THE BANK QUESTION.—We publish, to-day, a communication from a friend in the country who differs, (or thinks he does,) from our views on the Bank question.

Our hostility to the increase of banks at small points in the interior does not arise from any desire to see banking capital monopolised by the cities. We would not have the country tributary to the town for financial facilities if we could help it, and have no jealousy of any locality within the broad bounds of our Commonwealth. Pittsburgh is both willing and desirous to see all other places sharing Bank privileges with itself according to their deserts and needs, as far as that is safe and politic.

Nor is there any difference of opinion between our correspondent and ourselves as to the proper basis on which to legislate in this matter. The question is not—Shall there be more banks incorporated? but—Shall they be incorporated recklessly, wherever asked for, without due reference to the public necessities, and to the public good? The Legislature is answering this latter question in the affirmative, and it is for this that we see ourselves against its course.

If the wishes and views of every locality in the State are to be the proper index of its necessities, there are few of them that could not be induced to believe that they need a Bank, first and above all things else. To be a county seat is sometimes a pet ambition of such places; but even that would have to yield to the more brilliant ambition to have a Bank. It is plain that there must be a limit to the business of banking, somewhere, for the sake of the public good; and this limit it would be impossible to fix under the specious but delusive rule that each town or village in the State is to be accommodated according as it may judge of its own wants and necessities in such matters.

The first and highest duty of the legislature is to legislate for the general good, and to keep that always in view; and next, to contribute, wherever it can safely do so, to the special wants of particular communities, according to the manifestations of their several needs. But special privileges are always to be conferred in subordination to the general good. Munntown may say that it has as good a claim to a bank as Stroudsburg; and so, abstractly reasoning, it has: but if the public good will be endangered by chartering one in Munntown and promoted by chartering one in Stroudsburg, it is plain that the claim of the former ought to be denied. In judging of this, the Legislature must be (or ought to be) guided by its knowledge of what will contribute to the general welfare, and if, in doing this, it should happen to run counter, occasionally, to local views, however painful the task may be to the individual representative, it is none the less imperative.

Does Pennsylvania need, at this moment, the creation of eighty new banks and an addition of twenty millions to its banking capital? We think not. We are sure it does not. Such an increase of banking institutions, and such a vast addition to its paper circulation as they would entail, would soon place us in the position occupied by Indiana when her bank bubble exploded. The alternative, then, is either to refuse them all or charter only so many as will be conducive to the public safety. The first course would be the easiest; the other involves the duty of discriminating, and this can only be done wisely by choosing the most prominent and the most needy localities. We have naught to say against the claims of the places enumerated by our correspondent; but if there are other places with higher claims, and if prudence dictates (as we think it does) that the number should be small, it is plain that only the principal claimants can be satisfied.

We are now, as a people, laboring under the difficulties of an unsettled commerce and with finances easily disturbed. A breath is sufficient to arouse suspicions against even an old bank, and the public mind turns with extreme caution and distrust to new ones. At such a time it is dangerous to experiment with a feverish public opinion, and overtax a confidence which has been already too sorely tried. At any time it would be a rash undertaking to enlarge our banking means as the present Legislature seems to contemplate; and just now it would be ruinous in the extreme.

We feel satisfied, after a calm survey of the whole premises, that the value of banks to small communities is excessively overrated, and at some other time we may recur to the matter and undertake to illustrate our views in this connection more fully. For the present, it is enough to say that this question must be settled upon general principles, with an eye single to the common good, avoiding invidious comparisons between different localities, and looking carefully to the past and the future as well as to the present.

DISTURBING PUBLIC MEETINGS.—The citizens of Philadelphia opposed to Know Nothingism lately attempted to hold a public meeting to announce their views and purposes; but when the time came for the meeting to assemble the room was taken possession of by the Know Nothings and the citizens were frustrated in their attempt to exercise their legal rights. The same thing has been practiced elsewhere, at various points; and it seems to be the determination of the Order to prevent the holding of public meetings of the people opposed to its principles. Bowdyism and disorder of all kinds is to be made use of to this end.

One of the rights guaranteed by the Constitution to the people, is the right to assemble peaceably together for the consideration of questions of public importance. This is a right which will not be tamely yielded. For a time, these interruptions may be submitted to; the people are slow to rouse, and cannot be moved by mere occasional manifestations of this nature; but when it becomes manifest that there is a settled purpose to deprive the citizens of their most sacred rights, there will be an upheaving which cannot be resisted. Timely warning had better be taken by these disturbers, if they wish to avoid a strife that may end in bloodshed. They enjoy their own meetings undisturbed, and others must be permitted to have the same privilege. If the hand of the law is shortened that it cannot save to us this exalted privilege, there will be found a power potent enough to preserve it, which those who are interested will do well not to provoke.

