“IMPRUDENCE” LAST NIGHT.

“Imprudence,” H. V. Esmond's new comedy, received its first presentation on any stage at the Lyceum last night before a brilliant audience that contained a number of men from New York, prominent in the theatrical affairs of the country, who came on to be present on the first night.

It was a notable first night aside from the production of the new play for it marked the opening of the second season of William Faversham as a star and the first American appearance of Miss Fay Davis, a young Boston woman who for several seasons has played leads in London where she achieved high rank among the actresses of that city. Charles Frohman brought her back to her own country to become Mrs. Faversham's leading woman. This young American who went to London unknown returns to her native land as one of the bright lights in the theatrical firmament.

The comedy is in three acts and the scene is laid in England. The story opens on the Terrace of Harlequin Minor, where a lot of gossip is done. The fact that Jim Greaves' wife has deserted another of his little affairs. Jim is described by one of the gossips as a “glided youth who has been the victim of a woman who has been the widow of an alderman. She has discovered some letters written to Jim by an evident admirer and in which mention is made of Miss Wilhelmina Marr, Jim flees when he gets wind of the discovery, knowing from experience it means a storm. The gossips know who the “Victorian street woman” is and they are therefore surprised when that individual, Lady Duncan, makes her appearance at the Manor. She comes on the scene as Jim is disappearing and tells him she will straighten matters out. Her services in this direction bring about the misunderstandings and complications that make the play.

She is taken into Mrs. Greaves' confidence and right there all the trouble begins. Lady Duncan has her heart set on captivated Jack Freer, who is an old sort of young man with broad shoulders and who has decided to go into the church. Jack Freer is thought to be a cad, but is in love with Wilhelmina Marr, who is called “Bilby” by her friends. Jack gives no thought to anybody else. She batters Jack for a while, but finally confesses her love and they become engaged.

Lady Duncan knows all this and her plans are summed up in this remark, which she makes to herself: “I really must see that Jack Freer doesn't throw himself away on Miss Wilhelmina Marr.”

And this is how Lady Duncan proceeds to save Jack. After going over the letters which have started Mrs. Greaves on the warpath, Lady Duncan picks up and tells him that the letters were written by “Bilby.” Then comes along Mrs. Greaves who reads him one of the letters. At the end is a signature which Jack knows that “Bilby” has used. Jack is puzzled, perplexed, frightened. Can his “Bilby” be the other party to the scandal? While he is in this bewildered state of mind, “Bilby” calls on him before Mrs. Greaves and all her friends and announces their engagement. He hesitates for a moment, and then dashing all suspicions aside, he takes Mrs. Marr in his arms and tells them she has promised to be his wife.

But Mrs. Greaves hasn't done with the letters on the Lyceum stage yet. The scandal keeps on shimmering, with Lady Duncan tending to it as skillfully as she knows how. Jack Freer is confident that “Bilby” did not write all the letters. He is anxious to save her from any such accusation. “Bilby” herself knows nothing about the imputation. Jack talks counsel of his friend Sir Harry Maitland and they agree that it would be wise to acquaint “Bilby” with what is going on.

At about this moment “Bilby” comes in and Sir Harry passes her a newspaper with this message penciled in the margin: “I'll clear out. Get her to explain everything once for all. She's a lot better than too late.” The paper is innocently passed on to “Bilby,” who on reading the message grows indignant, because it shows that she is being discussed before she entered, because, too, they refuse to tell her what they are to do. She flings her engagement ring on the table and is about to go, when Mrs. Greaves appears and reads one of Jim's letters. “Bilby” starts everybody by declaring that the letters were written by her; not only that, but that she lived in the much-talked-of flat in Victoria street. Mrs. Greaves orders her from the Manor. Jack endeavors to intervene, but “Bilby” indignantly declines his chivalrous offers and makes preparations to leave.

