The Meniteur publishes the following despatel from Gre. Canrobert:

"Head Quarkers, nevore Serastopol. November 2, 1854. }

"Monsieur le Marchal: —Since the 28th of October, the date of my last report, the attack have gone on slowly and stealily against the place with the plokase and blasting, and to-day we are within 140 metres of the projecting third parallel, or place d'arms, at this distance, as extended as the width of our counter-fort, on which we advance, will permit.

"We were able to terminate our new batteries on the night between the 31st of October and 1st of November. They opened their fire this morning, and during the day was so favorable that it dominated that of the place, which grow slack in the afternoon.

"The enemy was, however, enabled by shee "The onemy was, however, enabled by sheer number, and exertion to repair in the night the damage done. They brought all the field pieces they could muster to bear upon us, and this moraing before daybreak our works of approach and our batteries were assailed by the most violitual trillery for perhaps ever heard. Happily, badly directed during the night, it only caused us a very insignificant loss, and no material damage.

The alarm in England seemed to be exh...ding as to the position of the allied armies in the Crimes, which with the reinforcements aptiving, were deemed to be wificiently strong to carry out the object of the campaign ancessfully.
