PITTSBURGH GAZETTE.
THURSDAY MORNING, OCT. 26, 1852.

We notice in the Bon ton Ladies.—A new bonnet has made its appearance in Paris, originated by Madame Delay D'Oelberg, a name familiar in the dressmaking of Europe as fashion. The material is new as the Style. It is made of the silks of parishes' leaflets. Madame has received a patent for her ingenuity (the Home Journal, from his learned,) and has conferred its exclusive sale in England, upon a dashing milliner in Regent street, London. The Journal adds:—"Her namesake of these Bonnets has already obtained a perfect furor in Paris, and the vanity of the fair sex in which the material is made up into every style of wearer, from the simple mob to the matron or demure, fully justifies the name bestowed." This new article of dress is called the Dolores Bonnet.—New York Mirror.

"Who's Willard a Whig?"—Much amused the audience evening at an anecdote told us by a lecturer.

Our readers saw a little daughter in the public schools, and in those schools Mrs. Willard's History of the United States is in use.

The little one was setting upon her eye-lids, while her thoughts were concerned in investigation, which broke out in the following question, for the lecturer:

"Mother, Willard a Whig?"

"Not that I know of; but why do you ask such a question at that?"

"Because we have been studying her History of the United States, and though we have got down to 1847, she frequently speaks of and praises Gen. Scott, but never mentions Pierce once."

Well, our little lady becomes older, she will not ask how and why Gen. Pierce's name is not mentioned in History, and will not be. She is not the only one who is curious about the past history of Pierce.—New Orleans Crescent.
