NO SALKS ON TEMPERANCE

MRS. W. H. HUNT SPOKE AT TEACHERS' INSTITUTE.

Widely Known W. C. T. U. Worker from Boston Was Listened to with Great Interest-Education Is the Only Solution of Temperance Question, She Declared-Superintendent Jones' Interesting Account of the Contending Forces in Our Modern Civilization.

Mrs. Mary H. Hunt, of Boston, one of the best known and most able temperance workers in the United States delivered two practical talks on the temperance question at yesterday's sessions of the county teachers' institute and was listened to with great interest by not only the teachers but by a large number of W. C. T. U. workers from all parts of the city.

In her morning talk, Mrs. Hunt wh s intensely practical in everything that she says and does and who is essentially a woman of original ideas, she referred to the laws adopted by nearly all the states in 'the union requiring instruction on the bad effects of alco hol on the human body in the public schools. These laws are good things, she declared, but in order that they may be effective it is essential that the work of the teachers be done in a rational, intelligent manner.

In the afternoon she was scheduled to talk on "How Much Physiology and Hygeine Shall We Teach in the Primary Schools," but she wandered far from her subject and talked on her hobby. the temperance question. She referred to the words of the old prophet, Micah, who said, "My people are destitute for lack of knowledge" and then referred to the words immediately following, "Wee to him who turneth away from knowledge.

Education the Cure.

She said that education is the only thing which will eventually wipe out the curse of intemperance and expressed her satisfaction at the fact that the great body of teachers in this country are not turning away from a knowledge of its evils.

The tenth census shows an increase In the average length of life of the people of the United States of four and seven-tenths years in a decade. This can be directly traced, Mrs. Hunt said, to an increased knowledge of sanitary laws which has come about because of the teaching of these matters in the lower grades in the public

"Unless we begin with the primary a work of reform instead of a work of formation. She told of the great flood of immigration which is pouring into this country every year bearing with it drink habit and an ignorance of hy-gienic laws, . The children of these people do not stay in the public schools except for a very few years and unless they are reached in the primary grades they can never be reached at all, she Superintendent Jones continued his instructive lectures vesterday speaking n the morning on the principles which should underlie modern history study. In the afternoon he gave the first of two lectures on "Modern Views of Edu-

The Spark Growing.

In beginning his lecture he said that the sublimest thing to witness is the fanning of the spark of hope in an individual into a large flame-the unfolding of the physical life and of the soul. He traced at length the manifestations of this individuality or desire on the part of the individual to expand and enlarge his sphere of action by referring to the Anglo-Saxon ancestors of the English speaking people of the present times and their constant effort to extend their frontier so that the world would have no physical limitations for them and their striving always after the fullest measure of personal liberty. He then took up the centralization which seems to have become the dominant thing in every walk of life. In business, men are taught to do one particular kind of work and apply themselves to that alone; in the church there are ministers for this particular function and ministers for that; in the public schools and colleges there are teachers and professors of one subject or even of a sub-division of a subject to the exclusion of all else.

This has a tendency to direct men's lives into narrow grooves of activity, Superintendent Jones said, and pre vents them from attaining that broad outlook which men must have who seek to realize the best that is in them. On one side the world seeks to digest a man's energies into a narrow groove and on the other side the man himself seeks to unfold naturally until he has attained to the highest develop-The Girls' industrial school will meet in their regular rooms in St. Luke's parish house every Saturday, beginning with towhich education must meet and stop, he said. It is for education, he declared, to adjust these annoying forces into a harmony of action

They Are Doing Much.

