the couple left at 6:40 via the Lackawanna for Buffalo, where they will spend their honeymoon. Among the guests in attendance were the following: Mr. and Mrs. John Cook and Mr. and Mrs. Thomas C. Williams, of Hazleton; Mr. and Mrs. O. F. Leeds, Mrs. M. Edwards, Miss Edith Slout, Miss Mary Evans, Thomas H. Evans, D. H. Evans, Esther Davis and W. H. Davis.

FAILURE OF EN IS VALUABLE

SO DECLARED REV. ELKANAH HULLEY YESTERDAY. In an Admirable Address Delivered at the Teachers' Institute He Pointed Out That Most Successful Careers Are Built Upon a Foundation of Failures—Superintendent Jones on the Monroe Doctrine. Annual Meeting of Directors' Association Held. One of the most interesting features of the county teachers' institute yesterday was an admirable address on "The Educational Value of Failures," delivered at the afternoon session by Rev. Elkanah Hulley, principal of Keystone academy, and recognized, though still a young man, as one of the foremost educators of the state. In beginning his remarks, Rev. Mr. Hulley declared that given an almost total failure, a man possessed of discrimination enough to detect the faults which led to this failure and of ability sufficient to put forth his efforts in another direction, could make a grand success in life. He told of the numerous examples in history where the amount of success has dated from their failure—namely, Demosthenes, the great Grecian orator, whose miserable failure as a public speaker, when he first appeared before the Athenian populace, led him to study and correct his faults and finally placed him at the head and forefront of all orators of all times. A fair degree of success, he declared, often paralyzes a man and prevents him from putting forth his best efforts towards attaining still greater success. "It is part of the business of our teachers," he said, "to teach your children to fail, because every man and woman must fail in this life and because success is generally the direct result of failure. I want you to always remember that there are undiscovered continents of character in every child and that it is for you to teach him to be the Columbus of his own soul."

A Cruel Way. Teachers, he said, sometimes have a cruel way of exposing a child's failure to him, so that all his hope for better results in the future is crushed out. A most important result of failure very often, he said, is the directing of men and women into those channels of activity for which they are best fitted. Superintendent F. L. Jones gave a most illuminating and instructive address on the Monroe doctrine, immediately following Rev. Mr. Hulley. He described at some length the alliance known as "The Holy Alliance" formed by a number of the great world powers in Vienna in 1815, which had for its real purpose the assisting of one nation by the others in case of internal revolution. He told how the countries which were parties to the alliance decided in 1822 to come to the assistance of Spain in retaking her South American colonies, which had rebelled and had established themselves as independent republics. This led to the pronouncement of the Monroe doctrine by President Monroe in his message sent to congress in 1823, in which he declared that any attempt on the part of any foreign nation to establish further dominion in the Western hemisphere could be considered as an act of hostility to the United States, and would be so considered by the United States government. He then took up at length the various instances in which this doctrine has been invoked from the time of the signing of the Monroe doctrine to the present day, with Great Britain down to President Cleveland's ultimatum to Great Britain in 1894, which startled the world because of its audacity, but which tamed the British lion completely.

Monroe Doctrine. Mr. Jones laid especial emphasis on the fact that it is the Monroe doctrine and not the Monroe law. Any attempt to enforce the doctrine by a law, he said, would almost completely rob it of its usefulness, because then it would not be subject to the elastic interpretation which can be given it in its present form. Superintendent Jones gave the second of his lectures on the development of nations along natural lines at the morning session. Superintendent W. W. Stetson gave two more of his inspiring talks yesterday, speaking on "One Phase of a Teacher's Preparation," at the morning session, and "The Ambitions as a Factor in Education," in the afternoon. In the last mentioned address he pointed out the wonderful influence which the teacher can have upon the lives of her pupils if he or she speaks to them and reads to them in an expressive, genuine way. He enumerated his hobby, which is the pleading for a more simple course of study in the public schools. Miss Arnold gave a delightful talk on nuts and nut-bearing trees, at the morning session. The entertainment offered included two splendid baritone solos by Prof. John T. Watkins, and a recitation by Miss Sarah Price, of Taylor.

