Whigs have adopted the Fugitive Slave Law as a plank in their Platform, we would not be astonished to find them disowning the poor negroes, who had been formerly provided by them with scates on the "under-ground railroad." But the negroes know them too well, and will meet them face to face at the Lundy's Lane Celebraid. It will no doubt be a delightful sight! We intend to have a special reporter on the spot who will furnish us with an interesting account of this great face and fardange.

Good-natured neonle will attribute the state. Good-natured people will attribute the state could induce him to return to Norfolk, he says: Good-natured people will attribute the statement that the Whigs will celebrate the anniversary of the battle of Lundy's Lane, "in Canada" to ignorance: and as we belong to that amiable class, we shall give the Post the benefit of that plea; but "there is something in this" mistake of the Post "so ridiculous that it is impossible to avoid laughing at the very thought of it." It is hardly necessary for us to tell our renders that the celebration will take place near the village of Nisgara, on the American side. A bellicese editor of Toronto, who, like the Post and the Loudon Times, is probably in favor of Pierce, got the same absurd notion into his head and Junius. TESTIMONY OF THE RHEMY. Some one would render good service by recurring to the files of the Union, in 1847, and collecting the magnificent eulogiums then and there lavished upon General Scott. At that time, General Taylor was the object of terror to the palace minions; and it was therefore, no treason to speak in fitting terms of the splendid ablievements of General Scott.
