HOME MATTERS.

The funeral notice of Mrs. Hay's, in yesterday's paper, to take place to-day, should have read ten instead of one o'clock.

THE FAIR.—Yesterday morning at an early hour, the stock and manufactured articles began to arrive upon the grounds, and were taken to the several localities allotted to them. Never before has such a display been seen in Western Pennsylvania, for the exhibitors were not confined to our own county, but came from many of the neighboring States, and even from New England. We regret that we are unable to-day, to find room for an extended notice of the Fair, which would fill several columns, but may observe that the proceedings throughout were of the most gratifying character. The gates were handsomely decorated with agricultural implements and products, while over floral hall floated a fine flag. An eagle beautifully carved by George Shiras, Esq., was placed in front, surrounded by evergreens. The number of agricultural implements, and articles of Pittsburgh manufacture, were so great, that we are unable to give even a synopsis of them, while we must reserve all mention of stock, grain, flour, and other articles, for another occasion. The grounds were crowded, throughout the day, by throngs of visitors who examined the articles with much attention, and appeared delighted with all they saw.

The display of carriages and farm wagons was unusually fine, all our leading manufacturers exhibiting. Thrashing, and various other agricultural machines, were in full operation throughout the day, and attracted large crowds of spectators. The horses, both in point of number and quality, exceeded those of any previous year; the cattle were unusually fine, as were the sheep, many of which are valued at from one to fifteen hundred dollars each.

In our opinion the most tasteful display of manufactures on the ground was that made by W. T. McClurg, Esq. His beautiful articles of iron, comprising settees, chairs, hat-racks, umbrella stands, garden vases, school furniture, swaing and horse posts, and many other specimens, distinguished no less by their beautiful designs, than superior execution, attracted universal attention. He exhibited also a beautiful iron fire proof safe, finished both on the outside and inside in a most superior manner, and furnished with thief and powder proof locks of the most approved construction; also, a fine vault door. Among his articles was an ornament not belonging to him, technically termed a "ecmonstrance," manufactured by M. Usain, Jeweller and Silversmith, for a Catholic Church in Philadelphia. We are informed that no one in that city can execute any thing like it, and can well believe it. Our readers will have an opportunity of examining it for themselves, to-day, so that we will not attempt to describe it.

W. W. Wallace exhibited three beautiful marble mantles, together with a fine piece of sculpture representing a sleeping infant.

We observed several very fine paper hanging decorations designed by W. P. Marshall.

Nicholson and Payne's enamelled grates and mantle pieces were very fine, many of them fully rivalling marble. The utmost good taste was displayed in all their articles. They had also some very fine cooking stoves in their collection.

Jones, Quigg & Co., had a number of excellent springs, and axles upon the ground, comprising a large number of varieties.

A panel of wire fencing, by R. Towsend & Co., attracted much attention, and we hope to see it come into universal use.

Singer, Hartman & Co.'s solid box vices, patent springs and axles were deservedly admired; they were worthy of the reputation of this firm.

J. R. & J. T. Holmes' axes and hatchets were of admirable temper and quality.

The Excelsior Works, Messrs. Edwards, McKnight & Co., supplied a large assortment of locks, latches, window shutter fastenings, and other fine articles, which have heretofore received premiums both at our County Fair and at the Ohio State Fairs.

The trunks for ladies and gentlemen, exhibited by R. H. Hartley, were exceedingly well finished and convenient. His saddlery and harness did not fall below his exhibitions of former years.

Mr. A. Bradley, of the Rising Foundry, displayed a large number of the best cooking and parlor stoves, together with some excellent plain and fancy grates, which were much admired.

Mr. E. Morgan's specimens of carving were executed in the most artistic manner.

Wm. McCully & Co.'s window and plate glass was of excellent quality.

A very large collection of surgical and dental instruments, tailors' shears, saddlers', tinners', and coppersmiths' tools, and pocket and table cutlery, was surrounded throughout the entire day by crowds of admirers. They were really creditable to Pittsburgh mechanics.

Three specimens of cabinet ware, manufactured by Jas. Meyers, equalled any thing of the kind we have ever seen. They consisted of a lady's secretary, toilet table and rocking chair.

Our agricultural friends manifested much interest in C. W. Carroll's threshing and grain cleaning machines; they worked admirably.

A large number of beautiful specimens of variegated and plain glassware, from the O'Hara glass works, attracted universal attention.

