CASH MUSIC & PIANO STORE
OF
HORACE WATERS,
No. 333 Broadway, New York,
OPPOSITION TO MONOPOLY.
Music at Greatly Reduced Rates.
NOTWITHSTANDING the combination of Music Dealers to keep up the prices of our copyright music, against the interests of music composers, and the public, I have issued to Mr. Peter Dolp and others citizens of foreign birth (no less notorious to be doubted or denied) This naturally, and indeed necessarily, begets a spirit of resistance in the party slighted or aggrieved. Hence follow crimination and recrimination; and in this way a spirit of hatred is engendered, which often continues with unabated rancor while life endures. Now, upon what principle of Right or Reason do universal peace and harmony depend? Do they suppose that they are different by nature, or less deeply tinctured with depravity than men born in Great Britain or Ireland, in Germany or France? This anchristian sentiment is repudiated in the Bible, where it is emphatically declared "that God hath made of one blood all nations of men for to dwell on all the face of the earth," and that "he is no respecter of persons, but in every nation, he that feareth him and worketh righteousness is accepted with him." All the inhabitants of the wicked world are the common progeny of a fallen and consequently sinful progenitor. We are all the descendants of Adam, and have partaken deeply of his corrupt nature. So far, it is humbly conceived, as evil propensities and passions are to be taken into account, the native and adopted citizen are precisely on an equality. Believing that the subscribers to the Union are generally attentive readers of the Bible, the point at issue is cheerfully submitted to their decision.
Does that unequaled document, the Declaration of Independence, justify the natives of the soil in their opposition to, or proscription of foreigners? No composition emanating from uninspired men, ever contained more noble or magnanimous sentiments. In its pages, few as they are, the Divine truths of Revelation shine forth with peculiar splendor. It abounds in "thoughts that breathe and words that burn." Hear its inimitable language!
"We hold these truths to be self-evident—that all men are created equal; that they are endowed by their Creator with certain inalienable rights; that among these are life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness, that to secure these rights governments are instituted among men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed; that whenever any form of government becomes destructive to these ends, it is the right of the people to alter or abolish it, and to institute a new government, laying its foundation on such principles and organizing its powers in such form, as to them shall seem most likely to effect their safety and happiness."
But the authors of the Declaration were not satisfied with setting forth such exalted views to an admiring world. To maintain and defend them, they pledged their lives, fortunes and sacred honor. How persons calling themselves Americans can for a moment forget, in the face of these facts, the glorious political truths proclaimed by the heroes of the Revolution, it is almost impossible to imagine.
The Constitution of the United States is another monument of the profound sagacity and excellent judgment by which the statesmen that flourished in the early period of our country's history, were so remarkably distinguished. In that sacred chart of our religious and political liberties, there is not a solitary discourteous, harsh, or illiberal expression uttered against foreigners. Nay verily! The great and good men to whom the important work was assigned, knew better. They were aware that foreigners rendered them essential aid in achieving their liberties; and that Generals Lafayette, Mercer and Montgomery, were among the most popular and distinguished officers in the American army. They knew, moreover, that the first was a Frenchman, the second a Scotchman, and the third an Irishman; and that all the officers and soldiers of foreign birth engaged in the struggle for American Independence behaved most gallantly.
Many natives, of limited, mental and moral culture, conceive from the circumstance of their having been born within the boundaries of the United States, that they have an inherent right to treat all who had their birth elsewhere with cold indifference and disrespect. Those patient Republicans appear to forget that they had nothing to do with the determining the time and place of their appearance in the world; that they were entirely passive in regard to these grave events, and could not possibly, in the nature of things, exert the slightest agency in bringing them about. Admitting the correctness of this statement, which is not susceptible of successful contradiction, can it be considered an honor, in the slightest degree, to have been born in Boston, New York, Philadelphia, or Baltimore, or a disgrace to have first appeared on the stage of action in Vienna, or Paris, Dublin or London? To sum up the whole in a few words, natives are Americans because they could not change their destiny, while adopted citizens, capable of exercising volition, are such from choice.
A secret, oath-bound, political association, has recently been formed, composed exclusively of native Americans. As virtue loves the light, and vice delights in darkness, it may naturally be concluded that the midnight proceedings of this mysterious Order, are illiberal, proscriptive and infamous. The prevailing opinion of good citizens, irrespective of party is, that most of the members of that society are disappointed office-hunters, who have hit on the happy expedient of fomenting national jealousies that they may ride triumphantly into office upon the surging billows of agitation, which their unhallowed yearnings after wealth and power have unhappily created.—Their unprincipled efforts have, in numerous instances, been unfortunately but too successful. In this county may now be found, holding lucrative and honorable offices, certain men who had been candidates for political distinction for the last twenty years, and never could come within hailing distance of their successful competitors.
