FRIDAY MORNING, JUNE 16, 1894.
From the New York Times.
JAPAN OPENED.
Satisfactory results of Commodore Perry's mission to Japan. The Japanese government has acceded to the demands of the Commodore and his officers, and has agreed to open the country to foreign trade. This is a great step towards the civilization of the Far East.

PITTSBURGH GAZETTE.

The Commodore's mission to Japan was a success. He has opened the country to foreign trade and has secured for the United States the right to trade freely with the Japanese. This is a great triumph for the American flag in the East.