The plain and ornamental cards and posters exhibited by Wm. S. Havens, were most beautiful, and could not be excelled in any State or city of the Union.

Many of the most excellent articles, of the far famed Novelty Works, added interest to the fair; they consisted of a mammoth platform scale together with a number of smaller ones, and a great variety of locks, latches, shutter fastenings, &c.

The gas fittings and brass work for plumbers' and engineers use, manufactured by Maffett and Old, were very creditable to them.

Crawford's patent steam water gauge, which took a first premium at the late fair, again attracted much attention.

Messrs. Culbertson and Scott exhibited a beautiful model of a machine for manufacturing bricks from the dry clay.

The display of leather of all kinds of manufacture, from the rough sole to the most highly finished patent leather, was very large, and the competitors numerous. We have not space at present for an enumeration of the manufacturers' names.

The rope and cordage of John Irwin & Son, as usual, distanced all competition.

Mr. Nelson's daguerreotypes equalled any we have ever seen in the East. His crayon portraits in particular, a new style, were most beautiful.

J. D. Williams' specimens of penmanship proved that he was a master of his art. He exe cuts both in plain and fancy penmanship.

Mr. J. J. Gillespie exhibited a highly finished and artistically designed picture frame, together with a number of paintings.

A beautiful piano forte, manufactured by T. L. Lesse, of Pittsburgh, was exceedingly creditable to him both in tone and finish, and would compare favorably with those of our most distinguished eastern makers. We also observed a number of beautiful models of churches, &c., made by him, which prove that he possesses artistic talent of no common order.

A case, rest etc., made by a sewing machine, were objects of much interest. The machine itself [of which Mr. R. Straw is the patentee for Allegheny,] was in operation on the grounds throughout the day, and its work could not be excelled, if equalled, by that of the most skillful tailor.

The display of poultry was infinitely superior to that on any preceding year. Among the exhibitors we observed, Dr. Gross, T. B. Updike, R. McKnight, Mrs. Wadsworth, Capt. Denny, and others. We have not room to-day for particulars.

One of the greatest attractions of the fair, and that which perhaps excited most attention, was a fine flock of pigeons, comprehending nearly all the varieties known to connoisseurs, exhibited by a son of George Parkin, Esq., of Allegheny city.

We are sorry that we are compelled to dismiss the ladies, whose beautiful productions added much to interest to the exhibition, so cavalierly, but hope them that it is not want of will but lack of room which prevents our noticing their beautiful embroidery, fancy work, &c., at length to-day.

Rather can we find room for a single remark on the fine display and variegated appearance of the we will, hereafter, be able to give an extended account of them.

The Fair will be opened at nine o'clock to-day, when single tickets of admission will be sold at ten cents, family tickets one dollar. Dinner will be served up by Messrs. Davis and Johnston, for the accommodation of visitors upon the ground.

Every exertion will be made by the Managers to please the visitors, and we anticipate a larger attendance than has ever before been known in Allegheny county.

FIRE.—Last night at about a quarter past eleven, a fire broke out in the cigar store of Asher Ecksiel, at the corner of Market street and the Diamond. Before the flames had made much headway, the members of the Vigilant were on the ground, and they were soon extinguished. The loss cannot be more than a few dollars. The fire appeared to have originated behind the counter. This store was burnt out a few weeks ago.

SUPPOSED INCENDIARISM.—The cap store of Mr. Richardson, on Market street, between Second and Third streets, was discovered to be on fire yesterday morning at three o'clock.—The Vigilant Fire Engine was promptly on the ground, and the fire was speedily extinguished. Loss about two hundred dollars, partially covered by insurance. The fire is said to have been the work of an incendiary.

ARRIVAL OF GENERAL SCOTT.

CINCINNATI, Oct. 5.

General Scott will not arrive until two o'clock. The boat was detained below. An immense crowd assembled on the wharf this morning, and they were much disappointed.

GENERAL SCOTT'S ARRIVAL.

CINCINNATI, Oct 6.

