The Pyramid. The following is one of the pleasantest and most ingenious things of the kind we ever saw. It is by C.S. Percival, and is copied from the Louisville Journal.

There For aye To stay Commanding. The standing. With golden hair. In his city fair. Its face beaming. Its height admiring. Its feet it sees afar. Its every smiling face. To raise the pile to heaven. These beauties stand together. Each pray for truth's inspiring light. Each, manly struggle for the right. Each kindly word to cheer the lonely. Each a sacrifice for the heathen.

Each strong temptation nobly overcome. Each champion passion held in silent dumb. As slow it rises and soars to heaven. Stone after stone into the mass is given. Its base upon the earth, its apex in the skies. The Good Man's Character. A Picaresque.

One way to do it.—In Russia the transportation of passengers by diligence is a monopoly, and one of the rules is that each passenger may have 10 pounds of baggage free, but must pay the rest.

PUNNET PARAGRAPHS.—An old man, being asked his opinion of a certain sermon, replied, "I liked it very well, except that there was no pinch to it. I always like to have a pinch to every sermon."

INTELLECTUAL EXAGGERATION.—In a late number of the Democratic Review, an article professing points out the supposed absurdity of a literal construction of the body, on the following ground: "Now, if a resurrection of all who have lived should take place, even within a short time, without any material increase of the vast number we have lived upon the earth, where would they find room, even for the shortest space of time, to dwell in? Their numbers would cover the whole surface of the earth in one solid mass, to a depth of miles in thickness."

A Good Hit.—A proselyting Roman Catholic said to a Protestant acquaintance, who had been at the Exhibition, "Did you see the beautiful dresses of the cardinals?" "Yes," replied the Protestant, "and I tell you what I saw besides—I saw the Bible translated into a hundred and twenty languages."—London paper.
