...ge of the Newburgh branch.

The...t per mile, including stock, equipments, ...idings, and one hundred and thirty-nine miles of double track, was about $65,000 per mile. The receipts last year, were, from freight $1,905,684 29, and from passengers $1,-668,980 90—total gross earnings $3,569,815 29. The expenses were $1,871,168 10—about 58 per cent, leaving the net earnings $1,698,647 19 or about 52 per cent.

The stock subscriptions of the Company amount to $9,612,995; the balance needed to build the road was raised on income and convertible bonds.

A double track has already been laid down for 189 miles, beginning at Piermont, and extending westward; this is to be extended during the present year to Corning, a total distance of 277 miles. Beyond this point a double track will not be needed for several years. The point of intersection of the Allegheny Valley road with this road has not yet been settled; but it is certain that whatever point may be agreed on, will not be very far west of Corning, so that we shall have the advantage of a double track from that point to New York.

The New York and Erie road being of the same gauge as the Allegheny Valley road, cars starting from here can pass through to New York, with the advantage of a double track upon the most crowded part of the New York thoroughfare.

A branch now extends from this road, at Hornellsville to Buffalo; and there are several railroads of the same width of gauge now constructing, connecting at different points on the road, viz.: one at Great Bend, one at Binghamton, one at Owego, two at Elmira, two at Corning, one at Hornellsville, all of which, by their position, are tributary to, and dependent upon this road.

The easy grades and slight curviuoss of this road, in connection with the very favorable grades and direct course of the Allegheny Valley road, will make this route from Pittsburgh to New York, when ready for travel, one of the easiest, safest and speediest in the country. We know of none other, now, in the same direction, which can compare with it. On such a road, a high rate of speed can be attained with perfect safety; and its numerous advantages cannot fail to draw to it a profitable trade.

MURDER CASE IN MAHONING CO. OHIO.

An interesting murder trial has just taken place in Canfield, Mahoning county, Ohio, a report of which has been furnished the Dispatch of this city. We copy this report for the information of our readers in that region. Wm O Moore, was indicted for the murder of Sarah Stewart, his sister-in-law. The murder occurred last September. The following is the narrative of the facts in the case as they were developed upon the trial:

It appeared first, that some time since Miss Stewart had "sworn a child" to Moore, and that the case was set down for trial at the last September court. On the afternoon of September 17th, being the week previous to the sitting of the court, Sarah Stewart left home to go to Youngstown, on foot, with some things to sell, calling with her some money and some notes on individuals in the neighborhood; after doing her business in Youngstown, she started southward on the left home; and (although seen by two or three persons until within some half a mile of her mother's house,) she never reached it, and her body was found eight days after, floating in the Mahoning river. Upon being drawn from the water it was found that, inside of her clothes, two large stones had been placed, and around the body a strong twine string had been wound, the legs crossed over each other, the string being so placed as to keep the stones in their place, but they not being heavy enough, the body had risen and floated a short distance. Upon further examination, a short distance above, the place was found in the bank, where the larger stone fitted, and as the water was very deep at that place, and known by the name of the "Pike-Hole," it was concluded that there the body was thrown in. Some foot-tracks, as of a large boot, were also found there, and the weeds around gave evidence of some heavy body having been drawn down the bank.

A post mortem examination was then held by three very able practitioners, (Drs. Trondale, Garlick and Stewart) when the body was found to be much discolored, as if by violence, on the neck, arms and abdomen; on the linen, marks of blood were apparent, and by an examination of the lungs, shewing the absence of water there, and from other signs, the physicians were unanimous of opinion that she was dead before she was placed in the water, and that the discolorations was caused by strangulation and other violence.

Suspicion naturally fixed upon Wm. O. Moore, and upon some inquiry it was found that he had stated during the week, to his boil, that "she would never appear against him," "she was not in the neighborhood," &c. He was arrested and tried before E. P. Drake, Esq., and for want of sufficient evidence was discharged. He afterwards arrested, and upon a very full hearing, was bound over by James Brown, Esq., of Lordsell. The Grand Jury found a true bill, and the case came up at the February term, for trial, at Canfield.

The foregoing facts were proven; and it was further shown that on the afternoon of Friday, the 17th September, after Miss Stewart left home for Youngstown, Moore, (who was her brother-in-law, and lived on an adjacent farm,) having ascertained from a neighbor that Sarah had gone to town, left home with a Mr. Thorn for Youngstown, on the pretext of paying Mr. Thorn for a grindstone he had bought from him. After doing some business there, he left town in company with a young man named Beggs, in a buggy, a short time after the unfortunate woman. A company of engineers, some of whom knew Moore, met him a short distance from the village, before dark. She took up a road leading towards her home, different from the one which he pursued, and Beggs left him at home about eight o'clock.