A correspondent of the Louisville Courier sends that paper an account of a mob which happened among the chivalry of Kentucky in Lincoln county. An anti-slavery preacher, Rev. J. G. Fee, a native Kentuckian, was visiting that county for the purpose of preaching a free gospel, when he was waited upon by the chivalrous Kentuckians, taken out of the house in which he was staying, and driven out of the county. The correspondent of the Courier claims the credit of this occurrence for "Sam," and the Courier is a K. N. paper.

The legislature adjourned on Friday over to Tuesday. This is the second adjournment of the kind, this session, and the free and easy members of that body appear determined to have a good time, generally, this winter, by prolonging their mischievous labors to the furthest day possible.

CINCINNATI SLAVE CASE.—A case is now pending in Cincinnati which illustrates the vileness of the system of slavery and the debasing influence which it exerts upon those engaged in it.

A slave girl belonging to Rev. H. M. Denison, named Rosetta Armstead, was taken to Ohio by an agent of her owner, on his way to Virginia; but being detained a day in Columbus, the girl was brought before the court in that city and declared to be free, because she had been brought into the State by the voluntary act of her master, and no slave could be held under the laws of Ohio. This decision was in consonance with the oft-repeated opinions of the southern courts, and accords with justice and common sense.

But Mr. Dennison was dissatisfied. He accordingly visited Rosetta at Columbus and endeavored to entice her back. He failed; and then he went to Cincinnati and made affidavit before a slave Commissioner that Rosetta was a fugitive slave and escaped from Kentucky to Ohio! Mr. D. ought to have known very well that this was not true—that Rosetta was taken by his own agent from Kentucky to Ohio: but slavery had so blunted his moral sense that, preacher though he was, he scrupled not to take this awful oath upon his soul.

The girl was arrested by the U. S. Marshal and taken before the slave commissioner at Cincinnati; but before he had passed judgment upon her, she was taken before a Cincinnati judge on a writ of habeas corpus, declared to be free, and discharged. Thus was her freedom twice adjudicated upon Ohio soil and by Ohio courts; but the slave commissioner determined to show his contempt of the State courts, and caused her re-arrest.

There the matter now stands. A decision is expected to-morrow; but if the Ohio authorities had any respect for themselves they would cause the edicts of their State courts to be respected, even by a slave commissioner. The girl is not a fugitive; she has not escaped from her master. It is not a case coming under the provisions of the Fugitive law in any shape. Why then does not Ohio enforce her jurisdiction upon her own soil? It is a question of supremacy between a sovereign State and a presuming, usurping commissioner, who assumes to be above and independent of the State. If he succeeds in thus setting the State at defiance, all prating about State Rights may as well cease. Her citizens will then be subject to the inroads of any perjurer from the South, and their State courts be able to afford them no protection.

The whole case is flagrant and outrageous.—The Fugitive Law, villainous as it is, provides only for the capture of such slaves as escape from one State into another; and although the Rev. H. M. Denison swears that such was the fact in this instance, the whole testimony goes to show the contrary. It is an attempt to insult and browbeat the authorities of a free State and to treat its judiciary with contempt; and this accomplished, there is no further protection to personal liberty.

OUR BOOK TABLE.

PUTNAM'S MONTHLY.—Mr. Putnam has publicly announced the change in the proprietorship of Putnam's Monthly, which has been talked of in literary circles for some time past. Mr. J. A. Dix, the republisher of Household Words, and Mr. A. T. Edwards, will, after the April number, be responsible for its issue, and they arrange for an entirely new editorial management. Mr. Putnam says:—

"The Magazine will not assume a partisan character, but it will hold decided opinions, and will treat all great public questions as matters of principle, and not of party. In all departments of elegant literature, criticism, popular instruction and amusement, the new management has tolerably secured the promise of most hearty cooperation from the best authors."

The May number will be issued by Messrs. Dix & Edwards.

HOUSEHOLD WORDS.—The same firm has undertaken the publication of Household Words, lately published by J. A. Dix. The April number has just been received, and it is rich in its varied contents. This is a most valuable monthly, and each number contains contributions from Mr. Dickens. Published by Dix & Edwards, No. 10 Park Place, N. Y., at $3 per annum.

BLACKWOOD'S MAGAZINE for April has just been received, and is for sale by Gildenfenny & Co. and Miner & Co. It contains a continuation of Zaidee, and The Story of the Campaign—both deeply interesting, and other valuable papers.

"KATE AYLESFORD, A story of the Refugees. By Charles J. Peterson. Philadelphia: published by T. B. Peterson, 102 Chestnut st." This is a novel founded on the times of the American Revolution, and is described as being a thrilling and powerful story. We have not yet had time to read it. For sale by Gildenfenny & Co., Fifth st. and Miner & Co., Smithfield st.