The annual meeting of the directors' association was held in court room No. 2, beginning at 10 o'clock in the morning. James F. McAndrews, the president, was unable to be present, and Thomas Johns, of Olyphant, presided in his place. The principal feature of the morning session was a general discussion of the compulsory education law, read by William Repp, of Old Forge. Law Was Read. The law was read and its meaning and intent explained by Squire Cummings, of Olyphant. Superintendent Jones explained at length the system of the consolidation of township schools, which is in operation in his home state of Indiana, and which has been so successful there. Instead of a number of schools, each township has one central graded school running from the primary grades up to including the high school. The children from all over the township are transported to and from this school in wagons every day, at the expense of the district. The total expense is less than in running a number of schools, he said, and the educational advantages which can be thus secured are far superior to any which could otherwise be offered. Miss Julia E. Rogers gave an interesting talk on just what nature study means, at the afternoon session, and was followed by Superintendent Stetson, who talked on the relation of the community to the school. The resolutions committee then presented a series of resolutions, which were unanimously adopted today. These resolutions thank Representative Edward James for introducing and securing the passage of a bill legalizing the directors' association and appropriating funds to pay its expenses; commend Superintendent Taylor for the effort he is making to enforce the compulsory education law; provide for the holding of the annual meetings of the county institute, and give all teachers desirous of going to Washington on the excursion on December 15, the power to close their schools. Officers Chosen. The election of officers resulted as follows: President, William H. Priest, of Blakely; vice-presidents, Joseph Hornbaker, of Madison, and Anthony Schultzel, of Ransom; secretary, James Foley, of Old Forge, and treasurer, Thomas Quinn, of Carbondale. The officers will represent the county association at the annual meeting of the state association to be held in Harrisburg this coming winter. There were 125 directors in attendance at yesterday's meeting, the largest number that has attended such a gathering in this county.

THIRTEENTH ALONE IS TO REMAIN. Eighth Regiment Called Home. Two Companies of the Fourth Also Recalled. Orders came yesterday morning to Colonel Hutchinson, of the Eighth regiment, to send home three companies of his command. In the afternoon the orders were amended to include all nine companies of the regiment and the two companies of the Fourth, which came out with them on July 31. Five companies of the Eighth are stationed at Lackawanna, and the other four are at Pottsville. The two companies of the Fourth, which came out with the Eighth, are at Nanticoke. The re-called companies will break camp at daylight and start for home, it is expected, about noon. The headquarters of the Eighth are at Pottsville, and of the Fourth at Allentown. Colonel Watres stated last night that he had heard nothing yet as to when the Thirteenth and Governor's troop will, equipped in this county. The Thirteenth will keep "open house" today to give opportunity for visits from friends of the regiment who could not come on Sunday. Visitors will be admitted between 12:30 and 5:30 p. m. There will be a grand concert at 1 o'clock, band concert at 2 o'clock and dress parade at 4 o'clock. Colonel Watres and his staff gave a dinner last night at headquarters, to the members of the regimental rifle team, which so notably distinguished itself in the state matches. The team is composed of Major Robling, Lieutenant Carter, Commissary Sergeant Robling, Musician Moore, Corporal Birch and Private Burns. Among the guests were ex-Colonel H. A. Courson and ex-Lieutenant Colonel C. C. Mattes.

WILL PRESS ARSON CHARGE. Defense in the Thornton Case Is Now Being Heard. The defense in the Thornton insurance case was opened yesterday. Attorney M. J. Martin in the opening address laid particular stress upon the allegation that the fire at the Thornton home was the result of a gas leak. He declared that evidence would be produced to show that the fire was the culmination of a carefully designed plan to defraud the insurance companies. The fact that the fire occurred one day after the policies were taken out by the company's agents, he tried to prove, the goods were insured for much more than their value, and that the fire occurred in a new home in which the family had not yet taken up their residence, were pointed out by Mr. Martin as being entirely corroborative of the arson allegation. Mr. Martin also dwelt at length on the alleged failure of Thornton to care for the goods saved from the fire after he had been given possession of them by the insurance adjusters. The defense was a non-suit, on the ground that the plaintiff had failed to observe the requirements of the policy regarding the separating of the damaged from the undamaged goods, was refused by Judge Archbald. The plaintiff claims he was prevented from doing this by the company's agents. Judge Archbald decided that this raised a question for the jury. J. M. Hoban the local agent of the companies who wrote the two $3,000 policies, and James M. Hommyway, of New Haven, Conn., one of the insurance adjusters, were examined for the defense. Mr. Hoban tried to make it appear that the Thorntons induced him to write the policies without his first having made an inventory of the goods; that he intended to confirm their claim as to the value of the goods the next day, after the goods would be moved to the new home, and that in the interim the fire occurred. Mr. Hommyway's testimony bore mainly on the Thorntons' alleged failure to take care of the goods after the fire.

