IS GEN. SCOTT A CATHOLIC!

This question is asked us almost every day, both orally and by letter. We are informed that the Locofocos are spreading the report that Gen. Scott is a Catholic, in various quarters where they think it will do him an injury. Now we think that Gen. Scott has given sufficient evidence, in a long life, of his uprightness, patriotism, and freedom from all intolerance, to make it a matter of not much moment what his private religious views are. It is enough to know that he is a sincere Christian, an upright and honorable man, with no taint of bigotry and intolerance about him.

But to put a stop to these efforts to stir up sectarian prejudices, we will state, that Gen. Scott is a member, in good and regular standing, of the Protestant Episcopal Church. He was educated in that church, and has been a faithful member during a long and eventful life. He, himself, tells us, in one of his letters, that he is a Protestant, but that he awards equal privileges to all in the question of religious belief. He spent a Sabbath, in Pittsburgh, a few weeks ago. In the morning he attended service in the Trinity (Episcopal) Church, and in the afternoon in the 2d Presbyterian Church, Rev. Mr. Howard.

No member of Gen. Scott's family belongs to the Catholic Church. A daughter, while visiting Europe, some years ago, became a nun, and subsequently died in the convents of the Catholic Church at Georgetown.

While in Mexico, Gen. Scott gave evidence of the greatness of his soul, and his perfect freedom from bigotry, by guaranteeing to the people the most perfect security and entire freedom in their religious worship. Protestant as he was, he recognized the religious rights of others, and not one single complaint was ever made by the Roman Catholic Clergy and people of that country. Such a man cannot but be loved and honored by all good men.

It turns us to hear such narrow-minded proscriptionists as the editor of the Gazette, making appeals to the Catholic portion of our community. The man who never said a friendly word to them in the most close highest alm through life has been to malign and misrepresent them—to find him, now, endeavoring to flatter them, and to think that any of them is credulous enough to be betrayed by the kiss of such a Judas, excites our wonder.—Pittsburgh Post.

We clip the above from the Post of Saturday, taken from an article in which it is difficult to tell which most predominates, falsehood, hypocrisy, or cant!

It is false that we have made a single appeal to "the Catholic portion of our community," or that we have in any shape or form mixed up religion in this contest. We have always most carefully avoided any such issue, and we defy the Post to point to a line we have written or published which will bear any such construction. The Catholics of this region know our opinions, religious and political. We have never disguised them. They also know that we never have, either directly or by implication, advocated any other doctrine than the most unlimited freedom of religious toleration in regard to everything affecting personal, civil and political rights.

No! Religious appeals do not come from Whigs. They abhor all interference with the rights of conscience. It is the Locofoco party which is constantly appealing to the religious prejudices of Catholics, and thus mixing them up with the political contests of the day, greatly to their injury.

We have shown, conclusively, we think, that the Democratic party of New Hampshire is responsible for the existence of the odious religious test which disgraces the statute book of that State; and that Gen. Pierce, who has hitherto been omnipotent almost in everything else relating to Democracy there, failed to secure a majority to abolish the test, in his own town, his own county, or his own State, while the Whig districts voted for such abolition.

Now, whether this position is any objection to Gen. Pierce among the Catholics, or not, we presume not to say. We should infer that it was. We do know that it is an objection among Protestants, because such a test is in direct opposition to the spirit and genius of Protestantism, and its existence in a State nominally Protestant is a disgrace to Protestantism, and affords its opponents an argument against the genius of Protestantism to unlimited freedom of religious opinion.

If Gen. Pierce is elected, coming from a State which enforces such a test, and from the dominant party in that State, it will be noised all over the world, that the American people have decided in favor of a religious test, which would disgrace us in the eyes of all true friends of liberty. Unreasonable and bigoted men might, also, seize hold of such a result to create a party to extend such tests to other States, and thus awaken up a constantly slumbering feeling of religious bigotry; for there are always large numbers of men who cannot distinguish between an earnest and vigorous intellectual contest for the truth, and the propriety of enforcing their religious views by the power of the sword.

We consider this a strong objection to General Pierce, by all American citizens, whether Protestant or Catholic, because it is wrong in itself; an injustice to Catholics; obnoxious to the genius of Protestantism; at war with the Constitution of the Union, and a disgrace to a free, constitutional government. We hope the people of New Hampshire will hasten to remove such a stain from their statute book.

