Mr. Mitchell then went into a historical discussion of the great politico-economic question involved. Referring back to the year 1782, when America and Ireland both achieved their freedom. Both these revolts had their inception in commercial difficulties. America, as Henry Clay once said, gained political freedom by the Revolution; 1812 did much for her commercial freedom; but only until the great measure he was advocating, (1824,) had passed, would she gain her full independence. As to Ireland—in 1800 came the Union and since then she has been only a store-farm to England. America had an arrow escape in 1812 and that war ended all hope to England of controlling our commercial destiny.

The lecturer then traced the commercial history of England's protective and even at times prohibitory policy. As early as 1731, he said, she adopted the most stringent-had versatious laws against manufactures in America. A Lord said in Parliament he would not have the colonists make a hob-hail or a rator-to shave themselves with. He mentioned also the birth of the doctrine of Free Trade in 1782 under the auspices of Adam Smith, the "paid intelligy" of the British government. Although that doctrine was strenously advocated, England was far from relinquishing her-close protective system. She wished all nation's to adopt Free Trade but herself. Mr. Mitchell revewed the Mr. Mitchell reversion and Mr. Wiscon appointed on part of C. C. The Common Chamber of to be legally elected.

Whereupon the Hon. Wu. B. McClure, President Judge of the Court of Common Pleas of Allegheny County, administered the oath of office to sail Mayor-elect.

The Select Council then returned to their chamber, when Mr. Murdock offered the following, Resolved, that we adjourn to meet the Common Council in joint ballot on next Tuesday, January 16th inst, at 10 o'clock. A. M. to elect city officers.
