ment, but what is good between man and man is often a good system between one state and an other. How would it be if, in the event of any catastrophe occurring in Turkey, Russia and England were to declare that no power should be England were to declare that no power should be allowed to take possession of its provinces; that the property should remain as it were, under seals, until amicable arrangements could be made as to its adjudication?"

"I will not say," the Emperor observed, "that such a course would be impossible, but at least, it would be very difficult; there are no elements of provincial or communal government in Turkey; you would have Turks attacking Christians, Christians falling upon Turks, Christians, Christians falling upon Turks, Christians of different sects quarreling with each other; in short, those and anarchy."

"Sir," I then observed, "if your Majesty will allow me to speak plainly, I would say that the great difficulty between us is this—that you continue to dwell upon the fall of Turkey, and the arrangements requisite before and after the fall; and that we, on the contrary, look to Turkey, remaining where she is, and to the precedutions which have no becoming worse." "Ahl" replied the Emperor, "that is what the Chancellor is perpetually telling me; but the catastrophe will occur some day, and will take us all unawares."

His Imperial Majesty spoke of France. "Ged" regins have frankly explained to each other what in the extreme case of which they have been treating their respective interests cannot endure. England understands that Bussis cannot suffer the establishment at Constantinople of a Christian Power sufficiently strong to control and disquiet her. She declares that for herself, she rebounces any intention or desire to possess Constantinople. The Emperor equally disclaims any wish or design of establishing himself there. England promises that she will enter into near rangement for determining the measures to be taken in the event of the fall of the Turkish empire, without a previous understanding with the Emperor. The Emperor, on his side, willingly contracts the same engagement. As he is award that in such a case he can equally reckon upon Austria, who is bound by her promises to concert with him, he regards with less apprehension the cutsattephe which he still desires to prevent and avert as much as it shall depend on him to do so. No less precious to him are the proofs of friendship and personal confidence on the part of Her Majesty the Queen, which Sir Hamilton Segmour has been directed in this occasion to impart to him. He sees in them the surest guarantee against the contingency: which his foresight had deemed it a right to point out to that of the English Government.

Sir G. H. Seymour to the Earl of Clarendon (Received March 19.)

St. Ferrangura, March 9, 1852.

My Lord, —As it appears very avident that the secret memorial which, by a dispatch of this day, I have the honor of bringing to your Lordship's knowledge, has been drawn up under a complete misapprehension (real or assumed). Of the part taken by Her Majesty's Government in the late Turkish affairs, I have thought, it my dudy, to address to Count Nesselrode the private and confidential letter of which's beg to enclose o copy to your Lordship's have the count of the English Count Nesselrode the private and confidential letter of which's beg to enclose o copy to your Lordship.

The Late Electrons.—It is related of a man who had never visited Niagara before, that he mistook the spray for rain, and kept housed for a couple of days, unwilling to have his best clothes soiled with the damp. On the third day, he inquired of a boarder at the same hotel if that infernal rain was ever going to stop. We are in somewhat the same fix. Are these infernal decitions ever going to stop?—Ohio State Democrat.

The Brish Erodus. According to the Galway Packet, the Celtic race is fast disappearing even in its western stronghold. The editor hand just completed a four through lar-Connaught and Joyce's country, and for miles, he says, the traveler could not see a human habitation—all was utter desolation; not a trace of Jarm outling attention, and in lieu of houses, nothing remained but heaps of signes and unroofed gables.

Expression at Princussion Car Manuratrony.—An explosion of the fulminating powder, used in charging caps, occurred in the manufactory of Prederic Miscaeman, New York, on Wednesday. Four heavy caps were driven into the right breast of Miss Ann McCullogh, penerating the lung and sausing four wounds large enough for the insertion of a man's finger. Three of the caps were driven into the left thoulder of Miss Maria Gordon, causing a severe yound. Mr. Alexander Lellar was severely injured about the head heing burned by the powder when it aminded.
