PITTSBURGH GAZETTE.

PUBLISHED BY WHITE & CO,

PITTSBURGH.

TUESDAY MORNING, SEPT. 2, 1851.

☞ READING MATTER WILL BE FOUND ON EACH PAGE OF THIS PAPER.

THE NEWS FROM CUBA.—It has never been our fortune to encounter such a maze of contradictions as we have within the last few days in what purports to be news from Cuba. Fresh despatches reach us daily; but upon close examination they appear to be but a rehash of the old medley. We are as much in the dark as to the fate of Lopez as any of our readers, although the accounts have had him captured some time ago. That he has been captured is very probable, but this is all we can say.

OHIO AND PENNSYLVANIA RAILROAD.—During the week ending on Saturday last, 2,135 passengers were carried on this road. Cash receipts $1,103 19.

CURIOUS CORRESPONDENCE.—Somebody recently gave to the world a rich secret correspondence between the different members of the Democratic National Committee of Correspondence, revealing the movements of the chief wirework-ers, touching the selection of a candidate for the Presidency. It first saw the light in the columns of the New York Herald. When we first saw it, we had some suspicion that it was a hoax, but as it has now been before the public for a fortnight, and very extensively published, and not having been disclaimed by any one, all doubt about its authenticity is removed. The whole is too voluminous for our columns, so we take an excellent synopsis from the Albany State Register, which the reader will find in this paper.

We ask special attention to the letter of Mr P H. Brittan, of Alabama, wherein he says that the Union men of that State are the Whigs, and of course the Democrats are State rights men, or secessionists. We commend this to the special attention of the Locofocos of Pennsylvania

Present Route of Travel between Pittsburgh and Cincinnati.—Leave Pittsburgh at 10 A. M., by railroad, and arrive at New Brighton for an early dinner From Brighton to Ravenna, a line of excellent stage coaches connects the Ohio and Pennsylvania Railroad, with the Cleveland and Pittsburgh Railroad. The stages leave New Brighton after dinner, and arrive at Ravenna at twelve to one o'clock the same night, supping at Salem. The next morning the train leaves Ravenna for Cleveland at half past six, and arrives at the latter place at half past eight, in time for the train to Cincinnati.

Returning—The train leaves Cincinnati every morning at 5½, and arrives at Cleveland at 5 in the evening. At half past 5 P. M., the train leaves Cleveland by the Cleveland and Pittsburgh Railroad, and reaches Ravenna at 8, where the passengers take tea, and immediately proceed by stage and arrive at New Brighton in time for the first morning train for Pittsburgh. By this arrangement, one entire day is saved between this city and Cleveland, as compared with the canal packet line.

Yesterday, (Monday,) the track layers commenced laying the rails from Alliance eastward, and will reach Salem within thirty days The Cleveland and Pittsburgh Railroad is now completed to Alliance, so that when the Ohio and Pennsylvania Railroad shall be completed to Salem, there will be only 33 miles, (and that a good stage road,) wanting of continuous railroad from Pittsburgh to Cincinnati, via Cleveland, and even that gap will be filled up about November next

MOB JURISPRUDENCE.—There is a statement in the papers to the effect that "Samuel L Gallagher, living in San Francisco, was informed that Louis Pollock had been found in bed with his (Gallagher's) kept mistress, and was further made acquainted with the fact that Pollock had called him a coward. He went to the house where Pollock was stopping, called him out of his room, shot him dead, and then surrendered himself to the "Vigilance Committee" But Gallagher was a fine fellow, was a Lieutenant in the Mexican war, and there promoted to a Captaincy, was rich, &c., and although the Vigilance Committee could hang a poor fellow for stealing, a case of deliberate murder was beyond their jurisdiction, and he was turned over to the milder code of the constitutional authorities. The utter rottenness, insincerity and cowardice of this self-constituted body need no better illustration than this fact furbishes"

MAP OF CUBA.—We are indebted to Mr. Jas. B Holmes, Third-street, opposite the Post Office, for a neat little colored map of Cuba, which he has just published. It will be very interesting at this time

From the Albany State Register

THE NEXT PRESIDENCY.

