fort is to be made to introduce slavery into Kansas." One of two things is plain, either the Glasgow Times or the Pittsburgh Post is mistaken. They cannot both be right; and as the Times is published where these things are said to be going on, it is fair to presum that it speaks only what it knows.

This view of the matter is strengthened, mor over, by a letter from Kansas which we find in timore Sun-a paper which has uniformly favored the Nebraska bill. The editor of the Son says that "the letter indicates the feeling in Kansas Territory and the movements there-and therefore its every word is important. Our correspondent is an observing, intelligent and judi-cious man, and not ultra, we believe, in his proslavery views."

We subjoin the letter in full : Satr CREEK TRADING HOUSE, Kansas Territory, 8 miles west from Fort Leavenworth; June 10, 1854.

To-day & large number of highly respectable citicess of Kannas Territory, and of the State of Missouri, assembled here for the purpose of organising a "claim association," to protect their rights as squatters on the soil of said territory.

The 1st resolution adopted by the meeting declares in favor of bond side squatter sovereignty, and acknowledges the right of any citizen of the United States to make a claim in Kansas Territory with the ultimate view of occupying it.

The 3d resolution declares as follows, vir.—

That every person of lawful age, or who may be the head of a family, who shall mark out his claim of 100 acres, so that it shall be apparent how the same lies, and proceed with reasonable diligence to creet thereon a cabin or tent, shall be deemed to have made a proper claim.

Such is the prospect before us, in the new territories, all knowledge of which the Post seeks (6) goors. But the truth is mighty and will prevail.

We ask faithful attention to the developements he: ein alluded to, and especially to the letter extracted from the Baltimore Sun. What Northern man can read it and not feel the blood boiling in his veine? Here is a territory just organized, which, the people are told, is open to all who choose to enter it, and the institutions of which are to be framed by the people who select it for their home. A band of slaveholders from Missouri cross over its border, select its available and valuable lands for their own use, and then give notice to northern people that they had better not attempt to come there and settle; had better not attempt to come there and settle; for, if they do, they will get twenty-four hours adapted to slave labor;" that a territory for which ten thousand slaveholders are on the move before a Northern emigrant has set set a foot

n it, "is far more accessible from the North han the South." and that " a hundred Northern men can reach it, while one Slaveholder is preparing to go;" and that land which no freesoiler is to be allowed to occupy on pain of forcible exulaion, is as open to him as the light of heaven! This Kansas, of which the elaveholders have taken forcible possession, to the exclusion of all other citizens of the confederacy, is thus described by Wm. Walker, a Chief of the civilized tribe of Wyandots:

"It (Kaysas) is, in all respects, superior to Ne-braska—in climate, soil, products, indeed in all the elements of a great commercial and agricul-tural country. Our territory will be the cyno-zure of the enterprising emigrant."

Of courses and this the slaveholders chooses, that explosion, without anything to explain what had caused their death.

The Baltimore American says that "Pittsburgh and Philadelphia seem to be unable to forego their unworthy hostility to the Wheeling bridge." Pittsburgh, we would inform the American, has not and never had any hostility to the Wheeling bridge. Our hostility has been directed against the building of it at such a short distance from the water as to make it an obstruction to navigation. All we ask is that it shall be built at the height indicated by the decree of the Supreme Court. Does the American think this too much?

The burden of the Post's song is that Kanass' is adapted to free labor, and not to the labor of slaves," and that it is "far more accessible from the north than from the south. A hundred northern men can reach it while one slaveholder is preparing to go". As a commentary on this recklesances of statement, we submit the following extract from an article in the Chaspon [Mo.] Three, on the emigration to Kanass:

"Private letters state that about ten thousand people are on the move. Fire hundred crossed over at Weston, last Saturday, and about the same number on Sunday, while the roads are falled with people all bound for the new Territories. A determined effort is to be made to introduce slavery into Kanasa, while there is a general disposition to let Nebrask be free."

This testimony is directly in the teeth of the Post's representations. Before a single northern sand slaveholders are on the move; and, with such an element to work with "a determined effort is to be made to introduce slavery into Kanasa, ten thousand position to be made to introduce slavery into Kanasa, ten thousand position to be to Nebrask be free."
