COUNTRY HOMES FOR CITY BUSINESS MEN.

The best material with which to build a country house is not so certainly settled upon as to preclude discussion. An English writer will tell you stone is the best, that brick is admirable, but, that wood is out of the question. For American purposes we choose to defend the discarded wood, even at the risk of being considered devoid of taste and judgment. We are free to admit that all large mansions, designed to show massive proportion, and to indicate permanence and solidity, should be built of stone or brick. But for a rural cottage, which will serve its purposes for half a century at least, wood is just as good and in some respects better. It is a drier house, and can be made just as warm and as durable as a brick dwelling as ordinarily constructed. Let the frame be built strong, with six or eight inch studding, and tightly boarded up the walls with inch and a quarter boards matched together, before the weather-boarding is put on, and put in the same description of joists and rafters and window frames usually placed in a good brick house, let the roof over hang at least two feet, and you will have a tight, warm house, as good in every respect as a brick one, with drier walls, cooler in hot summer nights, and one which will last a century if kept well painted. The cellar walls should be built in the same manner as for a brick house, so that the foundation may be substantial and dry. Such a house will cost as much as if built of brick in the ordinary manner, but is in some respects better.—Some persons prefer brick because it saves paint, but no man of taste would commend a red brick house as a proper feature in a handsome lawn. The brick house should be painted some natural tint, both for beauty and preservation, and it costs as much to paint on brick as wood.

Where the roof is seen, if the expense can be afforded, cover it with slate. If the slate costs too much, paint the shingles. Most of the earthy paints are partially fire-proof and they greatly preserve the shingles from decay. No house with a steep roof can possibly look well where the roof is covered with shingles, without painting.

The question of water is one of serious moment, and probably causes more trouble and annoyance than any other. It is painful to witness the inconvenience and labor incurred in some country homes, for the want of proper provision for a liberal supply of this important necessary and luxury of life. We have known persons to remain in town for the sole purpose of enjoying the luxury of the hydrant water, ignorantly imagining that such conveniences could never be enjoyed in the country. We have purposely deferred the consideration of the subject of a supply of water, because the necessity of the location near a Railroad station would not allow of choosing a spot on account of the advantages of a spring, or even of finding water by digging at a reasonable depth. We must have some other mode of supply, or some of the most desirable sites on our Railroads will be useless for the purposes of a country home. Happily, Providence has provided a plentiful supply of water, in every place where a house can be built. All that is required is adequate means for its collection and purification. We allude to the supply from the clouds. What, says one, you are not going to confine us to nasty rain water? Faugh! who could drink that. Be patient, and hear us out. We do mean that you shall drink rain water, and use it for every other purpose, but we promise that it shall be neither nasty nor disagreeable, but pure, agreeable and wholesome water. It is astonishing how much inconvenience and suffering is experienced for want of pure water, from a neglect to secure the supply Heaven sends so bountifully on the unjust as well as the just.

A good, never-failing spring of pure soft water is the best means of supply which nature affords. Probably the next best is, where pure soft water can be found in a shallow well. But cistern water, by which we mean rain water, is preferable to any hard water whatever, and a cistern is always preferable to a deep well, and costs less.

The amount of water which falls, annually, on a square yard of surface, has been accurately ascertained, and it has also been found that the amount which falls in each year is very nearly equal. Here then, is our never-failing fountain of pure soft water. As a general rule, as much water falls on the roof of every dwelling as will abundantly supply the wants of the family.—Where a small house is occupied, less water is needed. In the country, houses are usually built low, never more than two stories, and are spread over the ground, thus giving a large roof and affording a large supply.

Where entire dependence on cistern water is resolved on, the question of securing the whole amount which falls upon the roof must be considered in planing the house. As we have some experience on this subject, we cannot probably convey a better idea of the mode we would recommend of securing a liberal supply of water, with the most convenience to the family, than by describing the mode we adopted in building our own residence. But this we must defer to another number.