Nothing remains for Jack but to clear Miss Marr's good name. He happens upon a slight clue that Lady Duncan is the Victorian street woman, and by clever “Shotlock” Holmesing, he becomes convinced of the fact. During all this turmoil and tribulation Lady Duncan, the golden-haired heart-winner has captured an aged millionaire and the millionaire to take place very soon. Jack Freer, by threatening to reveal to the millionaire that he knows about his intended bride, and the Victorian street flat, and by also menacing her with the state's evidence of Jim Greaves himself, secures a written confession from Lady Duncan that she is the siren who has lured Jim's affections away from Mrs. Greaves, and caused the whole scandal. When Mrs. Greaves reads the confession, Lady Duncan has already departed. Jim promises never to see it again, and Mrs. Greaves forgives him. Meanwhile, Jack, by telling “Bilby” that he has saved her from being caught on the train for home, so she is still in the Manor when the clearing up of the mystery has been effected and she and Jack are very happy of course, at the end.

No adequate appreciation of the comedy can be conveyed by any bare outline. As presented by the company, the story was something live and pulsating with the human touches which show to what good purpose Esmond has studied the human family; how well he knows the ludicrous, no less than the large personality, that appears when passions that tug at the heart strings are aroused, and also how he knows the hollowities of utter selfishness that are to be found in society. Through the medium of the splendid company that supported Mr. Faversham last night, the beauties of sentiment and wit and the lights and shades of the play of humor were admirably presented. Esmond was fortunate in his players and their environments.

The role of Jack Freer is one that fits Mr. Faversham as few of the parts he has played did. He is the impetuous, aggressive young lover who would fight a world for the woman he loves, and in that sort of character Faversham is at his best. That he can be earnest, tender and persuasive was demonstrated by that little scene in the first act with Miss Davis.

The latter came at once into the good opinion of the audience. She is delightfully natural. There is an almost total absence of any effort at acting, yet she distinctly impresses her own manner and methods, and her interpretation of the role of Miss “Bilby” Marr was clean-cut and consistent in conception and treatment.

Lady Duncan, the “bad lady” of the comedy, was the role assigned to Miss Hilma Spang, one of the most intelligent and capable of the leading women of today. Miss Spang's face is her fortune in more senses than one. Not by words did Miss Spang tell one the desirability of this did a lot of character work as the vindictiveness with which she sought to ruin the reputation of Miss Marr. The subtle changes of expression spoke eloquently of the manner of woman Lady Duncan was. The gesture and pose completed the story.

Miss Jeffrey Lewis was the explosive Mrs. Jim Greaves, whose feelings are wrought upon by Lady Duncan. How well she played the part! Richard Henson, the central figure, it was a performance pitched in just the right key, and held there during the entire three acts.

The comedy moved so smoothly from beginning to end that it was hard to realize that it was a first production. There was no halting or stumbling of lines, and the character work as the three beautiful and elaborately dressed women were handled without confusion or long pauses between acts. One of the selections given by Bauer's augmented orchestra was the overture, “Imprudence,” written by Sauer for this production.

The comic wren by the ladies were magnificent, nothing quite so beautiful having been seen at a theatrical in this city. In the first act Miss Davis wore an afternoon gown of dotted Swiss over white silk and chiffon petticoat, waist trimmed with Irish point lace, white satin and ribbon. In the second act her evening gown was a creation of pink brocade, trimmed with silver and cream tulle lace. In the third act she wore a gown of light green watered silk, trimmed with chiffon and silk tulle, and a black velvet hat with beautiful feathers, completed her attire.

In the first act Miss Hilma Spang wore pink pointed muslin over white silk and chiffon, with waist to match. It was handsomely trimmed with real lace. In the second act she wore an evening gown of cloth of gold, embroidered with gold over white satin and lace that was truly beautiful. In the third act she wore two gowns, the first a house dress of white silk tulle, tucked and trimmed with real lace and ornamented with a handsome blue sash. The second gown was a traveling dress of white silk, covered with silk tulle slashed with snip silk, with real lace. Her hat was a magnificent one of blue velvet, and harmonized with the gown.

Mrs. Jeffrey Lewis wore an afternoon gown of yellow bengaline silk in the first act, with the waist of white silk and chiffon and lace. Her second act gown was an evening dress of light green watered silk, trimmed with chiffon and silk tulle. The waist had pearls and emerald trimmings.

Gowns of almost equal beauty were worn by the other ladies. Witness the performance from an able seat on the east side of the house, other prominent theatergoers in the house were Al. Haysman, Anson Bond, Isaac B. Rich and John J. Jennings. The comedy will be repeated at the Lyceum this afternoon and tonight.

Huntley-Moore Stock Co.