Beggs, in his examination, testified that a few days afterwards Moore attempted to persuade him that it must have been much later than this; but he knew, from other facts, that it could not have been more than eight o'clock. A Mr. Kinmell swore that, about nine o'clock that night, he met Moore on foot, coming from his own house towards the road which it is believed Miss Stewart took on her way home. And shortly after, or about that time, a Mrs. Veal, and some boys, heard cries of distress in that direction, near a swamp; and Mrs. Veal swears positively that she heard words like the following: "Oh! William, don't!—William Moore, don't!" The boys were out hunting, and heard cries, but did not distinguish the cries, and were so much frightened that they went home. Mrs. Veal's testimony was confirmed by some of the inmates of the house. The next night the same Mrs. Veal heard some person taking a one horse wagon from their yard, and driving it off, and on examination the next morning, it was found that their harness had been displaced, and that the wagon tracks led up the swamp before named, and back into the road. Subsequent examination showed that a wagon had been driven which was very ably managed by Hon. John Crowell and Hutchins and Powers for the prosecution, and by Judge Burchard and Mr. Sutliff, Esqv, for the defence, (the speeches of Crowell and Sutliff are spoken as master-pieces,) when the cause went to the Jury—which, after being out some thirty-six hours, brought in a verdict of murder in the second degree, the punishment of which, in this State, is imprisonment for life.

The verdict caused great astonishment; as, if there was a murder committed at all, it must have been of a very aggravated and deliberate character. It is understood that the jury were divided—part going for the first degree of offence, and part for the second, owing to conscientious scruples, as to capital punishment—and this verdict was agreed upon as a compromise. Judge Day, in the course of the subsequent argument, on a motion for a new trial and in arrest of judgment, remarked that in his opinion it was such a verdict as an intelligent jury might agree upon, from the fact that the parties might have met by agreement, and that in a passion a murder might have been committed. The counsel for the defence moved for a new trial on the ground that the verdict was not consistent with the law and the evidence, but not being granted —the Court sentenced the prisoner to imprisonment for life. A writ of error was, however, applied for, to the Supreme Court, which will be argued before that body in May; in the meantime Moore lies in jail awaiting the decision of the Court.

Thus ended, for the present, one of the most memorable criminal cases which has occurred in Ohio; and, however people may differ here, as regards the punishment of the offence, but one sentiment pervades this community, and that is, that Moore is guilty. Yours, MAHONING.

Correspondence of the Pittsburgh Gazette.

FROM CALIFORNIA.

PLEASANT VALLEY, Jan. 25, 1853.

MR. EDITOR:—I have a few stray items of observation, and to dress them for the columns of the Gazette is now my purpose. They have been gathered during my uneventful experience here, among the rugged mountains of California. They may not be trim and debonaire as the fanciful sketches of imagination, as they hail not from a land of literary pretensions, but a land they may be taken as a candid and dispassionate history of things here, noted down under no extraordinary feeling of excitement, or jaundiced expressions of misfortune.

I would like to know the exact number of people here in California; it must be large. From some statistics I noticed a day or two since, compiled, I think, for the S. F. Herald, the natural increase during the year was sixty-four thousand, so calculated from the record of the steam ship companies, and the assumption that about thirty-five thousand crossed the plains. Well, what I was going to say is this, that the amount of labor, actual manual labor, done here, would astonish my eye. Go to any of the large mining districts and notice the work that has been done, and think too that all this has been done in less than four years. The whole earth in places has been upturned, and dug over and over again; rivers have been entirely turned from their original channels; mountains have been tunnelled and hills dug away—no obstacle is esteemed too difficult, no undertaking too arduous for the eager gold hunter. Even the water wanting, ditches are constructed winding around from hill to hill to carry it. Flumes are made at extraordinary expense. The South Fork, 's flume will cost something like a million dollars; and so much confidence is there in it, that holders of stock have refused 20 per cent. premium. And what an amount of labor has been useless—wasted in prospecting. There is a class of miners that do nothing else than prospect: eager to make their pile, they can't be satisfied with any thing reasonable or unreasonable, and they never have more than will keep them from one day to another. They are chiefly old forty-niners, as they are termed, that have seen the golden age of California. But that time is past—fortunes are not now dug up in a day. I think the illusion will soon fade, and that men will not come here with the expectation of making a pile in two or three years. Let them expect to spend years of labor and diligence, and they may make something.