Gratuitous Praise and Abuse.—The St. Louis Republican takes Mr. John Mitchell to task for indiscriminate praise of the South and abuse of the North. The following is the paragraph excepted to by the Republican:

"In the obtuseness South the individual, in vindication of his honor, of which the law of the land takes no cognizance, practices a code that violates alike the statute and the common law. The consequence for the most part rests with the individual." But you will rarely see mobs assembled to burn churches or to violate the constitution South of Mason and Dixon's line. There the majesty of the law is respected and upheld by the aggregate people. "There no Angel Gabriel sounds his horn, disturbing the quiet Sabbath, and calling together bands of rowdies.—There no Salem witchcraft, nor Blue Laws, nor Blagmerism, nor Woman's Rights, nor Mormonism, nor Millerism, nor Socialism, nor any other monstrous productions, have sprung up to check the healthy growth of freedom. The poisonous weeds and fungi belong to the North, and are cultivated to the highest perfection by the wise men of the East."

The Republican thinks this in decidedly bad taste, even if true; and so it is. But no one knows better than the Republican that it is not true. It is doubtless remember the mob which took a negro from jail in St. Louis and burned him to death; and if its memory does not run back that far it can without much effort recall the bloody scenes which were enacted in the streets of that city last August. There are many southern men, too, who can call to mind numberless mobs and riots in various parts of the South, prominent among which we may mention the mob which sacked the Spanish Consul's house in New Orleans, and another which expelled Mr. Hoaran and his daughter from Charleston. Lynch-law and the Bowie knife are both of southern paternity; and the South need never prate of "violence" while the history of the lawless excitement at Vicksburg remains, or while almost every newspaper published within its borders contains some new record of men killed and maimed in the brawls common in that region.—The fewer comparisons of this kind instituted by Mr. Mitchell, the better for the South. No wonder the Republican thinks it in bad taste.

The Boston Post, in speaking of the late Worcester mob, charges it as the legitimate result of Anti-Slavery teachings, and holds the Anti-Slavery men of Massachusetts responsible for the murder of Batchelder and the half-murder of Batman. The Post forgets that it is the infamous provisions of the Fugitive Slave Law which begets the Anti-Slavery feeling it deprecates, and that if there were no such men as Batchelder and Batman to enforce the odious provisions of that law, in defiance of an overwhelming public sentiment, there would be no popular ebullitions of the kind to condemn. Mobs and mob law are never justifiable; but the responsibility for them, when they are provoked by wrong and outrage, is not with those who make use of their legitimate rights in exposing the wrong, but with those who, for mercenary purposes, take advantage of the legal sanction which may be given thereto.

The Journal speaks of being compelled to decline the publication of the County Fair Premium List on account of "the late hour" at which it was offered for proof. As the proofs were furnished from this office, we desire to say that the first one was sent to all the city offices shortly after two o'clock in the afternoon, and the remainder abundantly early for those who might have desired to use them. The foreman of the Journal office announced to us the determination not to publish the list in that paper about four o'clock in the afternoon—considerably in advance of what is called a "late hour" in a daily newspaper office.

Bank Failures.—Intelligence was received yesterday of the suspension of the Bank of Circleville, and of the rejection, by Cincinnati bankers, of the notes of the Clinton Bank of Columbus and Miami Bank, at Dayton. The notes of all three were refused by our brokers yesterday.

FOREIGN ITEMS.

Contrary to the opinion generally received, Finland is reported as Russian—but out of love to Russian rule, but out of hatred to Sweden; and Sweden, no doubt from the same motive, is said to be suspect.

