This, we think, may be halled as another proof, not merely of the great impression made by Dr. Duff's recent visit to America, but also of the extent to which that visit has tended to bring the churches in that land and in this more closely together at once in sympathy and in action.—Amid many things which at presents seem dark and ominous in regard to truth and its prospects, the cordial union of so many believers, both as churches and individuals, in all parts of the world, may well be rejoiced in sea token for good; and had Dr. Duff's visit produced no other. The world, may well be rejoiced in sea token for good; and had Dr. Duff's visit produced no other. The world, in the meanting them as cordially, as one man, in connection with his own great work—that of nissions to the heathen,—might well draw forth our thankfulness. We understand that he has, in the meantime, been advised to visit Great Malvern, and to seek there, for some time, that entire rest from all duty, and that medical treatment, which may be the means of refitting him for his labors in the East. His medical adri the more connection with the official sers, we learn, have for the present interdicted.