"THE MINISTER'S FAMILY; by Rev. W. M. Hetherington. New York, published by Carter & Brothers." This is a reprint of an English work, by a Scotch clergyman, and details, under a slight guise of fiction, a remarkable history of real life in a Scotch Minister's family. It is a book for the fireside of religious households, and will be found both interesting and instructive. For sale by A. H. English & Co., Wood st.

"THE SLAVE OF THE LAMP: a Posthumous Novel. By William North. New York: H. Long & Bro., No 121 Nassau st."

The reader has most probably heard the sad story of the author of this work. He was an Englishman of fine literary abilities, who came to this country to pursue the profession of an author. He struggled long and suffered much; and finally wearied out with the fruitless struggle for bread, penniless and hopeless, he committed suicide. This novel was written by him just before he died; and it is said to be less a novel than an auto-biography. In it the author depicts his own painful history, and the story is replete with thrilling interest from beginning to end.

For sale by B. T. C. Morgan, Wood st., near Fifth.

"MAY MIDDLETON; or the History of a Fortune. By G. W. M. Reynolds, author of the Banker's Daughter, &c." This work has just been published by Long & Brother, New York, and is for sale by the Booksellers.

Serpentine Piano.

The old adage that "there's nothing new under the sun" will not it seems, hold good in all cases; for, a few days ago, we saw something both new and beautiful at the Music Store of H. KLEBER on Third Street. It is a Piano-forte of entirely new style and pattern called Serpentine Piano, manufactured by, "NUNNS & CLARK," New York, and it certainly is as beautiful as it is new. Its design and proportions are in such perfect symmetry and good taste, that the instrument, notwithstanding its enormous weight and size, appears light and graceful as a fawn. Both the exterior and interior are finished in the highest degree of excellence, and give unmistakable evidence of coming from the hands of artists, in their department. The base strings are of extraordinary thickness and length—owing to their running over and above the other strings on an elevated bridge—and hence, produce a body of tone altogether astounding. The general tone of the instrument is characterised by great volume and a peculiar liquid sweetness but rarely met with. Take it all in all, a more perfect piece of work both as a musical instrument and mechanical skill can hardly be conceived; and we advise all lovers of the beautiful, to call at KLEBER'S, who, no doubt, will be very happy to show off and exhibit to them this elegant Pianoforte.

African explorations have been peculiarly fatal to the enterprising travelers who have undertaken them; and hence it has been generally beleived that the climate of Africa must inevitably be fatal to European constitutions. Some doubt is thrown over this by a voyage up the Niger, from which the steamer Pleiade has just returned to England without having lost a single man, white or black. She steamed up the Niger Delta in the beginning of July, ascended the river Chadda two hundred and fifty miles above the previous explorers, Allen and Oldfield, and reached to within fifty miles of the confluence of the Faroh and Benueh. This exploration has proved that the Chadda and Benueh are the same stream, which is navigable up to Yola the capital of Adamana. The party included sixty persons, and the expedition was in the river one hundred and eighteen days, twice as long as the expedition of 1845, which ended in so fearful a loss of life. The safety of the party is attributed to their having entered the river at the proper season, on the rising water; to their having infused all the Europeans to take quinine daily; passing all the cooking and drinking water through a boiler; scraping decks, instead of washing them; using Burnett's solution of zinc freely; pumping out the bilge water daily and keeping up the spirits of the crew by music, dancing, &c.

The Greatest Medical Discovery OF THE AGE.

Mr. Kennedy, of Roxbury, has discovered in one of our common pasture weeds a remedy that cure every kind of Humor, from the worst Scrofula to a common Pimple.

He has tried it in over eleven hundred cases, and never failed except in two cases (both thunder humor.) He has now in his possession over two hundred certificate, or its value, all within twenty miles of Boston.

Two bottles are warranted to cure a nursing sore mo th
One to three bottles will cure the worst kind of pimples of the face.

Two to three bottles will clear the system of biles.

Two bottles are warranted to cure the worst canker in the mouth and stomach.

Three to five bottles are warranted to cure the worst case of erysipelas.

One to two bottles are warranted to cure all humor in the eyes.

Two bottles are warranted to cure running of the ears and blotches among the hair.

Four to six bottles are warranted to cure corrupt and running ulcers.

One bottle will cure dealy eruption of the skin.

Two to three bottles are warranted to cure the worst case of ringworm.

Three to four bottles are warranted to cure the most desperate cases of rheumatism.

Three to four bottles are warranted to cure salt rheum Five to eight bottles will cure the worst case of scrofula.

A benefit is always experienced from the first bottle, and a perfect cure is warranted when the above quantity is taken.

