OUTRAGEOUS.—If the people did not know that the Washington Union was the monthpiece of the President, and the organ of communication for every man in Washington who chooses to wield a pen in defamation of those who will not support the Administration, they would be justified in concluding that it was edited by a manice, to whom the task of rattling chains in a mad-house would be more congenial than that of venting luttle of the people of the continued of the co natic spleen through the columns of a daily journal. The following is the concluding portion of Tuesday next. n article on the Boston riot, which appeared in that paper of Sunday last:

that paper of Sanday last:

"It is a saddening reflection that a soft-spoken demagogue, who would fly before the turbulence his calumnies had aroused, and hide his head in terror at the sight of an angry mob, should be able, in his treasonable warfare upon the constitution, to incite men to marder their fellow creatures. We dell Chaptes Bunner and his co-conrespiators that the blood shed in Boston yesterday is upon their hands. They did not strike the blow, but they aroused the passions which led to it. In no other free government would this course tolerated. No London paper would dare thus press is as free there as here. The reason is that the English government, whatever its other faults may be, has a sense of propriety which seems toaied to the powers at Washington, and the London press is edited by gentlemen who use only gentlemanly weapons. The Boston riot was a legitimate result of the Nebraska bill. That bill set a solemn compact at naught, and the people are not disposed to respect other compacts that are of no moral force. The attempt, therefore, of the administration to transfer the guilt of this result from its own shoulders to those who resisted the iniquity is as base and cowardly as it is insulting. The opponents of the Nebraska bill never, by word or act advised resistance by the people to the demand of the slave power, the people have acted upon ilacs, and taken counsel only from their own impulses, and taken counsel only from their own indignant hearts. WHIG MERCING AT PHILADRIPHIA .- The Whigh of Philadelphia, held an enthusiastic meeting at Philadelphia on Monday night last. Hon. Henry D. Moore presided. He stated that the meeting had assembled to declare its preference for the micipal ticket headed by Conrad and Hazlehurst, and also to denounce the administration for the consummation of the Nebraska iniquity, The speakers all spoke earnestly and forcibly in

The speakers all spoke earnestly and forcibly in condemnation of that outrage.

Mr. McMichael said: If this policy of sacrificing everything to the spirit of slavery was presisted in, the interests of those present could not but suffer to a fearful extent. In the South all labor is degraded. While in the North all labor was dignified, those who work were despised in the southern States. The people of the South seemed determined to make their system govern the country. They had already governed the country too much. The system had already taken bread out of our mouths. But it never had made such strides as within the last four weeks, by the passage of the Nebraska bill. Thirty years ago, the South had entered into a selemn compact that slavery should not be extended above a certain line. This compact has been violated, and now all the territories were open to slavery.

The speaker put it to those present, as free men breathing a free atmosphere, whether they would sanction such a violation. Ex-Governor Johnston was then introduced to the meeting. He said that if there was any er nominated Hon. DAYID RITGHTS for re-election—

The delegates comprised in the 22d Congressional District met and appointed Conferces, to meet like Conferces from Butler county, for the purposo of nominating a candidate for that district.

The Convention, after an ardsous and protracted seasion, adjourned a little after 6 o'clock in the evening.

The resolutions adopted were of a very strong anti-Slavery character, and were adopted unanimously.
