Here, then, we have a man guilty of feloniously embezzling the State Funds, saved from remarks, on this case, which we find in the the democratic candidate:

Me ask the attention of our readers to the remarkable correspondence on our first page. It dischoses a state of things that will strike pains fully on verry considerate mind, and most painfully in this, that crime in high places-brickens of official trust, violations of public confidence—have a different, or at least a more dibtory penalty than minor and humbler offences. That the public money was fraudiently embeated is recognized in the confession of a judgment by the delinquents for the large fragment—only thirry thousand dollars in that it is rejorous provisions, is not defined. That this is a felony ereated and described by a statue not at all andiquated, but fresh in its rigorous provisions, is not defined. That the District Attorney and the President Judge of the Superne Court, is not pretended. That the District Attorney and the President Judge of the Superne Court, is not pretended. friends will show but little modesty in pressing him for United States Senator. He accepts the office tendered him by the Governor; and his office described by the Governor; and his career for the present. his career for the present.

The New Orleans Bulletin, a quondam Whig ously emberring: the State Funds, swed from the punishment due him, through the instrumentally of the State officers. That he richly deserted punishment; that Mr. Beed was anxious to bring him to justice, and gould have done it to fire him to justice, and gould have done it to bring him to justice, and gould have done it a fig for either of the old politically parties are about out of the question. "We would not," quoth the Bulletin, "give representation, which will depathen, and description to bring him to justice, and gould have done it to bring him to justice, and would have done it a fig for either of the old political granizations, had be not been interfered with; and that the State was amply secured from loss in case of of conventions will ever be gone through with his conviction—these are facts not denied. Why, sgain—at least for some years." There is much then, was he rescued from the hands of the law?
reason to think our cotemporary right, in this.

Why does the Executive authority of the State step into shield a felon, and prevent the enforcement of a salutary law? Was it because the offender was a political pet of the present administration?

We fully concur in the tenor of the following remarks, on this case, which we find in the democratic and didte.
