THE HORSE.

The length of the face determines the breed of the horse. A good animal will have a broad forehead and a short face.

Just behind the eye is a pit filled with fatty matter, on which the eye revolves. As the horse grows old his fat is absorbed, and a cavity is formed over the eye. Horse dealers sometimes perforate the flesh and blow up the cavity, to prevent buyers from knowing the age of the horse by the sunken eye.

The brain of the horse is divided into two parts. The organ is small when compared with the size of the animal, being only half as large as that of a man. It is however twice as large as the brain of an ox, but not so large as that of a dog.

The sense of hearing in the horse is very acute. The ears of the horse show his disposition; and a good animal will have small ears, at a moderate distance apart, with a quick motion. The practice of cropping horses' ears should only to be mentioned to be condemned.

The eyes of the horse are so situated that he enjoys a most extensive vision. He has no eyebrows, and his eye-lashes are most singularly arranged. He has the power of drawing in his eyes when danger or annoyance approaches. The fatty substance in which the eye revolves sometimes becomes irritated. Cooling applications will diminish the irritation. The eyes of a horse should always be examined before buying, furnishing, as they do, evidences of the presence or non-presence of disease in the body. The horse suffers from a variety of diseases of the brain which are very common but yet not well understood. The staggers is a rush of blood to the head, caused by over-heating, or by tight collars. The symptoms of this disease are as follows:—The horse stops, and seems to be unconscious. Sometimes he falls insensible, and then when the apoplexy is over, and the blood again flows properly, he rises and rapidly recovers. In severe cases, the determination of blood to the head is still greater. He is uneasy, and is ready to fall; seems to sleep standing, and all his power soon becomes prostrate, and he dies.

Bleeding is the remedy for the staggers, with prompt application of physic and injections. A horse that has once had the staggers is always liable to a second attack.

The plain countenance becomes haggard, and the animal grows immovable, and soon becomes exhausted and dies. The causes are various. Injuries to the foot in shoeing, or on the road, or sudden colds, all produce it. The appetite is not affected, and in the early stages bleeding and physic are all that can save him, and seldom these are efficacious, and the horse usually dies.

The most dreadful and fatal disease of the horse is the lock-jaw. It is always liable to occur. The symptoms are as follows: The muscles become affected with spasms; and soon grow rigid; the ears are erect and immovable, and no alarm can cause them to move; the stiffness extends down the back and affects the limbs; the tail moves continually.

The sense of smell in the horse is very strong, and the membrane lining the nose is of a pink color. No animal, perhaps, has a greater sense of smell than the noble animal under consideration.

The glanders is a fatal and loathsome disease which has long been common to the horse. Little is known of its character, but it is deemed incurable. It is first detected by the discharges of the nose. The inner membrane of the nose instead of a pink color becomes of a leaden hue, and ulcers make their appearance. Nothing can be done to relieve the animal and he soon dies.

Cough of Three Years Standing Cured

Case of Mrs. Booth.

SUFFERERS, TRY TH'S GREAT REMEDY.

Bainbridge, Conn., May 26, 1852.

MESSRS. A. L. SCOVILL & CO.—Gents: Inclosed is statement of account, &c.

You may send us three or six dozen of SYRUP OF LIVERWORT, TAR, and CANCHALAGUA. In regard to the article, we would say, that many have called on us expressing their gratitude for the benefit derived from its valuable Medicine. One only in particular, Mrs. Booth, have we resided, of Deacon Booth, of this place. Three Years that she was scarcely able to walk across her room, and could take no food, and that of the worst, would not expect to live but a few days. She heard of your Syrup, and sent to us for it. She took the whole contents of one bottle, and soon she found her appetite returning, her cough leaving, and her strength increasing, and is now able to do her own work in her family, and visit our village, and appears quite well. Others are taking it with good effect. Yours truly, H. BALDWIN.

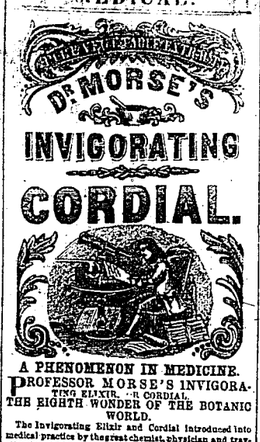
MEDICAL.



A PHENOMENON IN MEDICINE.

PROFESSOR MORSE'S INVIGORATING ELIXIR OR CORDIAL.

THE EIGHTH WONDER OF THE BOTANIC WORLD.

The Invigorating Elixir and Cordial introduced into medical practice by the great chemist, physician and traveller, Dr. M. Morse, has for its basis an Oriental Herb, first brought from the stony deserts of Arabia Petræa, by that eminent philosopher. The natives of that region are remarkable for their longevity, exemption from disease, and power of sustaining fatigue, all of which they attribute in a great degree to the use of the herb or plant referred to, which they use in their food, raw, and sometimes smoke. On his return to Europe, after a long journey in the East, Professor Morse commenced experimenting with this wonderful natural production, and the result of his labors is the Invigorating Elixir, which has been endorsed by the medical colleges of all the great cities of Europe, as the best preparation extant for the

CURE OF NERVOUS DISEASES.

No language can convey a correct idea of the immediate and almost miraculous change which it occasions in the diseased, debilitated and shattered nervous system. Whether broken down by excess, or by natural causes, paralyzed by sickness, the construing and relaxed organization is at once braced, revitalized and built up. The natural, and physical symptoms of nervous disease vanish together under its influence. The stooping, hollow, retiring action of depression and debility, becomes a new man—the shoulders are thrown back, the eye FIRE, the mind, which was previously sunk; gloom, or the shadow of melancholy, becomes bright, buoyant, active, and he goes forth to the world, energetic, and conscious of power to do accustomed occupations. For is the effect temporary. On the contrary, the relief is permanent, for the special properties of the medicine reach the constitution itself, and restore it to its normal condition. Well may the preparation be called the of the nineteenth century. In it, as the first scientific men in the old world have admitted, that miracle of medicine heretofore supposed to have ceased to exist,

A STIMULANT THAT ENTAILS NO REACTION.

Its forces is never exhausted, as is the case with opium, alcoholic preparations, and all other exhausting agents. Effect of these is brief, and it may well be said of him who takes them, that the last end of that man is worse than the first. But the Elixir is an exhilarant without a single drawback. It never intoxicates, never stupefies, never injures, never upsets the nerves, the mind, and the entire organization. In cases of Catarrh, Headache, Loss of memory, Dyspepsia, Hypochondriasis, dyspepsia, general prostration, Hysteria, Nervousness, Inability to sleep, Over composition, Low spirits, and all diseases of the nervous system, Loss of the propagating functions, hysteria, monomania, Epilepsy, or Falling Sickness, Palsy, Neuralgia, Nervousness, constipation, &c. &c. from whatever cause arising in life, if there is any reliance to be placed on human testimony, absolutely infallible.

It is the only known remedy for diseases of the nervous head and mind complaints! it is the mental physician sent among us, and never before found, the only natural remedy for the sufferer to a mind diseased. In cases of neuralgia, headache, vertigo, pain in the nerves of the face, and the various trials of nervous debility, it will produce a cure in an astonishing short period of time; and it will also restore to the sufferer such a tendency to blush, restlessness, sleeplessness, dislike of society, incapacity for study or business, loss of memory, confusion, giddiness, hope, and the blackest train of evil forebodings, hysteria, indecision, wretchedness, thoughts of self-destruction, lassitude, timidity, nervousness, want of energy, &c. &c. It will restore the nervous system to its original tone, and a large amount of health of body and mind will be the result. Full directions for use will be found in each bottle.