I am not apprised of the whereabouts of very many Pittsburghers. Some of them are doing very well. Mr. John Borland, of Allegheny City, is my partner in business; he is pretty well satisfied, I believe. Mr. John King left for home on the last steamer, together with Daniel Baron, of Butler, and others. Quite a number are coming: many with the purpose of driving our stock next season. The destruction of stock by the late storm was immense—thousands of head of cattle; on one Rancho alone about two thousand head. It is almost impossible to get beef here; it is now worth 40@3 per pound. I trust that next season, stock will not be so scant.

The Legislature, after considerable useless figuring and contending, have at last settled upon Vallejo as the Capitol. I think it is a place not marked with any extraordinary degree of intelligence or statesmanship, at least any one who had read or listened to the pecuniary ebullitions would have thought them imbecile and pedantic; but anon.

But I must mention some more Pittsburghers to my letter. Aaron Hart, J. Turnbull, Hart Darrah, and Aaron Armstrong are at Weker, and Thomas McQuiston, Mitchell, and a host of others at Sacramento city. P. McMillen, and Drake, and Butler, at Diamond Springs.

I spoke, in a former communication to Pittsburgh, of the loss of the steamer Pacific. The rumor was altogether unfounded.

There was quite a shock of an earthquake down the coast, about Acapulco. The shock lasted several hours.

Business is now very active at the Bay, and we confidently anticipate a fall in flour, which has been held for the last four months at the most ruinous rates, by speculators. I hope their day is over.

We have plenty of deer here in the mountains, and occasionally his grizzly majesty presents himself, to tempt the aim of our sportsmen.

Well, I believe my tale is spent. My respects to all. Yours,

WILLIAM BARR.

For the Pittsburgh Gazette.

MR. EDITOR—In your weekly, dated March 10th, under the head "Slavery a Blessing," from the Philadelphia Register, I find the following sentence: "The Georgian quotes with approbation the opinion of Dr. Stiles who maintained before the Presbyterian General Assembly, of 1850, that the men who dwell South of Mason and Dixon's line have done more to convert, 9 heathen than the whole world besides." I cannot believe that you would knowingly give publicity to an error; it could not give you pleasure to cast deserved or undeserved odium upon any branch of the Christian Church. Connected with the above "opinion of Dr. Stiles" there must be an error, and surely you will be willing to correct it. The error did not originate with you, nor can I see how it could, since the reading of your paper, for six years, convinces me that you are not given to deal in unfounded assertions. Do you ask why I think there must be an error in the above? The answer is—First, if Dr. Stiles ever was a member of the Presbyterian General Assembly, we are permitted at least to take it for granted that he was at that time a sane man. And being such, I cannot see how he could maintain the "opinion" attributed to him.

Second. Among the members of the General Assembly of 1840, there is no Dr. Stiles to be found. Ergo: Dr. Stiles did not maintain said opinions before the Presbyterian General Assembly of 1850.

Taking these grave charges as his text, the "Sovereign Pontiff" proceeds at great length to illustrate and enforce his objections to the encouragement given by the government of Granada to education and to free principles, and to its expulsion of the Society of Jesus, and its refusal to permit them to control the civil as well as the religious affairs of the country. After complaining very bitterly of these acts of disobedience, he refers to the efforts of himself and his predecessors to prevent the passage of the obnoxious laws, and proceeds to condemn "the injustice of law in particular, by one of which it was proposed that, without in the least consulting the apostolic See, tithes should be abolished; and by the other, that emigrants to that country might have the public exercise of their worship, whatsoever it was. And disapproving of the above mentioned decrees, we again and again protested that they should never be ratified, and that the Church should enjoy all her rights and full liberty."

He then comes immediately to the subject of what he calls the "horrible and sacrilegious war upon the Catholic Church," in existing laws in which "the right also of free education is defaced, and liberty of all kinds is given unto all, so that each person may even print and publish his opinions, and all kinds of monstrous portents of opinions, and profess, privately and publicly, whatever worship he pleases."

This is from the sacred lips of the Pope himself, and our readers can easily judge for himself what the Catholic Bishop and Priests here, and their organs, mean by "free education," and what by Catholics, Infidel, and sectarian schools, and what their notions are of a free press, free thought, and freedom of conscience. Is not this evidence that cannot be gainsayed, and from the very highest authority, that Romanism and the spirit of the Roman hierarchy is against all education, except such as is based exclusively on the Catholic religion?—Detroit Tri.

THE FIRE.—We visited the pork-house of Jackson, Owsly, & Co. yesterday, and found that the loss by the fire had been much exaggerated. The establishment is one of the most extensive of the kind in the West.

The parts destroyed are the smoke-house and the house used for storing bulk meat. The main building and the lard house, which comprise three-fourths of the entire concern, sustained no injury. There were from 60,000 to 70,000 pieces meat in the two houses. A small portion of them will be saved in a damaged condition. The yard was filled with barrelled pork and lard, but none were burned. A few barrels were damaged by the falling of the walls.