We have before alluded briefly to the correspondence of a National Democratic Committee, published in the New York Herald, of Friday last. We have seen no contradiction of its genuineness—indeed, it carries marks of authenticity on its face—and it may not be uninteresting to our readers, if we refer to the subject again. It has leaked out that there has been a secret meeting of a committee appointed at the Baltimore Convention, in New York, very recently. The following extract appeared in the New York correspondence of the Vincennes (Ill.) Gazette:

"A committee of Democrats have been in this city for some weeks past, making arrangements for issuing the call of the Democratic National Convention. Baltimore has been fixed upon for the great national gathering, although the members of the Committee from the northwest, wished a more central point—Louisville or Cincinnati."

The following article appeared in a late number of the Ohio Statesman, the editor of which is a member of the committee:

"Democratic National Convention.—We find in a late letter from New York to the Cleveland Plaindealer, some information in reference to the next Democratic National Convention, which will be found to be interesting. The writer says:

A committee of Democrats have been in this city, for some weeks, making arrangements for issuing the call of the Democratic National Convention. Baltimore has been fixed upon for the great national gathering; although the members of the committee from the northwest wished a more central point—Louisville or Cincinnati.

Nathaniel H. Greer, of Iowa, appointed by the Chairman of the Democratic National Committee, (B. F. Hallett, of Boston,) to fill the vacancy on the committee from Iowa, occasioned by the death of ex-Governor Clark, has now heard from nearly every member of the National Committee, and from the delegation of the several States, in the last Baltimore Convention; and it can be certainly relied upon that the Convention is to be held at Baltimore."

This Nathaniel H. Greer turns out to be a strong partizen of General Houston, and to have been pulling the wires for his nomination as the Democratic candidate for the next Presidency.—The Herald contains letters to him and his colaborer, C. H Donaldson, of Texas, from leading Democrats all over the country, several of whom express their preference for General Houston. No other person, except General Cass, is named for a candidate, by any of the writers. The chances of the latter are thus summed up in a communication from Mr Brown, of Rhode Island

"But as Mr. Van Buren would undoubtedly contrive some plan to defeat him in New York, and perhaps Pennsylvania, it becomes us to inquire whether Mr. Cass should give way, or the party be defeated. Of course there can be but one answer to this. Still many believe that New York we shall (owing to the passage of the nine million bill, and the late re-union of the Whig parties) lose any how, and that Pennsylvania we shall carry with any candidate, and that Cass is the one who can carry, individually, the northwest, and Ohio. The conclusion is, therefore, that it is by no means certain but Mr. Cass is the 'best horse for the next heat.'"

Mr. Commander, of South Carolina, thinks the Union will be dissolved before the convention can be got together.

Hon. Wm. R. King, of Alabama, in this epistle says:

"All our troubles have arisen from the extraordinary conduct of those professing Democrats, in whom the entire Democracy once reposed unbounded confidence, and felt delighted to honor."

And he seems to pretty much despair of those professing Democrats behaving any better in future

"How, then," says he, "can we of the South unite in council with those who have not only shown themselves regardless of our safety, but judging from the past, would unhesitatingly pave the way for making our section a second San Domingo—and coolly look on, if they did not rejoice to see, the blood of our mothers, wives and sisters, moisten their native soil, did it give such a doubtful boon as liberty to such a people as the blacks."

This is a significant question, and his answer to it is—

"We must have no pretended friends in our camp, who, while they cry 'hail brothers,' would stab us under the fifth rib."