Nothing looks so improbable to those who have in vain tried all the wonderful medicines of the day, as that a common weed growing in the pastures, and along old stone walls, should cure every humor in the system; yet it is now a fixed fact. If you have a humor it has to start There is no lie so sure, human or devilish, but it will in some cases and not yours. I peddled over a thousand bottles of it in the vicinity of Boston. I know its effects in every case. It has already done some of the greatest cures ever done in Massachusetts. I save it, to children a year old: to old people of sixty. I have seen poor, puny, screaming children, whose flesh was soft and flabby, restored to a perfect state of health by one bottle.

To those who are subject to a sick headache, one bottle will always cure it. It is a great panacea for dyspepsia and dizziness. Some who have been costive for years, have been and been regulated by it. Where the body is sound, it don't quite easy, but where there is any derangement of the functions of nature, it will cause very singular sensations, but you must not be alarmed—they always disappear in from four days to a week. There is never a bad result from it. On the contrary, when that feeling is gone it will be found a powerful friend to the system. I intend some of the most extravagant encolumns of it that has ever been listened to. No change of diet is ever necessary—eat the best you can get. I have likewise an herb, which, when simmered in sweet oil, dissolves Scrofulous swelling of the nack and under the ears. Price 50 cents. Prise of the Medical Discovery $1 per bottle.

DIRECTIONS FOR USE.—Adult, one table-spoonful pe day. Children over eight years, dessert spoonful; children from five to eight years, tea-spoonful. As no direction can be made applicable to all constitutions, take enough to operate on the bowels twice a day.

Mr. KENNEDY gives personal attendance in bad cases of scrofula.

Sold, wholesale and retail, at Dr. KEYSER'S, 140 Wood street, corner of Diamond alley.

A Special Bulletin for the Sick.—Dr. Horst's Invigorating Cordial relieves with wonderful rapidity ever disease of the stomach, restores the appetite, removes the appetite; renews the strength; hardens the muscles, braces the nerves, gives elasticity to the spirits, rouses the mental energies, banishes despondency, imparts to the attenuated frame a more rotund appearance, allays irritation, calms the disturbed imagination, soothes the shattered constitution: and may be taken without fear by the feeblest maiden, wife or mother, as it is composed solely of the juices of rare medicinal herbs, potent only to invigorate, exhilarate and restore.

If the system has become relaxed by improper indulgences, the Cordial will infuse a more vigorous vitality into every organ. The laudable resulting from late hours or too close application to labor of any kind, is quickly removed by its action, and ladies engaged in sedentary occupations, and sely at to inconvenience therefrom, will find it a safe and healthy stimulant. Where the circulation of the blood is sluggish, or any of the functions of the body are suspended or imperfectly performed, it will restore the natural action and communicate permanent energy to the secretive and distributive organs.

Those who are bowed down by physical debility, and so feeble as to despair of ever recovering the vigor and vim of manhood, are invited to give this wonderful invigorant a trial. It embodies the elements of their restoration.—Before they consumed the first bottle, they will be conscious that the consumption of a single bottle is work in every debilitated portion of their frames, and hope, soon be realised in their thorough recovery, will spring up in their hearts.

The Cordial is put up, highly concentrated, in pint bottles.—Price $3 per bottle, two for $5, six for $12.

Effectual Remedy for Worms.—The lessons of experience are the most reliable, and if not too costly for use, are sought after by the practical. The following is the voluntary testimony of a worthy and well known Methodist clergyman, relative to his experience of the efficacy of B. A. Fahnestock's celebrated Vermifuge, during a practice of twenty-five years.

GRENADA, Miss., May 25th, 1853.

Messrs. B. A. Fahnestock & Co.—Gentlemen:—I am one of those individuals backward in giving certificates, but in the present instance consider it due to humanity to say that I have been engaged in the practice of medicine for 25 years, and have never met with any remedy so effectual for worms as your Vermifuge. In adults, even in cases of Fever, I sometimes use it in carry off calomel taken the previous night, and often find millions evacuations and worms to follow. I use no other Vermifuge in my practice, and desire no better. Respectfully,

Dr. Fitch's Opinion of my Braces.

DR. GEORGE H. KEYSER—Dear Sir: In reply to yours of the 13th inst., requesting my opinion of your Shoulder Braces, I would say that I consider it one of the best ever devised, and would add that I have myself been long in the habit of employing a somewhat similar Brace with the greatest advantage in cases of contraction of the chest by stooping, whether from habit, occupation or debility, more especially where there is weakness or irritation about the lungs, and more or less predisposition to consumption—with the philosophy of its effects in these cases, you are of course acquainted. In some forms of heart disease, or sympathetic excitement of that organ, I have also found the Shoulder Brace of advantage. I do not hesitate to recommend your Brace in all cases where a Brace is required, as one of the most easy and efficient yet in use.

Very truly yours, CALVIN M. FITCH.

Sold wholesale and retail at Dr. KEYSER'S, 140 Wood street, Pittsburgh, Pa.; also, a complete assortment of Dr Fitchs, medicines constantly for sale. mh5-dâw
