Has Become a Highly Specialized and Successful Profession.

The system of teaching in the best correspondence schools has been carefully worked out. One of the principal features is the use of specially prepared and illustrated instruction and question papers, in place of the text-books used in the ordinary resident school. The papers are written by men of technical education, selected because of their fitness for the work. Each paper is also edited by one or more specialists.

The papers are printed in pamphlet form, of from ten to one hundred pages, and can readily be folded and carried in one's pocket for study during spare hours. Each paper is complete, and "The Fulfilment"...... Edith Landt Anthem, "Sing, O Heavens"....The Choir "The Christ Child"...... Alice Guenmel "Sweet Christmas Time," Emma Richter, Hulda Benson Emma Richter, Hulda Benson Hand that has not been treated in a contains all the instruction required previous paper. The illustrations are features of these papers and they are freely employed.

It is the custom of one of the best of these schools, as soon as the pupil is enrolled, to send to him the first and second instruction and question papers, accompanied by directions for proceeding with the work, some "information

THE MARKETS.

Wall Street Review.

Wall Street Review.

Now York, Dec. 24.—The stock market closed firm today at the top levél of the day with net gains in a few of the prominent railroads and specialities reaching a point or more. The day's movement of prices was not of much significance and the dealings were on a very small scale, except in the local traction group, in which there was some large buying without any definite explanation. The tradingwas idle nearly to the point of stagnation at times and the brokers gave more attention to playing pranks in celebration of the eve of the Christmas holiday than to trading in stocks. The produce exchange celebration began midway of the session of the stock exchange on the same floor and separated only by a low partition. Speculative sentiment may easily have been tinctured by the festivities. The distribution of Christmas donations was on a liberal scale and helped the prevailing cheerful sentiment. There was apparently some outstanding short interest also which chose to cover for the holiday, especially as many brokers are preparing to leave town for the local tractions had a sentimental effect on the whole list, the rise in Brooklyn Transit extending to over 4 points. No definite explanation of the rise was forthcoming, but old rumors had renewed circulation of a passing of control to the Pennsylvania. Sugar also was well sustained at a recovery from yesterday's sharp decline. The most active period of the trading, however, was during the decline of the morning. The maintenance of the call loan rate at between 7 and 19 percent, was the depressing influence. The announcement of wage increases by the New York Central and the Atlantic Coast line called renewed attention to a tendency which is general throughout the railroad world. The passing of the dividend on St. Joseph and Grand Island first preferred explained yesterday's late break of 8½ points in that stock to which was added a ½4 point decline today. Total sales, 33,000 shares. There was some distributed activity in the bond market but the pric ing with the work, some "information blanks," and a supply of addressed envelopes.

After carefully reading the directions, a student studies the first instruction paper until it is thoroughly mastered. If he has any difficulty, he fills out an information blank, giving full particulars, send it to the school, and proceeds with his studies. A written explanation of the difficulty he encountered is promptly forwarded to him from the school, and he is encouraged to write, at any time, for special information. After mastering the first instruction paper, he takes up the accompanying question paper, and writes his answers to the test questions on one side of sheets of light paper, numbering each answer, and writing his name, address, and class number at the head of the first sheet. He forwards these answers to the school, in one of the addressed envelopes, and proceeds to study the second instruction paper.
