Thedeep snow on the mountains has prevent d the arrival of Kossuth, and all the arrange Telegraphic despatches inform us that large for es of mon were employed clearing the track, and it is possible that the trains may be able t make their trips to-day. Kossuth was, yester day, still at Hollidaysburg, where he spent the day, still at Hollidaysburg, where he spent the The House resolutions, which we published some days since, were rejected by the Senate, this morning. It is best for all parties, and it will save immense trouble and expense hereafter. All the labor and expense of this suit have been incurred. Why lose all the benefit of this, and leave the ground to be gone over again?

Should the Legislature withdraw this suit, it that improper motives have influenced its action. The members snown account of the free and unthat all the heavy western produce which passes over our canals is conveyed on the river in large steamhoats, and at full stages of water.

The opinion of the Court was delivered by Judge Spalding, who added, that "without wishing to be understood as committing the Court, or a single member thereof," his own opinion was that the laws were unconstitutional. We invite the carnest consideration of the citizens of Pittsburgh to the route we have developed, for the following reasons:
1et. It is undeniably the shortest.
2d. It is the chrapest
3d. It requires the least distance of new railway (only 27 miles from here to Washington).
4th. It will be the best commercial line for buriness, uniting ak it does, the citize of Pittsburgh and Wheeling, through the county and town of Washington.