Mr. P. H. Brittan, editor of the Montgomery (Alabama) Advertiser and Gazette, declines to commit himself to a national convention, at present, and assigns his reasons as follows:

"Our State elections, as you are doubtless aware, are almost at hand, and until the result of them is known to me, I shall not know how to proceed. The Whig party of Alabama, under their new name of 'Union,' are making extraordinary efforts to carry the State, and as the old Democratic States' Right party have not only to fight their old enemy with a new and popular name, but also the influence of the Washington Union, and of such men as Cobb, Foote, Clemens, and many others, who are now body and soul in the hands of our enemies, it may be that defeat awaits us. Should this be the case in this State, Mississisippi and Georgia, it seems to me that it will be hard for me to define my position, in these no party, or rather nothing but Union party times. I think I am still a good Democrat, although what is called here a 'Southern Right Democrat,' but if I am mistaken in this, and the test of Democracy throughout the Union is to be adhesion to what is called the Union party here in the South—and the Union newspaper makes that the test—why, I think I am not the proper person to move in the matter of a national democratic or Union Convention. For, (God preserve the Union and me, too,) from all such parties as the present Union party of the South. Its doctrines are not democratic, no more than its members are democrats—it is fed cralism, and federalism throughout

The two last named correspondents might probably have been saved all their hesitation and misgivings, had they only been treated to the consolation contained in the following letter of a parvenu.

"JEFFERSON, July 3, 1851

"My Dear Sir—Permit me to say, that I am unable to decypher much of your letter, but so far as I understand your views and objects, I approve them. You appear anxious to brigg the Democratic party to the support of truth and freedom. In this I can bid you God-speed with a hearty good will.

"I think Samuel McJary, of Columbus, is favorably inclined to your views. He is, perhaps, the most influential Democrat of our State. Mr Myers, of Toledo, has been a (State) Senator for some years, and is inclined to bring the Democratic party to the right point. Jacob Brinckerhoof of Mansfield, is another in whom you may confide. Hon. R. P. Spaulding, Akron; Hon. J. Cable, Carrolton; Henry Krum, Cherry Valley, all may be confided in for that purpose.

"I think that both parties are progressing, notwithstanding all their efforts to prevent the progress of truth.

"With great respect, your obd't. servt.,

"C. H Donaldson, Esq. J. R Giddings.

If the above failed to satisfy Messrs. King and Brittain, we are sure the following from Hon S P Chase of Ohio, could not fail to have that effect:—

"I entertain for Gen. Houston a very sincere regard. His kindness and courtesy towards me during our association in the Senate could not fail to win it. Should he be nominated for the Presidency, I should wish to support him—Whether I should do so or not, however, would depend upon the position which he and the Convention making the nomination should think proper to take.

"Should you return South through this city, I should be happy to see you and if you will remain a few days with us, will endeavor to make your stay as agreeable as possible

The letters in question all bear quite recent dates, and from their general tenor, there can be no doubt that Gen. Houston is supposed by a class of Democrats to be the man who can unite the discordant democracy, in a loving brotherhood, and be at once acceptable to champions of Southern rights, Hunkers and Free Soilers. That so thinks the aforesaid Mr Brown of Rhode Island, appears by the following extract from his letter:

"Gen. Houston is, in my opinion, the only man we can nominate, who can surely, undoubtedly, carry the next field. There are enough elements in his character, and incidents in his history, to kindle an enthusiasm in his favor that would sweep over this whole land in a perfect tempest; only, do not begin too soon. I, for one, should not like to abandon Gen. Cass, unless I was for some one who I was confident, would carry all by storm. But, pardon me. I only meant when I began, to give you the names of the prominent politicians of Rhode Island, who will be, beyond all doubt, active in the next campaign."

What the committee did in secret session, we know not, but the letter from Mr. Donaldson to Mr Greer, which we give entire, sheds a bright light upon the subject they had in hand

MR. DONALDSON TO MR GREER

"Mr. Donaldson is the Texan member of the National Committee, and appears to be one of the most straig't-forward and candid of that body

"PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 13, 1851

"DEAR GREER:—I received a letter from Texas, to-day, urgently demanding my return to my plantation, and also one from H. Toakum, responding to our plans. I had hoped to have a further conference with you in relation to the consummation of our plans for the call of the National Democratic Convention, but you may as well issue the call at once for the first Monday in June. From the tone of our correspondence, we have ample assurances that the convention will be with us, and be composed mostly of Houston men, who will overawe all opposition, and secure our object. In regard to platforms —avoid all new tests, especially land reform. Partly re-affirm the Baltimore platform, without offending our free soil allies—who have pledged themselves in good faith to us—as their vote will be most formidable, you may depend upon it, and we can afford to make a few sacrifices of the South where so irascible a disposition is shown.