The highest estimate of the loss of property is $75,000 which is mostly agencies in this city. The building was insured for $30,000 and the contents in foreign agencies in this city and in New Orleans. Their value was probably about $9,000. Messrs. J., O., & Co. owned the building but none of the contents burned.—Lou Jour.

CATTLE AND SHEEP FOR CALIFORNIA.—Mr. A. L. Grave, of Ste. Genevieve, Mo., starts for California in a few weeks with a drove of 500 head of cattle, and between 5,000 and 6,000 head of sheep.

The Cincinnati Times says there are fifty-nine "Spiritual Circles" regularly organized in that city, and more than twice that number occasionally meeting. The number of medians is stated at three hundred and ten.

The Spirit Rapping Case—Sam'l. Cole—It turns out that the story about Mr. Samuel Cole was in the main correct, and that he lived pretty near this County, to wit: in Canaan township, Athens Co.

We have received a statement of the facts from Dr. L. Fulton, of Amesville, who dressed Mr. C's foot. He says Mr. C. is a very fine man; that his wife deceased about the time of the first excitement in relation to spiritual manifestations; that he embraced the doctrine, and that probably confirmed his insanity or perverted his mind. He split his foot with an axe, instead of cutting it off, as was stated in the article referred to. Mr. C. was sent to the Asylum but has returned to his home sound in mind.—Marietta Intel.

MESSRS. BURKE & BIRNEY—Dear Sirs: I now write to say that your Salve has entirely cured my wife of a bad sore on her breast, which had been of long standing, and which I had given up as incurable. I am happy to say that I have not seen a sore of the kind since I bought of you last fall on the morning of the 10th of June last—my store building was burned to ashes. It was built of wood and brick—a large three story building. My wife was in it at the time of the fire, and fell into the cellar, where she was for a large amount of oil. It was a very hot fire.

My notes and books, accounts and papers were in the Safe, amounted to about Ten Thousand Dollars, which was injured. There was not a single paper injured; and further, I would advise any person who is doing business, to lose no time, but buy a Safe to keep their papers, &c. in—and get one that is good. I can safely recommend yours to be so. Yours, truly, JOHN CLARKE.

THE GREAT RESTORATIVE.—Fever and Ague cured by Dr. M'Lane's Liver Pills.—Mr. Jonathan Houghan, of West Unionville, Chester County, Illinois, writes to the proprietors, that he had suffered greatly from a severe and protracted attack of Fever and Ague, and was recommended to try their pills, which he did, and finally alone. These Pills unquestionably possess a great tonic properties, and can be taken with decided advantage in many diseases requiring invigorating remedies; but the leading and best recommendation as a means of restoring a disorganized Liver to healthy action, is the great celebrity they have attained. The numerous formidable diseases arising from a diseased Liver, which so long baffled the skill of the most eminent physicians in the United States, are now rendered easy of cure, thanks to the study and perseverance of the distinguished physician who first discovered this great medicine boon—a name which will descend to posterity as one deserving of gratitude. This invaluable medicine should always be kept within reach, and on the appearance of the earliest symptoms of disease, either, it can be safely and usefully administered. Furnace For Sale.

A chance for any person with small capital, who is acquainted with the business of making Iron.

THE subscriber having purchased, some two or three years ago, an Iron Stone Coal and Iron Furnace property, which however it does not suit him to carry on, offers for sale the whole of

THE CHERRY FURNACE is situate in Somerset county, about 12 miles from Connellsville, 11 turnpike road leading from that place to Somerset, 17 miles to the latter place. The property, about 300 acres of cleared land, excellent for farming, on which are erected a Dwelling House, 2 story high and an Ore and Coal right. Also, about 1,200 acres of land, about right, lately purchased, in which is a large body of Iron Ore, and Coal and Limestone from 4 to 6 feet in thickness. The ore is of good quality, and lies close in the hill, and the coal is of a good thickness and of good quality. There is also an abundance of Limestone in the neighborhood. The Furnace is 35 feet high. The Water power is sufficient to run the blast for the yearling, months in the year, and for at least nine

Terms:—I will take, for the said Farm, 25,000; $2,500 in hand, and 5 instalments in two yearly payments, without interest. And I will take, for the said Furnace, brick stack, railroad, sufficient for carrying on the same, $1,000.

About $200 would put the Furnace in running order. For further particulars, inquire of the subscriber, or JOHN WHITE, Esq., of the city of Pittsburgh; or, to the subscriber, at Somerset, Pennsylvania.