A Russian official at Kiel, though not a Russian by birth, refused to believe the news of the taking of Sebastopol, when most people gave credit to it. He declared it would take more time than was supposed, but that it would finally fall, and the date he suggested as probable, is from the 5th to the 10th of November.—This opinion was given a fortnight ago. I may add that the person alluded to resided for sixteen years in Sebastopol, employed by the government. He also says that the fortifications of Sebastopol are much more solid than Bomarsund. Prince Menschikoff is not considered as a man of much head, but it appears that some of the best officers of the special branches of the military profession, engineers and artillery, are now in the Crimea, or in Sebastopol itself. Whatever the St. Petersburg papers may say, the Emperor Nicholas admits to his confidential friends the total defeat of the Russian army on the Alma. His rage is described as something awful, and the reproaches he has addressed to Prince Menschikoff are most violent. He is said to be determined to persist to the last.

Travelers who have arrived at Vienna direct from Russia state that entrenchments on a great scale are being made along the Vistula, and capable of preventing any successful passage of the river from the opposite bank. More than ten thousand men are at work.

The Austrian police is engaged in watching the movements of a certain number of Russian officers who have been pointed out to it as spies. A few days ago, one of them, who is represented to be a colonel, was arrested at Prague, where he had contrived to examine the depots of artillery and ammunition. He was sent to Vienna.

A correspondent of the Cologne Gazette, under date St. Petersburg, Oct. 8, says, "But a short time back the public have hoped and believed that the Russians were going to cross the Balkans, in order to free from Turkish rule their brethren stretching out their arms for succor." Since, however, the failures on the Danube, they are beginning to fear here that they shall lose the Crimea, that Cronstadt will be taken next Spring, and that Austria will declare war against Russia, The hereditary Grand Prince has notoriously disapproved of the war, and considered it disastrous from the first. The unwieldy and useless mission of Count Nesselrode avoids the presence of the Grand Prince for he dreads his reproaches. He, at least, might have remonstrated in time with the Czar, had he possessed sufficient moral courage. and might thus have given by his influence a different turn to affairs. There is, of course, no counter now that would dare to hint even at such opinions, since the Czar's declaration that "his dignity was engaged in the contest."

Since the news of the victory of the Alma has been received, the number of applications for admission into the British army is said to have been increased ten-fold.

It is said that the seamen of the fleet have requested and obtained permission to take part in the bombardment of Sebastopol. Each ship will supply a company and eight guns, giving a total of 200 pieces.

Many instances are mentioned of the cruel treachery of wounded Russians on the field of the Alma. For example, it is said that

As the 95th regiment, of the English army, was advancing, a wounded Russian was calling piteously for water, when Captain Eddington, whose heart was as kind as it was brave, ran up to him, and stooping, gave him a drink from a small flask of brandy and water, which he carried in case he should himself be wounded. This revived the wounded man, and poor Eddington ran forward to join his company, when the wretch who had just been restored by his charity fired at and shot him, his ball hitting a second unoffending brother, Lieut. Eddington, also fell, dearly selling his life in avenging the death of his gallant brother. The two poor fellows were most affectionate brothers; they fell together, and two better soldiers or braver hearts never wore the cloth.

A street sweeper of Portman square lately died, leaving a handsome fortune, all acquired in the business of the broom. A street-sweeper, regularly at his post, is the observed of observers, and grows into the public confidence. He is preferred for holding horses, and is trusted with errands. We (Examiner) had once occasion for the services of a man high in the profession who exercises his broom in Cavendish square, and a deputy appearing in his place, it was explained with due solemnity that the principal had been sent for by the Spanish Ambassador!

The Marquis of Westminster once possessed a diamond for which the East India Company offered £30,000; and yet this diamond when submitted to public auction, only fetched rather more than £7000.

One of the passengers by the Queen of the West from the East with the last fleet, considering its purity, that has yet been found in Australia. It weighs 53 ounces, and consists almost of pure gold; scarcely a spot can be seen on it; it is one mass of yellow gold. It was dug out just as it appears 150 ft. beneath the surface, at Ballarat. In shape, it resembles a large clinker. It covers the palm of the hand, and averages nearly a-half an inch in thickness.

