WILL LECTURE MONDAY NIGHT

DR. PETERS WILL BE HEARD IN PENN AVENUE CHURCH.

His Subject Will Be "Why I Became a Baptist"—His First Charge After Entering the Ministry Was a Presbyterian Church in Philadelphia—Feb. 1, 1900, Dr. Peters Stirred the Religious World by Entering the Baptist Church—In Great Demand as a Lecturer.

Madison C. Peters, who is to deliver a free lecture at the Penn Avenue Baptist church Monday evening on "Why I Became a Baptist," was born in Lehigh county, Pennsylvania, forty-three years ago. His ancestors came from Germany about 150 years ago. Dr. Peters has made his own way in the world since he was 8 years of age. At 15 he taught school. After a year at Muhlenberg college, at Allentown, Pa., he spent two years at Franklin and

REV. DR. MADISON C. PETERS.

Marshall college, at Lancaster, Pa. At 18 he entered the theological department of Heidelberg university, Tiffin, O. He worked his own way through school, doing odd jobs about the town, working on the farms during vacation, preaching and lecturing as opportunity afforded.

While other young men swung Indian clubs Madison C. Peters saved wood for his daily bread. It was this system of athletics which has given this preacher such toughness of fibre and superb power of endurance. He began his ministry in Indiana. Next we find him at Ottawa, Ill., opening a church which had been closed for several years. So great were the crowds who came to listen to him that during the warm weather he conducted his services in the public park, where in a town of 12,000 people, frequently 4,000 people gathered to hear him. People came thirty miles.

Went to Philadelphia.

His fame soon reached Philadelphia, and at 24 years of age he became pastor of one of the oldest Presbyterian churches in Philadelphia, where he accomplished results that mystified those who watched him; for five years Dr. Peters preached to the largest Protestant audiences in Philadelphia. Thirteen years ago when Dr. Peters was but 37 years of age, he was called to the Bloomingdale church, on Broadway and Sixty-eighth street, New York.

Inherited wealth enabled a small congregation to build one of the handsomest church edifices in that city of magnificent churches, costing nearly half a million dollars. Beginning with less than 100 the Bloomingdale church became one of the most influential in the metropolis. Dr. Peters' congregation represents eleven different denominations.

On Feb. 1, 1900, Dr. Peters stirred the religious world by resigning his position of power and influence and leaving down one of the most successful pastorate any man ever enjoyed, because he had come to the conclusion that the Bible taught baptism for believers only and that he would practice infant baptism no longer. Dr. Peters thus stepped from the heights to begin life over again as a Baptist minister. He did not wait for something to turn up, but went over to Brooklyn, took hold of a church which was almost abandoned and which on account of its great debt seemed doomed to die.

Took on New Life.

Baptists generally had feared that the Summer Avenue church would have to go under the hammer. With Dr. Peters' coming to the church new life entered it. The crowds began to gather, and in eighteen months a $75,000 debt was paid, while thousands more were raised for improvements. The membership increased from 160 to 425, while the congregation was double the membership. Dr. Peters did not expect to become the settled pastor in this church, as he preferred to have a church more centrally located for the purpose of reaching the masses. After a supply of six months, however, he felt it wise for the sake of the church to become installed as pastor.

Numerous overtures were made to Dr. Peters to leave the Brooklyn church, which is in a purely residential section of Brooklyn, but nothing could induce him to leave this church until the call came to Baltimore. Dr. Peters felt that because of the strategic location of the Tabernacle he could reach the great crowds, which he was accustomed to gather in New York. In this Dr. Peters has not been disappointed. The spacious Tabernacle at St. Paul street and North avenue, is already crowded to overflowing at both services, and plans are now considered for the building of a new structure which will hold the thousands who are thronging to hear this earnest preacher.

In Great Demand.

Dr. Peters is in great demand as a lecturer, preacher on special occasions, while as an after-dinner speaker he has been considered for years one of the most popular in New York. He knows how to dress his thoughts in attractive form, his wit is charming, while few can tell a story better than he.

Dr. Peters is the author of twenty-two books, among which his "Justices to the Jew," "The Wit and Wisdom of the Talmud," and "The Jew as a Patriot" are the most famous.

CHURCH OF ST. JOHN THE EVANGELIST.

who have held up the hands of Father Melley in the great task he undertook when the ground was broken for the building on March 17, 1900.

