This community has been long notes and scrip below par, causing a constant drain upon the legitimate carnings of business. Our State, county and city scrip was bad enough, Indiana: On the brokers we must mainly depend for ridding us of the trash, and if they will not do it, let the people themselves refuse to reoeive it, and it will soon disappear.

The Louisville Journal states that the brokers

The principal feature in the free banking law a Indiana is, that all the notes issued by any in thomas is, that at the hoter issued by any bank doing business under it, shall be signed by the Auditor of the State, and that State or Uni-tial States stock shall be deposited with the Auditor, amply sufficient to secure the payment of all notes which be may sign, so that each one of these Indiana State Stock banks, has on deadventurers from the eastern States have taken the advantage of the Indiana Legislators, and abused the privileges conferred by financing in such a manner that with a bona fide capital of fifty or one hundred thousand dollars, they man-age to issue one, two, three, and even as high as four hundred thousand dollars, in this man-ner after the Company is formed. With the cap-ital first paid in, stocks would be purchased, and an equivalent amount in notes obtained for them from the State Auditor, with these notes another amount of stocks would be purchased and a new batch of notes obtained for them, and so on until the company might conclude it was discreet to stop.

With such an extraordinary issue of paper. founded on State Stock, which is of itself a debt of the State, an extension of credit, it is utterly impossible for these banks to sustain their paper by promptly redeeming it with specie or its it, and it could be readily paid out by the brokers, it got along. A breath of suspicion, however, blows the whole paper fabric down.

found to apply to the present condition of banking affairs in Indiana:

'In prosperous times, when money is about the prosperous times, when the specie banks are compelled to entrench themselves for protection, the bills of these free banks would be found impracticable to sustain such an amount of circulation. If the banker was even inclined to redoem his notes, he would find it an Herculean task, since the bills, not having been issued to supply the ordinary wants of trade, but rather freed upon the market, for the mere purpose of circulation, would be found in a fow-neigh boshoods only, and on the least alarm, they would be found in a fow-neigh boshoods only, and on the least alarm, they would be found in a fow-neigh boshoods only, and on the least alarm, they would be found in a fow-neigh boshoods only, and on the least alarm, they would be found in a fow-neigh boshoods only, and on the least alarm, they would be found in a fow-neigh boshoods only, and the the practical working of a one man power in a banking institution, although in this case, unfortunately, there are no deposits of State Stocks to secure the payment of the S280,000, which the public have received through the hands of railroad contractors, and which is now sold at less than half its nominal value. But is it not obvious, that a banker who issues ten times the amount of his capital, in circulation. does so for speculative purposes only? The temptation is great, for in periods of prosperity he can make $20,000 or $40,000 per annum, by his circulation. The his salls in the redounce of the substance of the substanc than those lately received from the Danube, was speculative purposes only! The temptation is great, for in periods of prosperly he can make $30,000 or $40,000 per annum, by his circulation, and if his bank fall in a period of scarcity, the is only liable for $50,000, or the amount of his stock; and even this he might avoid by a timely conveyance to irresponsible parties, and thus escape personal liability altogether. But how long would it require to dispose of the $500,000 of the Indiana period of panic; or even in a severe monetary orisis; and meanwhile, what would be the discount on the bills of his bank, when driven into liquidation?

Past experience has taught us, that the committy would suffer a loss of at least 25 per cent. of their amount, and we maintain that that is not legitimate banking, which exposes a commanity to such a contingent hazard; and although an extreme case has been stated, yet it is one which may occur, and it would not be difficult to point to one where the circulation now exceeds three times the amount of the capital, under this gystem of free banking.

THE NEW YORK BANKS .- The weekly state ment of the New York city banks, for Saturday, August 12, shows, that with a capital of $48,-163,400, their circulation is only $8,917,179; heir specie $18,522,028. their deposits $74,-626,889; and their loans amount to $93,435,057. Such banks are perfectly safe, and a benefit to community. At any moment they can redeem very dollar of their circulation, while they ar enabled to extend great facilities to the public by the confidence reposed in them by depositors. Another important point agreed upon was the entire about 20 per cent. the present latitude of dead-heading. Another important point agreed upon was the entire abrogation of the system of runners and agents, which has heretofore been a very expensive feature in the operating expenses of our two great routes to the West. The feeling of the meeting was, without exception, of the most conciliatory character and the effect upon the net earnings of the various roads must be very marked.