PITTSBURGH AND ERIE RAILROAD.—It is with sincere pleasure that we publish the official announcement, in our advertising columns, of a letting of seventy miles of the Pittsburgh and Erie Railroad. Contractors will find this work worthy of their attention. It is the intention, we understand, to urge on the work to a rapid completion. It is a work of great importance to this city, as it will open up to us a region peculiarly our own.

THE FEELING IN NORTH CAROLINA.—The Fayetteville (N. C.) Observer, after speaking of the numerous Whig mass meetings held in different parts of the State, remarks that accounts from all parts of the State are cheering, and show that the Whigs are thoroughly aroused and determined to carry the State for Scott and Graham. Most meetings have been held, and are proposed in every section; and in all parts of the State the steamers and sailcraft steamers have taken the field for a thorough campaign.

THE SHERIFFALTY.—We have taken some pains to ascertain the state of the contest for Sheriff, and from information received from every part of the county, we have come to the conclusion that Barkerism has been greatly overrated, and that there is not any danger of the county being disgraced by his election. All sorts of false and extravagant statements have been circulated in relation to Barker's strength, which, when they are thoroughly investigated, prove to be unsubstantial. We rejoice at this for the honor of old Alleghany.

The contest, whatever may be said to the contrary by interested partisans, lies between Magill and Kent. Barker will have a considerable vote, the bulk of which we fear, will come from those who have usually acted with the Whigs. In this, however, we may be mistaken. He claims a great many Democratic friends, but we think the result will show that Kent has polled the full Democratic vote. The locofoco leaders fancy there is a chance of Kent's election, arising from the dissatisfaction in the Whig ranks growing out of the violent contest for the nomination for Sheriff, and the Barker defection; and they are therefore putting forth more than an ordinary amount of effort to accomplish their object. By personal appeals and active exertions, they will most probably secure their party vote for Kent, and if the Whigs are neglectful and indifferent, or throw away their votes on Barker, Kent may be elected. We do not think this can possibly be the case, but it is the only thing we fear. If Kent should be elected, it will be sounded all over the State and nation, and will do the cause of Gen. Scott great injury.

Now, friends of Gen. Scott, are you willing to play into the hands of Locofocoism, and aid the cause of Pierce in this way? Are you willing that your old political enemies should chuckle over you, and laugh at your folly, when it is too late? We do not believe it. You have too much attachment to Whig principles, too great a stake in the election of Gen. Scott to allow his prospects to be injured in this way.

There is another reason why Whigs should rally to the support of Mr. Magill. He has been most shamefully slandered and persecuted. Joe Barker, whose character is well known, and we believe truly appreciated in this community, has pursued him unceasingly for months, with his blackguardism, and although nothing has been proved upon him which ought to do him the slightest injury in the estimation of any fair man, yet the locofocos have taken up Barker's slanders, and retailed them at their meetings, and insinuated them in resolutions. They have thus indirectly connived with Barker, have patted him on the back, and encouraged him to pursue his wicked and malicious course. Now, are Whigs prepared to stand by and see their candidate hunted down in this way, by Joe Barker and his allies, when no good reason can be brought forward why he should be given up to the tender mercies of such a desperate crew.—We cannot believe it. We have more faith in the honor and magnanimity of Whigs than to believe anything so ungenerous of them.

Telegraphic despatches announce that Hon. Thos. Baring, of the House of Baring, Brothers & Co., London, will be in town to-day. Our merchants and other citizens will, no doubt, take pleasure in receiving this distinguished stranger or those attentions which his personal character and high position merit at their hands. We understand he will remain for several days.

HALIDAY, ACCIDENT.—On Friday evening last a collision occurred between a gravel train and a construction train, loaded with bridge timber, on the Ohio and Pennsylvania Railroad, near Columbiana. The engine and tender, and baggage, but the men in charge of it believed that the track was clear, although they had been specially warned not to come in contact with the gravel train. They met on a curve, and the engines were immediately reversed. All the men on the gravel train jumped off unhurt. A brakeman on the timber train was killed, he was a young man from New Brighton, named Wallace Evans. Another brakeman named Sylvester Hastings had his leg broken; and a Welshman, named Thomas Daniel, a coal digger from Youngstown, who had got on to the timber train at Rose's Corners, the knowledge of the conductor, had his leg badly fractured. Several other men employed on the timber train were somewhat hurt, but none, it is believed, seriously. The accident is partly attributed to misunderstanding of the orders in relation to the running of the timber train, given by the master machinist in the absence of the Superintendent, who had gone on to Mansfield on business of the company. The engines were much less injured than might be anticipated, on account of an intervening tender, which protected their working machinery.

