-HOME MATTERS. JEWELL'S EXECUTION.

reday night, Rev. Mesers. Douglass passed the night with Jewell in preion for the awful scene on the following lay. Towards morning, the conden cil cuilea

ay. Towards morning, the concenned cauca-vored to sleep, but the extremity of his couli-tion prevented him. Early resterday morning Rev. Messrs. Doug-lass, Brown, S. Kerr, M'Gowin, Dempsey and Thomas visited his cell, and starged with him until within a few moments of his execution,---Jewell was deeply affected, and prayed most carneedly.

Jewell was deeply affected, and proyed most carnesdy. At an carly hour those holding tickets, and others, actuated by a morbid desire to be at least mear the terrible scene, crowded around the entrance on Ross street, to such a degree, that the passage along the street was obstructed. About nine o'clock, the Dusquesso Greys-26 muskets—Capt Campbell, and the Independent Blues—25 runk, and file—Capt. Hay, enterd the court House grounds, and were immediated the Court House grounds, and were immediated the constantly interested an the street, followed by the others, by ten o'clock there were thousands on the attreet. with him all the time from Welne-day morning until yesterday. About half-past ten Sheriff Magill gave orders to klmit those having tickets. Inneediately a rush was mule by the crowd twowerds the doors. The Greys and a squad of the Blues were or-dered by the Sheriff to clear the crowd. It was with the greatest difficulty this was a complish-ed, as the crowd would listen to nothing; every man seemed determined to force his way through. The soldiers were origred to charge upon them with their bayasets, which was done. The crowd was driven back some feets when on attempting 'again to break through the line, the g again to break through the line, the oaded with ball cartridges, and charged ocked muskets. By this means only wer with cocked maskets. By this means only were they enabled to keep them back. Great/creati is due the Greys for their ener-gotic confinet. They were always on hand, ready and efficient in the discharge of their duty. The same may be said of the olicer company. The crowd of those having tickets were ad-mitted at half-past ten into the catterin jail yard, where they remained until twelve o clock. About that hour a squad of both companies were admitted into the western yard, where the gallows were creeted, and placed on guard around it. The numbers of the Press were then ar-ranged is a convenient location, and the crowd anged in a convenient location, and the crowd a the eastern yard admitted through the fall. The gallows is about fourteen feet high, having two feet of a fall. The platform is about four feet from the ground. The trap is supported by a large moreable cross plece, which is connected by ropes at a distance of forty-five feet to a board by ropes at a distance of forty-five feet to a board lawing a number of weights on it. This board is in an upright position, and is kield flux by an-other rope which loops over a pin at the foot of the stairs leading to the platform. The pin on which the loop is placed first passes through one end of a long lever-the rope is then placed over the lever. By touching the other end of the lever, the rope is knocked off, the board falls, the lever. By touching the other end of the lever, the rope is knocked off, the beard falls, lragging with it the cross-piece, letting the platform, which is on hinges, down. The coffin was brought into the yard about half-past eleven, and placed on chairs in front of the railows.

the gallows. In the meantime the prisoner remained in his cell, absorbed in prayer. About twelro o'clock, a German Priset obtained admittance, and pro-ceeded to the cell, and while Rev. Mr. Douglass was in the milst of a prayer, rushed forward, weired the condemned man around the waist and said, "Do you believe in God; this is our God," "obtaming a large errors. He proceeded at this said, "Do you believe in God; this is our God," obtruding a large cross. He proceeded at this rate, so ruledy and so inappropriately, while a Minister was in prayer, and while every moment was of immonse importance to Jewell, distract-ing his thoughts. The prisoner said he did not know him, and begged him to retire. This re-quest was reiterated. Sheriff Magill being in-formed of the circumstances, sent Officer Fox, who removed him from, the cell. The prisoner again proceeded to prayer, and remained occucool as it was possible to be: About five minutes to one o'clock, Sheriff Ma-rill processied to Jewell's cell, and stated that he had come to prepare him for the last scene. The unfortunate man requested that he might go to the gallows with himself and Dr. Glemn, which was granted. The Clergy having refired, the hangman came into the cell, scized the pris-oner roughly, and proceeded to make the neces-sary preparations, in a rude manner. Jewell remonstrated, telling him that he was not a dog. collect to the matter, the hangman proceeded with his daty in a more becoming manner. As he desired, Jewell appeared in the yard, arm in arm with the Sheriff and Dr. Glenn.--When the gallows first met his vision, he was visibly affected. If, however, recovered, and walked up the steps firmly. - Facing the larger portion of the crowd, he re-quested Sheriff Magill, in memory of his many nets of kindness to him, not to he his execu-tioner.