Another leading object of the Know Nothings is, to keep adopted citizens out of office, and to prevent them, if possible, from exercising the right of suffrage. The proscribed class, if fettered in this way, will be unable to claim any country as theirs. They have renounced allegiance to foreign princes and foreign potentates, and sworn fidelity to the United States. By this act they ceased to be subjects of the countries whence they came, and the government under whose protection they desire to place themselves may be deterred by this new party from acknowledging or receiving them. Many of these injured and persecuted men are united in marriage to American women. These wives are the mothers of numerous children, who are also "to the manor born." The strange and anomalous spectacle is thus presented to our view, of the heads of American families, toiling patiently and lovingly for those depending on them for support, while the government under which they live, and intend to die, may be induced by a sworn band of unprincipled men to treat them as aliens and enemies. This is rather more than unassisted human nature can, or perhaps ought to, bear; and conveys a tolerably distinct idea of the ingratitude of republics.
But this is not all. A powerful effort will ere long be made to abolish the Naturalization Laws, and to place persons of foreign birth on a footing with the serfs of Russia, or the inferior castes in India. Indeed their condition may, in the course of time, become as distressing as the bondage of the Isra elites in the land of Egypt. The hapless descendants of Africa have been long enslaved, in this land of liberty; and the enslavement of Europeans will probably be the next in order; but whether they will bear the yoke as patiently as their down-trodden African friends, is yet a matter of uncertainty. An idea, worthy of profound consideration, here presents itself. Should naturalization, and the suffrage consequent thereon, be withheld from persons of foreign birth, will such of them as possess property be taxed for the support of the government? It is known by almost every child in the country, that the commencement of the Revolution was brought about by a slight tax, imposed by the British Parliament, on tea sent to Boston. It was then contended that Representation and Taxation must stand or fall together; and that as we were not represented in the British Parliament, we had no right to pay the tea tax. Hence the delightful beverage which caused such bitter contention between the mother country and the colonies, was destroyed in Boston harbor by an unlawful assembly. If the reasoning employed by the heroes of the Revolution was correct then, it is so now; and agreeably thereto, no portion of the American community, unrepresented in the National Legislature, should pay the first dollar, in the shape of taxes, for the support of the government. Their resistance to such a claim would be in perfect keeping with the glorious example set them by the brave men who fought and bled in defence of liberty.
It may not be improper to allude to the fact that a great number of families scattered throughout the States are composed of foreigners and natives in about equal proportions. Into these families the unfeeling and dangerous order of Know Nothings will cast firebrands, arrows and death. The domestic circle, which should constitute the centre of all true happiness and enjoyment, will become the theatre of distressful contests, so that the father will be found in hostile attitude against the son, and the mother against the daughter.
In it observed, in conclusion, that no incon siderable portion of our population is made up of persons who, when infants or children, were brought here by their parents. They also agreeably to the site cted of the Know Nothings, must be regarded as aliens and enemies, though they have no personal recollection or knowledge of any country but this.
While the Monarchy of England proclaims the glorious doctrine that the moment a slave breathes the air of that nation he is free, the Republic of America—should the Know Nothings seize the reins of government—will convert free men into slaves. "Tell it not in Gath, publish it not in the streets of Askelon, lest the daughters of the Philistines rejoice, lest the daughters of the uncircumcised triumph."

MRDS, THE GREAT CALIFORNIA FORGER.—Meigs and family are residing in Chili. He removed there from Tahiti. We extract the following from the San Francisco Transcript:
It is said that Meigs was very much distressed on his passage; that his health gradually failed him, and that he begged to be put ashore anywhere. All the while however, no one on board knew that he had been guilty of the crime which has rendered his name infamous. On arriving at Valparaiso, the American was boarded almost as soon as she dropped anchor, by Mr. Charles Minturn; and Meigs, who hoped to have reached a country where his misdeeds were unknown, was appalled at so unexpected an apparition. [Mr. Minturn, it will be remembered, is establishing a line of steamers on the coast of Chili.] Recovering, however Meigs took Mr. Minturn aside and begged of him, for the sake of his wife, whose heart it would break, not to reveal the fatal secret, as all on board except the two were ignorant of it. What Mr. Minturn did we are not advised; but the fact was already known on shore—a newspaper from San Francisco having previously reached that out of the way place.—The most remarkable part of the story is, that Meigs had had taken away but between $6,000 and $6,000.

STATE CONVENTION OF COUNTY SCHOOL SUPERINTENDENTS.—This body met at the call of the State Superintendent, at Harrisburg, on Tuesday, in one of the rooms of the State Department, and after several sessions adjourned on Wednesday evening. A full attendance was present, there being forty-three on hand out of the sixty three Superintendents in the Commonwealth. Col. D. Curtin delivered an eloquent and appropriate address at the opening meeting, and subsequently Gov. Pollock was introduced and made a speech, which was listened to with much interest. Among those who took an active part were Prof. Hart, of the Philadelphia High School; J. L. Gow, Esq., of Washington county; and B. M. Kerr, Esq., of Allegheny. The propriety of teachers throughout the State encouraging the Pennsylvania School Journal was fully endorsed. This peri
