Again, no assumes unas une coming swear out in five years, and therefore bases a style:

The Clarion Democrat, and Clearfield Republish Parcelass selebrated yearly expenditure of $400,000 to keep up this necessary part of the property of the Company. He ought to have known that the Company have extensive machine shops, at which all the rolling stock is repaired, renewed, and kept good, and that it expended in the current expenses of the Company, and that the current expenses of the Company, and that it was a part of the $986,848 set down and that it was a part of the $986,848 set down. and that it was a part of the $986,848 set down publish it here, as the government has areved us successive to as "expenses" for the six months ending July left. The first cost of the machinery, cars, machine shops, etc., is charged to the construction account, but afterpards all items of this charge to the construction account, but afterpards all items of this charge the hard-repeated that those acts were intended to penses." Such is the completeness of the Company's arrangements, that its machinery, cars, etc., are in a better condition, and are probably worth more money now than when originally purchased. This sets aside the $400,000 for the wear and tear of machinery.

Another item of expenditure assumed, is the

and the iron. The cross ties will last, on an average, from eight to ten years, and it will cost about $25,000 per summ to renow them every eight years. The rails will last, on an average, from eight to twenty years, according to the quality of the iron, and the smouth of tonnage on the road. But the iron is by no means lost, as the Journal writer seems to apprehend, as it can be re-worked or rolled over for about ten per cent on its original cost. This item, therefore, of wear and tear of roadway, may safely be set down at not more than $50,000 per annum, thus causing a further deduction of $250,000 in the Journal writer's estimates.

Tinus, in four items we have reduced these proposterous estimates $1,070,000! It is useless it follow him any further. If the writer is governed only by considerations of public good, he will be glad to discover his mistakes, and hasten to rectify them. Allegheny county has a deep stake in the prosperity of the company, besides the natural and proper pride her citizens take in a great Pennsylvania work, as she owns one million of its stock. While we would not hide the truth from the tax-payers, or shield the officers of the company from the consequences of incapacity or neglect of duty, we cannot see the policy or fairneas of fabrication or exaggeration to injure the character and value of their investment. The same argument would also equally militate sgainst all other roads in which we are so deeply interested, whether completed or being constructed. Let the writer deal in facts, and we are ready to hear him, but when he trimps up, or imagines, an annual expenditure of overone million of dollars, we are compelled to doubt either his candor or his intelligence.

Mort A Know Northro,—We have now the best authority for saying that Henry S. Mort, the Democratic press and Democratic State Committee in making war upon Judge Pollock, on the score of an alleged similar memberality, is smarting. They are perfectly willing to get the Know Nothings, and that he carpoets to obtain the vote missioner; but pretend to be horrified in the most extraordinary manner at the same vote being cast for the Whig candidate for Governor. We call the attention of the Harrisburg Pat-member of the Know Nothings, and is skely to receive their vote.

Democratic Know Nothings.—At the election for County offices in Kenton and Campbell countries, Kentucky, the Know Nothings elected their estire fickets. These counties have always been largely, and intensely democratic; and yet the locofoco press of this State would have us believe that the Know Nothings are all Whigs.

And against Loss or Damago by Fire, an

The Pittsburgh Union, not long since, made the assertion that the Whig State Convention which nominated Judge Pollock endorsed the Pugitive Slave Law. This we denied emphatially, and the ground was then changed so as to make the statement read that that Convention andorsed the Baltimore Platform, which included the Fugitive Law. This also we contradicted unequivocally, calling for the proof, since when the Union has stuck to its old policy of never errecting a falsehood in which it is detected. The same paper of yesterday ventures on the reckless assertion that the Fugitive Slave Law was the creation of a Whig administration, and was got up by their leader. The Fugitive Slave Law was "got up" by Mr. Mason, of Virginia, the leading Democratic member of the Senate, received very generally the support of the Democratic members of that body, was crowded through the House under the pressure of the previous question by a Pennsylvania Democrat, and received but three Northern Whig votes in that branch. The complicity of Millard Fillmore in its passage entails no responsibility on the party which subsequently repullated him. The Whig party of the North are not in any way responsible for that bill. It is of Southern Damocratic parentage, received the general support and favor of the Democratic party, and we are willing that the honor of executing it should be enjoyed by Democratic editors or their substitutes, who choose to depend upon it for their chances of immortality and an occasional fee of choose to depend upon it for their contacts will tast eight or ten years, and he estimates an annual loss of $300,000 for this item. The writer ought to have known that there is a repair account kept, which is also included under the head of "expenses." The repair force is always engaged, so that the road is actually becoming better every day. If a tie is found defective or broken, or a Rail unfit for its purpose, it is replaced by others. In this way the road is kept in perfect order, and the readway is daily improved, and the expense is paid for out of the gross earnings of the company. The perishable portions of the roadway, are the ties and the iron. The cross ties will last, on an average, from eight to ten years, and it will cost about $20,000 per annum to renew them every eight years. The rails will last, on an average, from fifteen to twenty years, according to the quality of the iron, and the amount of tonnage on the road.