At an early hour this morning the city presented a stirring appearance, making preparations to receive General Scott, who was expected to arrive at ten o'clock, but he did not and the crowd was much disappointed. He did not arrive until five in the evening, and as soon as the cannon from the steamers announced his approach, the whole landing and the house-tops in the vicinity were densely crowded. The incessant firing of guns and cheers from the mass of the people as they waved to and fro presented an exciting scene. The crowd was so great, through the anxiety to see Gen. Scott, that there was much difficulty experienced in reaching the Burnett House. When he made his appearance he was welcomed by a crowd from the streets, windows and house-tops, with long protracted cheers. The windows were filled with ladies who waved their handkerchiefs in welcome to the illustrious hero. As he passed, the flags were hoisted from most of the houses, and even children had their banners with Scott and Graham on them. There was but little party distinction; democrats as well as Whigs seemed anxious to honor the nation's hero, on his arrival amongst us.

GEN. SCOTT—FURTHER PARTICULARS.

CINCINNATI, Oct. 6.

We left Madison last evening at 7½ o'clock, on the steamer Lady Franklin, Capt. Tucker, for Cincinnati. The citizens of Madison accompanied Gen. Scott to the boat, in large numbers, and the embarkation took place amidst the firing of cannon and music. There was much enthusiasm manifested in Indiana all along shore. On board we found Gen. Letcher, of Kentucky, lately from Mexico, on his way to Washington, the Hon. J. Glover, late U. S. Consul to Mexico, also for Washington, and a large number of citizens from Louisville and a deputation from Cincinnati. The Committee who went to Louisville after Gen. Scott left, were on board also. At several points along shore bonfires were lighted, illuminating the Ohio almost all the distance to Carrollton. When we reached Carrollton, in Kentucky, a dense fog had descended, and it was found impracticable to go further that night. The light of the bonfires and torches on shore alone prevented the boat from running on the bank. On reaching the wharf it was found that nearly one thousand persons had assembled. Gen. Scott had undressed and retired to rest, but so loud were the cheers of the people, that he awoke, and came out on deck in his dressing gown to address a few words of thanks to the citizens.

Having been awaked from his first sleep, the fog had a very bad effect on him. He is quite unwell to-day, no much so, as to prevent his receiving a welcome from, and addressing thanks to the citizens of Cincinnati. He laid over at Carrollton, all night, and left early this morning, as soon as the fog dispersed. At Warsaw, Aurora, and several other points at which the boat touched, a very large number of citizens assembled, all of whom were most enthusiastic in their receptions. Towards the afternoon, his illness increased, and it was found at last to be impossible to address the people along shore.—Gov. Letcher therefore addressed the various gatherings on behalf of Gen. Scott, informing them of his sudden illness.

About five miles from Cincinnati we met the mail-boat Pike with many Cincinnatians on board, and on the boats going alongside of each other, they were transferred to the Lady Franklin. Shortly after another boat, loaded to the water's edge with passengers and chartered for the occasion, met and joined the company with us near the city.

A third boat, also crowded, met us, turned and struck into line. On nearing the city, the guns commenced pealing forth salutes, and the levee and buildings were discovered completely covered with a dense mass of human beings. The streets also appeared thronged, as viewed in perspective from the river. The troops were drawn up, with music playing and colors flying. Every boat along the levee was decked out in flags, and covered with human beings, and the entire scene was one of the greatest excitement and splendor. Every thoroughfare seemed alive with the swarming thousands, and there could not have been less than 100,000 people on shore. The demonstration was certainly the warmest and most enthusiastic witnessed for many a day.

When the boat neared the levee, the shouts of the multitude rose on high with wild and deafening roar and the scene was very imposing, so closely was the levee crowded, that the entire bank appeared like a black and rolling sea, as the multitude swayed to and fro in anxiety to push forward towards the the landing place. The military, however, kept admirable order and a good line was formed to the carriages provided for Gen. Scott, and visitors. The people had been waiting seven hours in expectation of his arrival in consequence of the boat's detention Gen. Scott's health however, was found too poor to permit of a procession, as arranged and a formal reception, and the carriages drove direct to the Burnett House, greatly to the disappointment of thousands but amidst deafening cheers.

The General proceeded at once to his rooms, and has received but very few calls, and those only from officials. He intends recruiting his health by a good night's rest, and will receive a welcome and visit in the morning. I have heard of no accident attending the reception, with the exception of one man, who was badly burned on board the steamer, Brilliant, by the ignition of powder and explosion of fire works. The ovonstration here was decidedly the greatest on the route. Thousands have been pouring in from all the surrounding country, during the day, and the town is crowded with strangers. Ohio appears to be fairly aroused; and deputations from half a dozen different towns are now on the spot, eager to prevail on Gen. Scott to visit their respective localities. The movements to-morrow depend entirely upon the health of General Scott.