"THE GERMAN DEMOCRACY."

Under this head the Post of last Saturday has an appeal to the Germans, which for, its outrageous mendacity exceeds any thing we ever saw in print, and if it does not resort in Gen. Scott's favor, then we have mistaken the German character. Among other things equally false, we select the following from this disgraceful article:

"And why are the Germans with the Democracy; and all opposed to the election of Gen. Scott? We will tell you, reader. It is well known that Gen. Scott is seeking to convert this into a military government,—his many 'hasty' and ridiculous letters fully prove that fact. Every thing he writes and says shows that he wishes to place the military above the civil power of the country. His head is so full of this idea, that even in his letter accepting the nomination of the Whig National Convention, he undertook to amend the Platform adopted by that body, by sticking in his celebrated War Plank."

Such hass, impudent falsehoods shock the sensibilities of every thinking man, and make him blush for humanity; and yet the Post daily toems with such villainy, sent forth with the coolness of an adept in wickedness, to corrupt the public mind where it has any influence. We have heard much of Joe Barker's slanders, but the editors of the Post can sharp off the palm of precedence to this bad emfamous.

From every part of the country the most cheering news reaches us of the progress of the Scott cause. Every where there is union and harmony in our ranks, and a cheerful confidence of success. The whig papers in this State all promise increased majorities for Scott over 1848, which will give him Pennsylvania by an overwhelming majority.

SCOTT IN NEW YORK.—The prospects for the success of General Scott in the State of New York are now exceedingly cheering; and every day until the election promises to increase the number of his political friends. The Tribune, speaking of the subject, on the strength of observation made on the occasion of the late Whig Convention at Syracuse, says:

"We met at Syracuse delegates representing the Whigs of every county in our State, and to our inquiries as to the popular feeling and prospect, the answers were uniformly cheering. The Whigs are united, enthusiastic and confident, while thousands who have hitherto opposed us will now vote for Scott and Graham. We cannot lose New York, unless by some utterly inconceivable treachery or local defection. Stolid apathy might destroy us—but where does it exist? Disaffection might prove disastrous—but who is disaffected? The masses are for Scott; the poor and humble love him; the ardent and patriotic admire him; the City Guard advances to the contest under his banner with resolute confidence. If the vote of the State is fully brought out his majority must be large; if a part of it stay at home, it is not likely to be our part. But a light vote would leave to accident what a full vote will render a moral certainty."

A JUST TRIBUTE.—Henry Clay, in the Senate of the United States, in 1850, spoke thus of Gen. Scott and the Mexican war:

"I must take this opportunity to say that for skill, for science for bold and daring fighting, for chivalry of individuals and masses, that portion of the Mexican war which was conducted by the gallant Scott as chief commander stands unrivalled either by the deeds of Cortes himself or by those of any other commander in ancient or modern times."

NEW HAMPSHIRE.

CONCORD.—"There has been an evident change come over the Democrats of this region within a week. Something seems rotten to them in Denmark.' Gen. Pierce left to-day for Boston—don't feel easy.

"From all we can hear here Gen. Scott will be the next President. I had it from one of the party yesterday that they knew as much alarmed for their safety as the most of the foreign vote. If they cannot get back most of it, they say Pierce will be beaten."—Extract of a letter to the National Intelligencer.

FROM WASHINGTON.

Correspondence of the Pittsburgh Gazette.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 29, 1852.

Spirit of the Campaign—Certainty of General Scott's Election.

Here is the centre of political intelligence, and if any where an intelligent and reliable opinion can be formed of the probable result of the pending contest, it is in Washington. Our National Executive Committee is in receipt of at least one hundred and fifty letters per day, from all parts of the Union, asking for documents best adapted for circulation in the districts of the writers, and communicating authentic views of the state of the canvass. From the tenor and general current of their immense correspondence, it is evident that all is safe. The impetus which the Whig cause and that of its noble leader have gained, cannot be checked nor resisted. It must carry Gen. Scott into the White House, and secure the ascendancy of Whig principles for another four years. This is now the judgment of cautious and candid men of our party. The night of our doubt and gloom has passed away, and the morning has broken full of glorious promise.