Foreign Emigration.—During the month of October just closed, the number of foreign immigrants who arrived at New York from abroad was 36,578, of whom 20,17 were Germans, 7,- 787 Irish, 5,398 English, 429 Scotch, 212 Welsh, 521 French, 977 Spanish, and 452 Swedes. The Journal of Commerce tells us that there is much sickness among the immigrants now arriving, and that many emigrants die from cholera on the passage over. The preponderance of Germans, which will be remarked above, characterizes the immigration this year. The proportion of Germans found chargeable upon the Commissioner of Emmigration at New York for support, is 20 per cent. greater than that of the Irish. Below we give a comparison of the immigration of the present year with that of last year:

The Diamond.—At a recent meeting of the British Scientific Association, a paper was read by Prof. Tennant, upon the subject of the Koh-i-noor diamond. He asserted that the diamond does retain its luminosity in the dark for a short period after being exposed to the sun's rays.—A lump of crystalized sugar, also exposed to the sun's rays, would show the same brilliant hues, if immediately afterwards placed in the dark, as a diamond.

Virginia.—Differences and divisions have appeared among the hitherto undivided and apparently indivisible Democracy of Virginia. The Resolutions of '98 no longer form a rallying point for abstractionists of all shades, and the Enquirer confesses that the party there has not been in so critical a condition since the overthrow of 1840. The ranks of the enemy, it says, "are largely recruited from a variety of sources, and what is worse, our own strength is seriously impaired by a smothered feeling of disaffection." This division and disaffection seems to have mainly grown out of differences as to the land bill introduced by their Senator, Mr. Hunter, at the last session of Congress, and the evil, the Enquirer fears, will be aggravated by an attempt at the coming State Convention, to pass a resolution condemnatory of Mr. Hunter, and of the Representatives who supported his bill. A certain rupture and possibly a hopeless defeat, are predicted as the result of the attempt.

Hamilton County Taxes.—The Cincinnati Gazette says last year the rate of taxation was 18½ mills on the dollar, this year it is only 16½, but the taxation of each citizen, in most cases, are increased instead of being diminished.

The Tax Duplicate of Hamilton county for this year, is $1,767,910 56, which, with the delinquent tax of 1853, consisting of unpaid tax, and thirty per cet. penalties added, to be paid this year, $29,001 08, making a total drain on the pockets of the people of Hamilton county, to be paid in fifty days of one million seven hundred and ninety-seven thousand eight hundred and eleven dollars and sixty-five cents.

The Hon. Henry M. Fuller having been named in various newspapers as a candidate for United States Senator, the Wilkesbarre Record, a Whig journal, announces on the authority of Mr. Fuller himself, that he is not a candidate, being entirely content with the position he now holds.—We notice a number of other names also circulating through the press of the Commonwealth, the owners of which are not candidates for the office spoken of.

The Austrians are building forts around Cracow; one of them is called Fort Kosciusko. Can the Austrians pronounce that name without a blush?

A Valuable Family Medicine—So celebrated has Dr. McLane's Vermifuge become, that it is regarded as the only specific cure for worms. Families should never be without a supply of it. At this season particularly, when worms are most prevalent, and frequently fatal among children, parents should be watchful, and on the first appearance of those distressing symptoms which warn us of their presence, at once apply this powerful and effective remedy. We are confident that it only requires a trial, to convince all that it richly merits the praises that have been lavished upon it. It is safe and infallible. Volumes of certificates can be produced, showing its power and virtues.

