the Independence of Brussels thus describes:

"An occurrence which has just taken place in the Black Eea, only a few miles off the mouth of the Bosphorus, has caused the profoundest sensation: Three Turkish merchant vessels, while at their moorings in the harbor of Herandea (Erckli,) have been burned by a Russian isteam frigate that came from Schastopol, and was able to cross the whole of the Black Sea without being seen by the Anglo-French cruisers. The ships destroyed were laden, one with Indian corn, a second with wood, and the third with coal extracted from the mines at Herandea, and sintended of or the allied squadrons. Their captains have been carried [off prisoners to Schastopol, the crews being put in a boat and turned adrift in the roadstead. The very day before this bold deed was performed the Freuch addice corvette, the Monette, left the port in question in order to return to Therania. This little incident is
