Outo and Prinstruanta Raimoad—The Extension.—Since the last meeting of the Alleghery Councils, the difficulties in regard to the attension of the Ohio and Prinstruanta Raimoad—The Extension of the Ohio and Prinstruanta Raimoad—The Extension of the Ohio and Prinstruanta Raimoad—The Extension of the Ohio and Prinstruanta Raimoad to this city, seem as far from a satisfactory vibricidation as ever. The resolution appointing a Committee to confer with the Directors of the Legislature to confer with the Directors of the Legislature for further legislation, before any negotiation can take place. The Company the Monday presents satisfactory evidence that this is done. Whother the Company has commenced the survey of a noute to cross the river at the Point; starting somewhere near Wood's run, below Manchester, and coming up on the west side of the bluffs of Seminary Hill. This route will be comply with this demand, or not, we are not informed.

doubtless, satisfy some of the people of Alle going, but we doubt whether it will meet with the approbation of the majority. We approbate the supprobation of the majority we with a club. the approbation of the majority. We cannot see, however, that other course the Company can take, unless the Councils modify their post

As far as this city is concerned, we suppose the Point route would be as satisfactory as any other. Having permitted the Pennsylvania Road to occupy Liberty street with rails, it will not make much difference if migh business is placed upon it. By laying down another track, of 4 feet 10 inch gauge, the interchange between the roads could be affected without much inconvenience.

members of Congress, in caucus assembled, not only agreed to support the Nebraska outrage, but they undertook to control the press. They passed a resolution, and one account says, they appointed a committee to rebuke the National Intelligencer, and to endeavor to bring it back to the Southern traces. We doubt not the veteran editors of the Intelligencer will treat this audations interference with the contempt it merits; but what are we to think of the arrogance and impudence which could thus coully undertake to muzzle the press, and thus remove one great obstraction to the ineditated villainy. Why do not these Scnators pass a bill establishing a censorship at once? It would be quite as constitutional and democratic as any of their schemes for the extension and establishment of slavery. The National Intelligencer still maintains its manly port and firm resistance to tho act of punite faith which these Southern Whig Senators have resolved to support. The Washington correspondent of the North American says:

respondent of the North American says:

The resolution against the National Intelligencer, adopted by the Southern Whig caucus, has not awed that excellent journal into the support of the Nebraska bill. In the opinion of wise and good men of all sections, it never occupied a more elevated and noble position than in opposing that scheme.

The clerk, Mr. Jas. Godfrey, was in the office, and was somewhat injured. The pilot, and we have the more considered that scheme.

In. B. R. Packard, had just stepped on to the pooling that scheme.

The Monongahela Bridge.—The people of Brownsylle lately held a meeting to second the movement of the people of Brownsylle lately held a meeting to second the movement of the people of Brimingham, to have the Monongahela Bridge raised to a height sufficient to allow of ordinary navigation. At present it subjects the navigation at times to great inconvenience. The Wheeling Intelligencer seizes on this movement as a glorious occasion to triumph over Pittsburgh. It says that "retribution has come sooner than was expected." "Pittsburgh is about to reap the reward of her persecution of the Wheeling Bridge." "The Bridge Law manufactured to order by Judgo Grier and the Supreme Court" is to be applied to us, ste. Now all this may be very gratifying to our Wheeling peighbor, but unfortunately for him it has no application. Pittsburgh has no feeling about the matter. If the Bridge has to be raised there will be no opposition to it, except among the stockholders. If is admitted on all hands the stockholders. It is admitted on all hands that the Bridge is too low, and that it ought to that the Bridge is too low, and that it ought to that the Bridge is too low, and that it ought to the Rev. Mr. Gassaway has died of the wounds be raised. It was built some thirty odd years ago, before the idea of a stenmboat on the Monongahela had entered into the head of any body. It was then high enough for all the purposes required of it. When it was re-built, after the great fire, it ought to have been placed higher .-This was the general opinion. The Directors chose to keep it at the old elevation. They cannot now complain if the people protest against not now complain if the people protest against the obstruction it creates, and require its elevation. The people of Pittaburgh, however, whom the Wheeling editor triumphs over, care very little about it. They will be very glad to see the bridge go up if the stockholders will agree to it; and we believe they will, sooner or later.

To Connxeponders.—The article on "Punishment not Reformatory," is too long and didactic in its character for a newspaper article.

John Mitchell is in a fair way of following in the wake of Brownson, Bakewell, Bishop Ives, and others. In his last paper, he says:

I have just read in your last paper, an account of a recent case occurring. At Natchea, where a negro was burntalive, for refusing to obey his master, and in which the clergy, the judges, and the most respectable citizens took part. This was taken by some of his friends and properly in the most respectable citizens took part. This is given by you in an extract from the 2-Natches. Free Trader, published there. As the particular of this horrid transaction are not given, it take the liberty to request that the whole of the article of the 'Free Trader' be published in your paper, with the particulars of the acts which led to the burning of the negro, in order that we may have the fullest information on the subject, so that, if we think proper, public meetings may be held in every town and settlement in the country, to denounce an act so revolting to the