☞ Purchasers will be careful to ask for DR. M'LANE'S CELEBRATED VERMIFUGE, and take none else. All other Vermifuges, in comparison, are worthless. A large supply of genuine, also celebrated Liver Pills, can now be had at all respectable Drug Stores in the United States and from the sole proprietors,

Dr. Morse's Invigorating Elixir or CORDIAL.—If it is required how this great restorative is accomplishing such extraordinary cures, we can only reply that in the Arabian herb that forms its cardinal ingredient have been blessed by the Great Physician with healing virtues, and from which the wise Author of nature has kindly provided for the recovery of invalids, as he provides trees to exist in abundant different parts of the pharmacopoeia. A whole medicine chest is regardless, so he seems, when this herb is used. Indeed in the ELIXIR or CORDIAL we have their concentrated essence. It is the effect, however, not the cause with which we have to deal in the practical application of therapeutics. By virtue of this herb the sick are cured, the nervous are relieved, the half paralyzed resume their activity, the sufferers from headache are tormented no more, the weak become vigorous, the feeble leave the bed of sickness, the depressed in spirits become buoyant, the sick in almost in every condition of disease derive immediate benefit from the use of Dr. Morse's invigorating Elixir or Cordial. The attention of invalids is particularly called to the attention of Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills, two for twelve dollars, viz for twelve dollars.

It would hardly do for any one to have the temerity, now-a-days to question the excellence of Dr. Hoofland's German Bitters, which are prepared by Dr. C. M. Jackson. In case of dyspepsia, liver complaint, and derangement of the digestive organs, daily proof arises of their long since been made plainly apparent. They purify from the system the morbid humors which retard the natural functions and bring paleness to the cheek and sufferer to the bone. They banish those clogs upon happiness, and restore the system to high health. For sale at wholesale and retail at Dr. KEYSER'S Drug Store No. 140, Wood st.

A Physician's opinion of my Braces.—Dr. M'Lane, editor of the Chambersburg Transcript, under date of Sept. 18, 1854, in speaking of these Braces, says—Our friend, Dr. GEO. H KEYSER, submitted to our inspection a very fine specimen of the "Washington Suspender," and although we declined and sold by him at the corner of Wood st. and Virgin alley, Pittsburgh. Pa. as especially the purposes for which it is intended, left that day, and altogether free from the objections attached to the many other Braces in general use. It is an excellent Suspender, while at the same time, it preserves the shoulders in a healthful position—without at all restraining the natural movements of the body. The Dr. still send them by mail, free of postage, to any part of the Union.

[From the Pittsburgh Daily Dispatch, Feb. 26, 1852.]

☞ CHEST EXPANDERS—SHOULDER BRACES—AN EXCELLENT ARTICLE.—Persons who have acquired a stooping position, or following a sedentary occupation, will experience great relief by the use of the "Washington Suspender Brace," made and sold by Dr. KEYSER, corner of Wood st. and Virgin alley. It is nearer to a brace and suspenders, the weight of pantaloons is so placed as to continually tend to bring the shoulders to their natural position, and expand the chest. We purchased one of these articles for our own use, and have been so pleased with it, that we unsolicited give it a "puff," gratis.

Women, husbands of whom are annually injured by the weight of those enormous 'skirts' should also procure these braces. Be particular in procuring the kind mentioned, as many of the braces sold are humbugs.

[From the Pittsburgh Dispatch, Feb. 6, 1854.]

☞ Having worn one of Dr. Keyser's Washington Shoulder Braces, until it is no longer of use, we feel perfectly competent to discourse upon its merits. By using it, the weight of the pantaloons aids in throwing back the shoulders and expanding the chest, while it answers every purpose of suspenders. No one who is "stoop-shouldered" or whose occupation is sedentary can afford to be without one of these braces. Women and girls whose health is so much injured by the whalebone and other garments now in wear them. We have tried several kinds, but none seem at all equal to the "Washington," and we with others to profit from our experience.

Sold wholesale and retail at the Drug Store of George H Keyser, No. 140, corner Wood st. and Virgin alley.

☞ Agent of the Golden Mortar.

N. B.—I also keep every variety of Trusses, Supporters, Body Braces, Pile Props, Elastic Stockings, Suspenders and Gums, &c.