Nature study, the study of literoture and history and of music are doing much in this direction he said, and it is hoped that they will accomplish more in the future when the great question comes to be better understood, he said

Superintendent Steison spoke yesterday morning on historical study by the teacher and in the afternoon he gave a most valuable address which he called "What Next?" He had a number of master paintings of modern times and he sought to show the great lessons which can be drawn from them by teachers and pupils alike. He showed Millet's "The Angelus," "The Man with the Hoe" and "The Sowers" and said that while they all teach of the glories of honest toil the Angelus in particular teaches a lesson of reverence and devotion which it would be good for Americans to take into their lives. If the man with the hoe wasn't everything he should be as ry of protection to American capital Mr. Markham has said it was his own fault, Mr. Stetson said. If he was a cheap churl it was because he never thought of aught else but his work. A pleasing feature of the afternoon session yesterday was a duet sung by Miss Matthews and Prof. John T Watkins. The institute will be brought to a close with this morning's session when addresses will be made by Super-

WASHBURN FORGOT HIS NAME AND HOME

Mysterious Mental Affliction of Scranton Young Man in a Newark Hospital.

Arthur Washburn, a son of Mr. and Mrs. Uriah Washburn, of 1131 South Washington avenue, is a patient at St. Barnabas hospital in Newark, N. J., suffering from a peculiar mental derangement. The following story relating to his case was printed in the New York Evening World on Monday last: The Newark authorities are puzzled case of a young man who appears to have forgotten all about him

He is about twenty-three years old, He was found lying on the pavement at Broad and Academy streets on October 23 and taken to St. Barnabas' hospital. For two days the patient was in a semi-con-scious state and his identity could not be learned. Police Surgeon Clark tried to induce him to talk, and finally he said is name was Arthur Washburn, and that his home was in Reading, Pa. A few minutes later he said his home was in

"Where did I say I reside?" asked the atient after a few minutes' silence. "In Scranton," replied Dr. Clark, "That is not my home. I never was here. My home is-The patient seemed to be struggling with a treacherous memory, which he could not master. Finally, bursting into tears, he said: "Oh, doctor, tell me my name and where my home is. I don't know what is the matter, but I've forgotten where I came from. I don't know where I am now or how I came here." The parents of young Washburn were test and hope there will be a time when I shown the story and concluded it must be their son. "BLIND TOM'S" RELATIVES. Unknown Either at Harrisburg or Reading.

Unless some one claims the body of Thomas Heilman, the blind beggar, who was found dead in bed at Horn's hotel on Wednesday morning, the remains will be interred by the poor authorlties or else shipped to some medical institution. They are now in charge of Undertaker Barrett, of Carbon street. Superintendent of Police Lona Day sent a message to Reading inquiring about Heilman's relatives, and received message from Chief of Police R. M. Whitman, stating that "Blind Tom has no relatives there, and that his home was in Harrisburg. A message was also sent to Harrisburg and Acting Chief E. C. Humer, replied that there were no friends of Heilman's there, and said to notify police department at Reading.

From the above communications i apparent that the remains will not be claimed. Coroner Saltry conducted an autopsy on the body yesterday morning to determine the cause of death. The remains are, as yet, unclaimed and may be disposed of to day.

Respectfully your friend.

The candidate for state senator on the Republican ticket, John B. Jordan, esq., s a bright and capable young attorney, graduate of our mines, who has risen by merit to a position of enviable prominence at our bar. On personal grounds there are many strong reasons why he should receive every Republican vote in the district and also the complimentary vote of his legion of friends in other parties.

But laying personal reasons aside, very important public considerations urge giving him the complete Republican strength at the polls. He is to succeed the late Senator Vaughan, a Republican who died in the harness, and respect for Mr. Vaughan's memory calls for a Republican successor.

Furthermore, he will have a vote in the election of a United States senator next winter; and where is the Republican who would want to see a Democrat sent to Washington to embarrass President Roosevelt and the national admin-

Moreover, the coming session at Harrisburg will involve many important legislative interests, local as well as general. The state senate will be Republican in any event. The number of hold-over senators insures this, regardless of the result of the coming election. A Democratic senator would be handicapped from the beginning. Local interests would languish in his keeping, so, it is what is so, and why not look at conditions as they are?

We need a senator who can do things, who can get the help and recognition of the majority. John B. Jordan will com-mand this by his personal ability and by his party affiliations. Don't fire blank cartridges at the polls Tuesday. Vote for results. Vote for Jordan. **