The Huntley-Moore Stock company drew two very large and well pleased audiences at the Academy of Music yesterday when they presented at the matinee “The Lost Paradise” and at night, “The Danites.”

Tonight they close their week's engagement, with the presentation of a very powerful play, “Queen's Evidence.” This afternoon “The Lost Paradise” will be repeated.

Great Bill at Dixie's.

It is an excellent bill which the patrons of the cozy Dixie are enjoying this week. The world famous Lockhart's elephants is an act which will never be forgotten. These beasts were certainly trained by a master hand. It seems hardly possible for them to perform such feats, but they do it, and they know their act so well that they work without a word of command.

The three Livingstons are wonderful acrobats and do some very daring feats. Whitcomb, the initiator, is simply great, he pleases immensely and wins many laughs. The Brittons, colored artists, are dancers of unusual ability, the man is a wonder in the dancing line. The musical part of the programme is furnished by Hill and Whittaker and Post and Clinton are certainly laugh makers. Deane's marionettes are quite a novelty.

“Not Guilty” Next Week.

An announcement of uncommon interest is the appearance next week of the melodrama, “Not Guilty,” at the Academy of Music for three days commencing with a special Monday matinee.

It is a favorite with the patrons of this house, and will no doubt receive the cordial welcome due to an old friend.

SAFETY FROM KIDNEY TROUBLES

WRITE THEIR HEARTFELT THANKS FOR THE BENEFIT RECEIVED FROM THE GREAT KIDNEY CURE, A TRIAL BOTTLE OF THE WORLD'S GREATEST KIDNEY CURE, ABSOLUTELY FREE FOR THE ASKING.

THIS LIBERAL OFFER IS MADE TO EVERY READER OF THE SCRANTON TRIBUNE WHO SENDS A POSTAL NOTE AND A FREE TRIAL BOX OF WARNER'S SAFE PILLS, A TRIAL BOTTLE OF THE WORLD'S GREATEST KIDNEY CURE, ABSOLUTELY FREE FOR THE ASKING.

THIS FREE OFFER HAS BEEN ACCEPTED BY OVER 1,000,000 SUFFERERS WHO HAVE BEEN CURED BY ITS USE. THOUSANDS OF LETTERS ARE RECEIVED DAILY FROM GRATEFUL MEN AND WOMEN WHO HAVE RECEIVED INSTANT RELIEF FROM THE PAINFUL AND DANGEROUS AFFECTIONS OF THE KIDNEYS, AND WHO HAVE PERMANENTLY CURED BY THE USE OF WARNER'S SAFE PILLS.

Free Sample Gave Instant Relief.

MISS BERRIE ARNOLD, President of the Chicago Women's Club, writes: “Last summer, while at a picnic, I was poisoned with poison ivy, and my face and hands were badly swollen and I could not see out of my eyes. I tried washes and ointments, and painted the affected parts, but without relief. I sent for a sample bottle of Warner's Safe Cure, and found that it gave me immediate relief. One large bottle cured me in a short time, driving all the poison out of my system, and effected a complete cure. Since then I have used it off and on when I feel worn out, and have found it a fine remedy for general debility, from your Safe Cure has a host of friends in Chicago.”

Cured Gravel and Inflamed Urinary Organs.

GEORGE DESBRIE, Major, Christian Volunteers, 14 Fifth Street, Cincinnati, O., says: “For three years I have suffered constantly with gravel and inflammation of the urinary organs, aggravated by exposure in conducting military operations. I had trouble run on, not seeking medical relief until I felt so badly I could hardly continue my work. On examination the doctor told me my trouble was due to a stone in my bladder, and that I must have an operation without relief; then a brother officer told me how Warner's Safe Cure had cured him of the same trouble. I immediately sent for a bottle, and soon found blessed relief. It took six bottles to effect a permanent cure of my trouble. It has permanently cured me. May God bless you for sending such relief to suffering humanity.”

The pain in the small of the back, painful passing of urine, inflammation of the bladder, torpid liver, cloudy urine, pain in the back of the head and neck, rheumatic pains and swellings all over the body, azeemia and jaundice, tell you your kidneys have been diseased for a long time, for kidney troubles seldom put out such symptoms as the victim recognizes until they have been long in the system. Great care should be taken to stop the progress of the disease and prevent it propagating the entire system and becoming chronic.