"If you could but prevent the passage of land reform resolutions in the State Convention of Iowa, and other portions of the West, then Walker, of Wisconsin, could easily be kept in the back ground, and Houston's chance greatly im; proved. In stopping here, I regret to learn that the Buchanan interest is rapidly gaining ground. I think, however, our well digested plans for the calling of the convention will destroy all his chances, the Southern rights faction to the contrary notwithstanding. Van Buren and Crosswell's influence secures New York; certain and their friends everywhere. Chase and Giddings may be relied upon to the utmost in Ohio. and we are in hopes to handle the wires even in Massachusetts. Gen. Houston, I have the best means of knowing, will be on himself shortly, to take charge of the wires.

"A word to the New York friends. Make no misstep, little illusion to 'niggerism,' and let the State Convention not go beyond the Ohio platform, and tolerate differences of opinion in regard to minor questions. Should it be deemed advisable to get up a mass, bone and sinew demonstration of Tammany Hall, in the city of New York, for the purpose of helping along all our own and old Sam's plans, do so, provided it can be done by both sections of the party, without a possibility of failure.

"I shall proceed to Washington to-day, on my way home, and may not, therefore, soon see you.—I expect to be in Washington next January. You have my address; keep me well advised of your proceedings and prospects, and how things are working. Meantime, I remain yours, in the cause C. H DONALDSON

"P S—I shall write you upon my return home, should houston not have already left, and keep you advised of his departure, movements, &c."

The full correspondence, from which we have been able to give only meagre extracts, probably found its way into the Herald through the treachery of some one in the secrete who does not relish the "Houston" plot, and by early exposure, seeks to break it up

TEMPER OF THE "SYMPATHIZERS."

The New York Commercial Advertiser, to show the spirit which animates the Cuba party in New York, gives the following sketch of Capt. Rynders harangue to the meeting in the Park in that city That paper, in introducing it, says

The projectors of the invasion of Cuba, and their allies, have been aware from the first that they were violating the laws of their own country; and the demoralizing effect of persevering in a known illegal course has been strikingly apparent since the failure of the project. The riotous demonstrations at New Orleans, and the barefaced but unsuccessful instigations to riot uttered in the Park in our own city, by those who are most prominent in their laudation of the men who would rob a friendly country of its possessions, are painful evidence of the spirit of lawlessness which either moved to the project or has been engendered by the prosecution of the scheme It was no fault of one of the notorious speakers at the Park, save perhaps that he had not courage himself to set an example, that a certain newspaper office in this city was not sacked and robbed, and its editor maltreated or murdered. The knowledge that the police were prepared to quell any such lawless violence, and a remembrance of the fearful issue of the Astor Place riot, probably had their effect: and we will hope, too, that the hearers were better citizens than the speakers. Some of the remarks of one of the latter we subjoin:—

"There is a Spanish press here as well as in New Orleans, and there is a Spanish consul here as well as in New Orleans. The name of the Spanish paper is 'La Cronica,' which means, I am told, 'The Chronicle,' and I am told, too, it is pretty bad; and if it is half as bad as the one in New Orleans, the best thing that can be done with it, I think, is to pitch types, press, editor and all, the other side of Governor's Island, on the way to Cuba. [Great cheering.] But mind, fellow citizens, I am no law-breaker. [A great laugh.] I never break the law—[muttering in the crowd, 'That you don't, but you stir up others to break it, and keep yourself out of the way'] and I don't advise any body to break it but if this 'La Cronica' is as bad as they say it is—I don't know, for I can't read it—it would be better on the other side of Governor's Island than here. [Renewed cheering.] I approve the breaking up of the Spanish press in New Orleans I think I should have had a hand in it, if I had been there. I would not suffer a foreign paper to be insolent in my own country. [Cheers.] But mind ye here I advise no man to break the law.

