PITTSBURGH GAZETTE

LOOKING GLASSES FOR BIRDS.—A correspondent of the Gardener's Chronicle says:

"The following plan is perfectly efficacious for scaring birds from fruit and other produce. One of my servants having by chance broken a looking glass, it occurred to me that the broken pieces, suspended by a string, so as to turn freely in every direction, would give the appearance of something moving about which would alarm the birds. I accordingly tried the plan, and found that no bird, not even the most foolhardy of them, dare come near. They had attacked my peas; on suspending a few bits of the looking glass amongst them, the marauders left the place. The tomtits attacked my seckle pears, to which they seem very partial. A bit of looking glass suspended in front of the tree put a stop to the mischief. My grapes were then much damaged, before they were ripe, by thrushes and starlings; a piece of looking glass drove these away, and not a grape was touched afterwards. I had before tried many plans, but never found any so effectual as the above."

A YANKEE IN ITALY.—A correspondent of the Boston Transcript, writing from Naples, thus describes an amusing interview with a live Yankee:

"The other day, on reaching the top of Vesuvius, I descried a man sitting astride of a block of lava. I don't know why, but I marked him at once for one of my countrymen. As I advanced towards him I could not help noticing the cool manner in which he and Vesuvius were taking a smoke together. His long nine was run out like a bowsprit, and he took the whole affair as calmly as one could look at a kitchen fire at home. As soon as I came up with him he bawled out, 'Hallo, stranger! pretty considerable lot of lavy around here! Any news from down below? You haint tuckered out yet—be ye?' On asking him if he had looked in the crater, he replied, 'Yaas! but I burned the legs of my trousers though, I tell yew.' He turned out to be a man from New England, who came up from Marseilles to see the volcano."

HAMMERED SAWS—The subscriber would call the attention of dealers, and others, to this manufacture by his patent process of hammering, the saw is hardened, thoroughly tempered than it can be by any other method. It is well known to machinists, that any other metal tempered steel is the hardest next. Where saws are tempered according to the usual method and hammered by hand, it is necessary to polish them, therefore at making it the most serviceable part of the saw. These saws are not polished, and consequently require a coat to be appreciated. They have already been a trial in this city, and pronounced to be the most serviceable saw in this vicinity, and pronounced equal to any saw in the country. Orders promptly executed for saws of all sizes of Mill, Pit and circular saws.