BLIND BEGGAR FOUND DEAD

THOMAS HEILMAN DIED FROM STRANGULATION. He Was Long a Familiar Figure on the Streets with His Mouth Organ and Raised Letter Bible—He Became Intoxicated on Tuesday Night and Passed Away in Bed at Horn's Hotel on Franklin Avenue—Came Here from Reading Several Years Ago. Thomas Heilman, a blind beggar, who has been one of the most familiar figures on the streets of this city for several years, died in bed early yesterday morning at the Hotel Stralung, kept by Edward Horn, on Franklin avenue. Heilman was about 45 years old and was a short, stout, ruddy faced man who always wore a most contented look and who used to play the mouth-organ and read selections from a bible with raised letters all day long on the streets. He formerly lived at the Hollywood but for the last two weeks had been stopping at Horn's hotel. He took up a considerable amount of money daily from charitable people and always seemed to be well supplied with funds. He was born blind and of late appeared to be especially melancholy because he could not see. When he got in this condition he generally drowned his sorrows in drink and on Tuesday night he became badly intoxicated. He got back to the hotel about mid-night and had to be put to bed. In the morning he was found dead in bed by one of the employees of the hotel. Dr. John O'Malley was summoned but on his arrival he said that Heilman had been dead for some time. Strangulation, superinduced by heart trouble was the probable cause of death, he said. When a doctor was notified and gave permission to have the remains taken to Barrett's undertaking establishment where he will make a post mortem examination this morning. Heilman came here from Reading where it is understood he has a wife and sister living. Superintendent of Police Day communicated with the Reading police last night telling of the blind man's death.

LIEDERKRANZ MINTRELS. Greeted by a Large and Enthusiastic Audience in Their Hall Last Night. Music is the strong feature of the Liederkranz minstrels, as presented at their hall on Lackawanna avenue, last night, before an audience that was very demonstrative in its evidence of appreciation of the work of the young minstrel men on the stage. It was an army and navy minstrel, and when the curtain went up it revealed a group of thirty-five men in the uniform of the various branches of the army and navy service, part of the company being in white and part in black face. The stage was draped in red, white and blue bunting, and at the rear of the stage were two large American flags done in red, white and blue incandescent lights. The stage picture as the curtain arose was inspiring and picturesque. The opening chorus was a medley of military and patriotic selections, sung by the entire company and accompanied by the Lawrence orchestra. Then came an overture, followed by a coon song by Fred Evans, "Fare Thee Well, Honey, Fare Thee Well," which was exceedingly well done. Fred softly sang "I'll Hold You Hand in Mine," in a way that quite captivated the audience, and Fred Evans made a hit with his "Lucy, My Lucy Lu." "The Sentinel Asleep" was sung by Charles Wenzel, who possesses a fine baritone voice, and then the Liederkranz quartette, composed of Walter Lange, Fred Pulaski, Phil Martin and Fred Evans, sang so well that the audience insisted upon having another selection from them. One of the best efforts of the evening was the bass solo, "Farewell to the Skies," by Fred Weiss. The coon songs, "You Needn't Come Home" and "Don't You Never Take Me Ten Cent Drink on Me," sung by Phil Martin and Will Emerich, respectively, were features of the minstrel. The Song of the Swallow, by Louis Conrad, "Kings of the Winds" by Fred Pulaski, bass solos, were sung in a way that evoked warm applause. The finale was "Marching to the Music of the Band," by the company. Fred Weiss and Will Emerich singing the solo parts. Vegetables were the favorite offerings to the artists of the evening. After Fred softly had sung "When I Hold Your Hand in Mine," in a way that would have done credit to a professional, a bunch of turnips, a gaily decorated head of cabbage and a pumpkin were passed over the footlights to him by his friends. Charles Wenzel, who sang "The Sentinel Asleep," received three heads of cabbage arranged in the form of a pawbroker's sign. The other performers were remembered in like manner. J. D. Ferber was interlocutor, in the uniform of an admiral, and was the medium through whom the various songs and jokes reached the audience. He was thoroughly at home in the role. Most of the jokes had a local flavor. Here are some of them: "Mr. Ferber, you have heard that the director of public safety is sick?" "No, what's the matter with him?" "Worms, sir." "Did you hear they are not going to use wood or coal to heat the Scranton House this winter?" "No, is that so? How are they going to heat it?" "Bully Craig is going to furnish hot air." "Did you hear that the machinists have turned down Howell and have no use for him?" "No, what did they do that for?" "Why, he's an anti-machinist."

"The city treasurer's office always reminds me of the streets of Cairo at the Elks carnival." "How is that?" "Why, they have a Barker there." The minstrel show was followed by a dance. Tonight the entertainment will be repeated. New Trading Stamps. The Merchants Association seeing that people want trading stamps have undertaken to supply them by stamps redeemable at any store for any times of merchandise from needles and pins to pumpkin pies, and are the only stamps issued that is equal to a straight 5 per cent. discount.