"The press, bad as it is, is protected by the law.—The editor, odious and damnable as he is, lives under the law. (Cries of D—n the law.") But I can't help saying the press and the editor would be better on the other side of Governor's Island than here.—(Cries of "where is it?") I don't think even our own newspapers have any right to the protection of the laws when they are up against public opinion (!); but a foreign paper, a Spanish paper, the organ of a government that has just butchered fifty of our citizens in cold blood; mangled them, trailed their bleeding limbs in the dust—such a paper, I am sure, has no right to the protection of any law. (Renewed yells now of 'Where is it?') 'No. 5 Cedar street' is the place.—(Great surging of the crowd here.)

"But mind ye, fellow citizens, I advise no man to break the laws. There is danger in breaking the law (cries of d—n the law)—but humanity speaks, the spirit of a man within you speaks, your own heart speaks—and the number is 5 Cedar street. If I could read this paper, I should have read it the first thing this morning, and what was in it, I should have read to you to night, but it is lucky, for I rather wish to restrain than influence your zeal against such a paper. When the meeting is adjourned, however, let us go down there, 5 Cedar street; go in peace, I mean; but if any of you do, contrary to my advice, choose to look on there, and the press, and the type, and the editor, all come out, when you go in, why I shall be there to look on; and there is no knowing but what the force of example might be so strong, that I might be compelled to have a hand in it (laughter and cheers). As for the Spanish Consul, I would not advise anybody to touch him yet. He lives under our protection. He will be warned by the fate of his colleague in New Orleans. (Cheers) If the Spanish Consul here, however, should pull any of his ties in the Chronicle, though I am a law abiding citizen, still I think, I should be almost inclined, in this case, to break the law, and hang the Spanish Consul (Great cheering) Mayor Kingsland, I know, can't allow this to be done he is Mayor of the city, and must keep the peace—that is his duty but I shouldn't say to the Mayor, 'My dear friend, Mayor Kingsland, you go out of the city, it is hot weather, and you need an airing, go to Harlem, or the Almshouse, and we will finish this business while you are out.' The Mayor would say 'You Captain Ryders, I know, are a law abiding citizen, (a laugh) and if you will keep on the peace among the boys, I will go.' But I would not make any promises, and the thing would be done

The utterance of such sentiments, the applause which greeted them, and the carrying them into practice in the city of New Orleans, where it could be done at less personal peril, are the essences of the temper and character of the men against the abuse of whose proceedings—the lawless invasion of a foreign territory—we have felt our duty earnestly to protest. Foiled in the attempt on Cuba, they are now giving their fellow citizens at home a specimen of their temper, and of what they would do and would be, did not the strong arm of the law restrain them The outbreak of murderous violence at New Orleans is unexpressed in the countenance and mien of respectable men, and the sympathy with it is confined to the disreputable classes, and those who are ready to be excited to any thing. Had it been discovered, then, by other fair supporting facts, that the Cuban movement was a "spontaneous uprising of the people," and not a mere "filibustering expedition" on a substitute for the original John Sully Sarsaparilla: This variable preparation on the progressive warrants to be superior to all others

DIED.

On Friday morning, September 1st, at 3 o'clock, after a short illness, Mr. JOHN FLEMING, aged 54 years 9 months and 20 days.

The friends of the family are respectfully invited to attend the funeral from the residence of his son-in-law, No. 26 Fifth street, this (Tuesday) afternoon, at 4 o'clock, to proceed to the Allegheny Cemetery.

☞ How often is it the case that we reflect a slight wound, burn, scalding, or pain, in the vain thought that it will be well enough in a day or two, and neglect to apply the proper remedy, and before we are aware, a fever, and perhaps a mortification takes place, and the sufferer is beyond the reach of help, or he has to be amputated. Whereas, with a little of R. V. Farrell's Arabian Liniment had been applied at the time of the accident, it would have prevented all this. See advertisement