For years before that the necessity of a new church had been felt, and plans were being matured for a church that would be a worthy temple of the Lord as well as a permanent home for the congregation which had worshipped in the frame building on Fig street from the time it was dedicated by the late Rt. Rev. Bishop O'Hara on April 17, 1887.

The parish was created in 1886 and Rev. R. A. McAndrew, now of St. Mary's church, of Wilkes-Barre, was the first pastor. In 1889 he was transferred to Wilkes-Barre, and Rev. E. J. Melley became pastor. The thrift, aggressiveness and purpose that has marked his pastorate the beautiful structure that will tomorrow be dedicated by Rt. Rev. Bishop Hoban in part speaks eloquently of.

Description of Church.

The church is of the Gothic style of architecture and was designed by Architect Percival J. Morris, who is to be congratulated on the results he achieved. M. J. Ruddy did the stone and brick work, and the Rev. and Judge the wood work throughout. P. F. & M. T. Howley did the plumbing. The building is 150 feet long and has a width of 88 feet and a seating capacity of 1,400. Red brick, with Indiana limestone was the material used in the exterior, and the roof is of red tiles.

The basement is twelve feet high and will be used for the Sunday school, church entertainments, etc. It will also have a movable altar, and can be used for the celebration of mass if occasion should arise to make it desirable to use it for that purpose.

The church faces Pittston avenue, and has three entrances on the front which are reached by flights of stone steps. Admission is gained to the vestibule through swinging doors of white oak. The vestibule is trimmed wings. These trusses are filled with tracery and at the junctures of the nave with the transepts form a chaste group. On either side of the main altar are two smaller altars. There are four sacristies—two on a level with the sanctuary and two above it. The height of the ceiling in the nave is sixty feet, and in the side aisles it averages twenty-five feet. All the wood-work is stained oak. The structure is of quarter-sawn white oak. There are double confessionals on each side of the transept.

Interior Decorations.

The frieze in the aisles is of heavy moulded stereo-relief, and under the clerestory windows there is a frieze of similar design studded with electric bulbs. On each cluster of columns are heavy gold-lacquered solid brass combination fixtures for gas and electricity. The choir loft is lighted by two heavy gold-lacquered standards. In the vaulted ceiling of the sanctuary are a number of incandescent lights. The entire electric system of lighting the church is controlled by a switch board in the sacristy.

Stained glass windows that are works of art admit light to the building. They were presented by the following: James Grogan, in memory of his wife, Elizabeth Grogan; Rev. E. J. Melley, Francis J. and Catharine Melody, C. G. and Mary Boland, Michael J. and Margaret Ruddy, Catholic Relief and Beneficial Association, John and Mary Gibbons, Martin McDonough, Dr. and Mrs. John J. Walsh and the Ladies' Catholic Benevolent Association.

TESTING NEW BRAKE.

An Electrical Device That May Be Adopted by the Scranton Railway Company.

For the past several days the management of the Scranton Railway company have been experimenting with a new brake known as a "Magnetic Brake." This brake is placed on a car which is operated on the Petersburg line, as this is considered one of the severest lines on brakes that is operated by the Street Railway company.

The new brake appears to be better adapted for controlling cars than anything which is operated on the Petersburg line, as this is considered one of the severest lines on brakes that is operated by the Street Railway company.

The brake is operated by electricity, and when it is applied with full force the rail brakes are attracted to the rail at a force of about two thousand pounds. The power for the application of the brake is obtained from the motors of the car itself, and not from the trolley wire, and, therefore, the brakes work as well with the power off of the line as when it is on. The retarding power is so distributed between the rail and the wheels that it makes a sudden stop possible without skidding the wheels, and for this reason it is particularly valuable in doing away with flat wheels. A car going at the rate of fifteen miles per hour can be stopped in its own length. Ice on the rail or slippery rail do not affect the application of the brake.

The shoes will seize and cling to the rail regardless of its condition, and as the track shifts are between the wheels and the car, they will clear the rail effectively for the hind wheels and enable the whole braking system to be effective. The surplus power used in connection with this brake is sufficient to furnish heat for the car. These brakes are used extensively in Pittsburg, where there are only two cars in the entire city that are not equipped with magnetic brakes. They are reported to give very good satisfaction in the "smoky city."

A Tribune man in discussing the matter with Mr. Stillman, chief of that gentleman that if the brake worked as successful in Scranton as it has been reported to have done in other cities, large numbers of the Scranton Railway company's cars will be equipped with this brake. Mr. Stillman also stated that he expected to have a number of new cars in service next spring.