I need not go into a detail of minute facts. The chief cause of the wonderful turn of the tide is to be found in the superiority of Gen. Scott's personal character over that of General Pierce. The former has all those elements of character which the people love, which strike their minds and arouse their enthusiasm. He is a great general, a hero both in peace and war. In all situations, his love of country, his patriotism, has been as conspicuous as his force of mind, his bravery, his genius for the conduct of public affairs. The principles of the two parties are not now in conflict, except upon the tariff and internal improvements; and therefore large masses of Democrats feel at liberty to indulge their love and admiration of the man, though in doing so they are compelled to support the candidate of their political opponents. Gen. Scott's speeches at the West have created indescribable enthusiasm for him all over the country. His fame as a soldier was cherished before as national property; but he now displays the powers and talents of an orator, for which not even his warmest friends gave him credit.

The Democrats, too, find they have for once made a great mistake. They have put forward as their leader a man whom the people don't know, in the hope that they would accept him because they knew nothing bad of him. But they now discover that the petty jealousies and personal feuds which determine the course of politicians, do not influence the people. Pierce was acceptable to Cass, Douglass, Buchanan, and Houston, because each was intent upon destroying his particular adversary; and in Gen. Pierce they thought a man was presented not specially hostile to either of them, and not of consequence enough to become a formidable rival in future contests. But the three millions of voters in the Union wanted a man of positive character, and took little thought whether he were the friend or foe of any of the little great men of the day.—And in this difference between the two men lies the whole morale of the campaign. Gen. Scott will win the day because of what he is, and Gen. Pierce will lose it, because pitted against a spirit of a higher order.

Recent intelligence assures us of almost the same States, and the same electoral vote which Gen. Harrison got. There is so good a prospect that Gen. Scott will carry his native State, that the Democrats are not anxious to obtain bets upon it, though six weeks ago they were excessively eager to put up two to one on several thousand majority. I think Virginia will vote for Gen. Scott, and now I believe he will carry Georgia and Florida.

A glorious Whig meeting is in progress in sight of my window, and the spirit which prevails at it, is an epitome of that which animates the land from ocean to ocean, and from the St. Lawrence to the Gulf. There is not a syllable of general news. JUNIUS

NEW YORK.

"The whig fires burn brightly all over the Empire State, says the Albany State Register. The prospect of triumph—complete and glorious—is cheering with every day. A general feeling prevails everywhere. The party is united, harmonious and determined. The State nominations just made at Syracuse are giving our friends fresh courage and new vigor, and from this time forward they will battle earnestly and incessantly, disputing every inch with their political foes.

The nominations are received with enthusiasm and without a murmur of discontent. All feel that the ticket is a strong one—one worthy to be associated in the great contest with the names of Scott and Graham. In every part of the State the nominations will be promptly and heartily responded to."

"We are perfectly confident in this State," writes one of the best informed gentlemen in New York. "We have worked New York up to 20,000 for Scott."

A gentleman writing from New York city says: "I feel very much encouraged as to New York, and believe we shall carry the city. Our friends here are in high spirits. Stock up!"

Another, writing from Troy, says: "Scott will carry this county by 800 majority; the rest of the ticket will get about 400. In this State all looks well. We shall carry it large, and Scott will lead the highest on the State ticket full five thousand votes."

OHIO.

In fact, everything we see around us, and everything we hear from other portions of our State, warrants us in assuring our friends abroad that Ohio is safe for Scott. The signs are all of the most encouraging character, and unless they should change entirely, there is hardly a doubt that Gen. Scott will carry this State, by a handsome, if not a very large majority. Our friends are active, energetic, engaged, and their hearts will not faint, por their hands weary, until the polls are closed on the second of November. Work is all that is required to secure us a substantial victory; and unless we greatly mistake the character of our friends, that work will be cheerfully and faithfully performed.

From other States we have cheering intelligence; even from California the prophecies of a glorious triumph are reaching us, while from States less remote, the victorious shouts which swell up from the fields of preliminary skirmishes, bear the name of Winfield Scott to the uttermost borders of our land; and in a few short weeks the voice of millions of the freemen of this wide and happy empire will unite in proclaiming him its Chief Magistrate.—*Cin.
